Full Amount Of Stopgap Aid Voted by Senate Group

Foreign Relations Committee Sets Thanksgiving as Goal for Passage

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday approved a 597-million-dollar stopgap relief bill for France, Italy and Austria, and set a "passage by Thanksgiving" goal.

The bill authorized the full amount requested by the President, but carried a "no guarantee" reservation on specific supplies, and spelled out a complete code of interim controls.

Chairman Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) said the State Department concurred in every change. He said Senate debate will open Monday and continue through the Friday and Saturday holiday weekend unless passage comes before Thanksgiving.

House Group Is Slower

Senate committee clearance, just two days after the President presented his request, beat the House to the draw. The slower moving House Foreign Affairs Committee debated procedure a full day in executive session, before deciding to start "clean slate" work on a new bill today.

The House group abandoned earlier proposals to provide aid by amending the last Foreign Relief Act. Chairman Charles A. Eaton (R., N. J.) said the group will write a completely new bill, using both the State Department draft and the old Foreign Relief Act as a base.

The Senate committee's bill, sped to the floor by a 13 to 0 vote, picked up some of the safeguards in former aid legislation, too, but provided more flexible controls.

Proposals for an entirely new agency to administer aid, which may later be tied to the long-range recovery program, were passed over in favor of the setup now handling post-UNRRA relief.

Subject to later action by the Appropriating Committees, the Senate group approved the full

Taft Hearings By-Pass Rationing, Prices

The Congressional Joint Economic Committee yesterday bypassed limited price control and rationing, the two most controversial points in President Truman's anti-inflation program, in slating hearings tomorrow on inflation curbs.

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), chairman of the joint group, said the committee will take testimony on six other price proposals in the President's message.

The Senate GOP policy chief made it plain that this did not prejudice action on rationing and price ceilings by the regular legislative committees, but told reporters:

"I think that if we are going to get anything out of this special session of Congress we will have to leave those points until the regular session."

Banking Group Starts Tuesday

Chairman Jesse P. Wolcott (R., Mich.) of the House Banking Committee, meanwhile announced that the House group, which will have initial jurisdiction over much of the program, will hear testimony on all points starting Tuesday.

"We are not ruling anything out," said Wolcott. The House GOP spokesman on price policy said House hearings will be long and thorough. Taft said he hopes to complete his own joint committee hearings in two or three weeks.

A third committee moved into the troubled price picture when Senator Charles W. Tobey (R., N. H.) called a meeting of his Senate Banking Committee for today.

Tobey said at present he would

Princess Elizabeth Will Be Wed In Pearl-Bedecked Ivory Satin

ARTIST'S IMPRESSION—Princess Elizabeth's wedding gown of ivory duchess satin is cut on classic lines, has a fitted bodice, long tight sleeves and full-falling skirt

Going-Away Outfit Is in Smoky Blue, With Skirt Hem 14 Inches From Floor

London (Thursday) Nov. 20 (AP).—Princess Elizabeth will be wed this morning in a rich, classically cut gown created of ivory duchesse satin and thickly embroidered with thousands of pearls.

For her wedding trip with Lieut. Philip Mountbatten she will don a silk dress, traveling coat and high felt beret all done in a smoky blue shade called "love-in-the-mist."

Secrecy, imposed at the Princess' demand on all reporters who were given authentic information about the wedding clothes, expired at midnight, ending the terms of signed oaths compelling silence.

The going-away costume sets a new skirt length for Britain—14 inches from the floor.

Gown's Cost Given As $800

This is a compromise between the present British vogue and the midcalf length prescribed by fashion's moderators in Paris and New York. The compromise reflected both the royal family's distaste for showing off and the nation's economic squeeze which has made cloth too scarce for fuller styles.

While a palace official said the cost of the wedding gown was "something under £200" ($800), it looked considerably more expensive.

Even the number of pearls on it might cost as much or more than the palace's official estimate. They run into the thousands in number.

Each of the flowers and stars which decorate the skirt use as many as 50 seed pearls and many of the designs also have a single pea-sized pearl in the center.

The gown is made with a closely fitted bodice, heart shaped neckline and long tight sleeves. From a pointed waistline, emphasized with a girdle of pearl-embroidered star flowers, a very full swirling skirt falls in a sparkle of pearls and crystal. The neckline, too, is bordered with a floral design of seed pearls and crystal.

The designs of the pearl embroidery on the skirt were inspired by the paintings of Botticelli, the Florentine artist whose name has become a symbol for grace and refinement.

Fifteen-foot Train

Just below the waist the skirt is entwined with garlands of white York roses—symbolic of the House of York over which Elizabeth's father presided before he ascended the throne—and heads of wheat, the latter embroidered in oat-shaped pearls representing each grain.

The wheat motif is an ancient symbol of fertility and a reminder of the tradition that a main task of the heiress is to produce an heir and keep intact the line of succession to the throne.

Alternating between the strands of roses and wheat are bands of orange blossoms and star flowers, with the pearls appliqued on transparent tulle. Orange blossom and star flower appliques also form a three-band hem border, with the star flowers above and below the orange blossoms.

The princess' full court train, 15 feet long, is embroidered in the same manner, except that the train is of ivory silk tulle, and the applique work is on the same kind of satin as the dress. Her crisp

London, Nov. 19.—Today I went down to do a little London sightseeing where Princess Elizabeth is to be married tomorrow.

I also shopped in some of the London stores to get some idea of clothes rationing and food rationing.

My first visit this morning was to Westminster Abbey, where the wedding will take place. The abbey is a very impressive gray building with two main towers. It was damaged during the war.

Although it has since been repaired you can still see signs of where the bombs hit. It stands beside a smaller church called St. Margaret's, where the most fashionable society weddings take place.

From there I went to look at Buckingham Palace, the official residence of the royal family in London. It was still pretty early in the day when I went to the palace, but already the crowds were gathering outside to watch cars coming and going through the big iron gates.

From the front I could see the balcony with flags ready for the appearance of the royal family. Flags surrounded all the main

Murray Wins Confidence Vote on Oath

Steel Union Board Reaffirms Refusal To Deal With NLRB

Pittsburgh, Nov. 19 (AP).—Executive board members of the CIO United Steelworkers decided today they would turn a cold shoulder to the National Labor Relations Board as long as non-Communist affidavits are required from union officials.

The board reaffirmed its opposition to signing the affidavits, which the Taft-Hartley Act makes a prerequisite to use of the NLRB machinery. The board also backed Philip Murray, president of the union and the CIO, in his refusal to sign.

At the windup of a three-day meeting of the 41-man board, Murray said all phases of President Truman's program on wages and prices had been discussed.

All nine vice presidents of the CIO will meet at Washington December 2 to determine the organization's policy on Mr. Truman's program.

Murray also said the executive board did not discuss reopening of the U. S. Steel Corp. contract with regard to a wage increase. The corporation's two-year contract signed last April included a clause permitting the reopening of wage discussions after one year.

Bullet in Brain 65 Days, Woman Conscious Again

Baltimore, Nov. 19 (AP).—Doctors reported today that by some "miracle," 24-year-old Vivian Crome has regained consciousness after 65 days with a bullet in her brain.

A suitor is being held on a charge of shooting her as she sat in a restaurant September 15.

"She has come a long way," an attending physician said.

The woman still has no sight in her left eye. Her right side is entirely paralyzed. She cannot speak or swallow.

Surgeons have not determined the location of the bullet exactly enough to remove it but they reason it severed the fifth nerve.

Luckman Seeks to Resign Food Job, Return to Lever's

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Charles Luckman, chairman of President Truman's Citizens Food Committee, yesterday asked President Truman to be relieved of that job.

Luckman, it is understood, told Mr. Truman that the food conservation program he headed, designed to save 100 million bushels of wheat for starving countries overseas, is now sufficiently under way to allow him to return to his job as $400,000-a-year president of Lever Brothers, Inc., soap manufacturers at Cambridge, Mass.

Arrangements are being made, it was stated, to turn over continued operation of the conservation program to the Agriculture Department. Agriculture Secretary Anderson, it was said, will take over direction of Meatless Tuesdays and Eggless Thursdays.

Under the arrangement the Citizens Food Committee will continue to act in an advisory capacity, with administrative functions under the Department of Agriculture.

One of the last duties confronting Luckman, it is reported, will be to act upon a petition of a group of distillers to remove the 60-day ban upon the manufacture

Blum Called As Ramadier Quits in Crisis

Strikes Force Out French Premier As Gaullists, Reds Tussle for Power

Paris, Nov. 19 (AP).—Premier Paul Ramadier, unable to stem a dangerously increasing national crisis of Communist-inspired strikes, resigned tonight.

A socialist spokesman said Ramadier's socialist colleague, Leon Blum, had received a mandate to form a new government.

President Vincent Auriol, who named the then-little-known Ramadier to the Premiership 10 months ago, received the resignation with regret and immediately set about the task of formally appointing a successor. The President thanked the 60-year-old economist and lawyer for the "courage and spirit of sacrifice" he displayed as Premier.

The 75-year-old Blum, elder statesman of the Socialists, headed a temporary, "caretaker" government when he stepped out last January 17 and was succeeded by Ramadier.

Ramadier's cabinet remained in office to carry on usual business, including the combatting of spreading strikes. President Vincent Auriol conferred with Edouard Herriot, President of the French Assembly and a leader of the Radical Socialists.

Sees Monnerville

In accordance with protocol, Auriol's second visitor was Gaston Monnerville, president of the Council of the Republic, the consultative branch of the Assembly.

Guy Mollet, secretary general of the Socialist Party, chose the usual scene of a British-American newspapermen's luncheon to announce today that 75-year-old Blum had consented to try to form a stronger government of the center to succeed Socialist Paul Ramadier and meet head-on the opposite challenges of communism and De Gaullism.

Later, after a meeting with Blum and Daniel Mayer, Socialist Labor minister, Mollet declared, "social events, which are worsening, demand a quick solution to the crisis; it must be completed in 48 hours or not at all."

It was then that Blum moved his headquarters from his home outside Paris to the Labor Ministry where he saw Ramadier, Mollet, Mayer and other party leaders.

Conservative estimates gave this picture of the Communist-led strike situation in France:

Nearly 300,000 striking metal workers in the Paris region tied up the automobile and aviation industries.

Approximately 114,000 coal miners in the northern fields were idle.

100,000 on Strike

Nearly 100,000 workers in the Marseille region were on strike and the movement spread to building workers in nearby Aix-en-Provence and to dock workers at all Mediterranean ports.

A strike of about 10,000 flour millers in Paris, Marseille and some smaller towns forced some bakeries to close for lack of flour. Military trucks hurried flour into Paris.

All the unions are affiliated with the Communist-dominated General Confederation of Labor which has directed its locals to demand an increase in the present minimum monthly wage of 7000 francs (about $58) to 10,800 francs (about $90) and a 25 per cent sal-

Fire Dept. Group Charges 'Pressure Tactics' by Murphy

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

Fire Chief Clement Murphy yesterday was accused of using pressure tactics against subordinates to build up his defense in the forthcoming hearings on charges that the chief demoralized the District Fire Department.

The accusation was made in a resolution adopted by the board of directors of the District Firemen's Association at a special meeting Tuesday afternoon and made public last night.

Murphy, saying he was acting on advice of counsel, refused to comment on the resolution.

The association, whose demoralization charges led Chief Murphy to ask and obtain a trial before a citizens' board, accused the chief of three activities having "a strong element of possible intimidation":

1. With having the fire captains polled on whether or not Chief Murphy caused a lack of morale in the department, and then requesting those replying in the negative to sign a statement or petition to that effect. Also requesting the captains making favorable replies to make a similar inquiry among their own subordinates and likewise obtain their signatures.

2. With causing the drill master similarly to interrogate the student firemen "who . . . are on one-year's probation" . . . in an effort to secure their signatures on a similar petition.

3. With issuing a general order to all division heads, battalion chiefs and captains to submit a written report not later than 8 a. m. November 15 stating whether or not any evidence of inefficiency or demoralization had been reported to the chief engineer (Murphy) since March 1, 1946.

The association resolution voiced strong protest against "such activities" carried out "on public time and at public expense . . ." and against such further action by Chief Murphy "while he continues to actively administer his official position, pending the completion of the trial board hearing and the rendering of its decision or report."

The association directors also demanded that the charges to be heard by the three-man civilian trial board be drawn "sufficiently broad" so as to put directly before the board "all pertinent issues as to Chief Murphy's policy, conduct, fitness, and competence to continue as fire chief."

On Monday, the District Commissioners named William P. McCracken, jr., former Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics; Austin F. Canfield, past president of the District Bar Association, and Joseph A. Wilner, merchant tailor, as members of the three-man board to hear the charges against Chief Murphy. The hearing will begin as soon as the specific charges against the fire chief are prepared by Assistant Corporation Counsel Daniel B. Maher.

Tax Fraud Indictment To Be Sought Against Meyers on War Profits

2 Testify General Asked Them to Lie To Cover Up His $150,199 in Profits

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Attorney General Tom Clark announced last night that the Justice Department will soon ask an indictment for income tax evasion against Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers, wartime chief of the Army Forces Materiel Command.

Clark said the Justice Department had been asked to wait before it gives the case to a grand jury until the Senate War Investigating Subcommittee completes its hearings into the general's lush wartime rake-offs and releases the general as a witness.

The Senate committee is scheduled to complete its hearings with final testimony from Meyers Saturday but extension is possible.

Witnesses Say Perjury Urged

Two witnesses yesterday told the Senate investigators that Major General Meyers had asked them to commit perjury in a desperate attempt to "concoct" a story to account for his $150,199 war profits from a dummy corporation.

Bleriot H. Lamarre, $50 a week "president" of the Aviation Electric Co., which he said was really operated by Meyers, acknowledged that he had sworn falsely in an executive session before the committee last month.

The second witness, Thomas E. Readnower, "dummy" vice president of the dummy corporation, said Meyers had asked him to do the same thing but he had never agreed.

"I told him the story would never stand up," said Readnower.

Says Meyers Concocted Story

Referring to Meyers' own testimony before the subcommittee, Chairman Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) asked Lamarre:

"Did you and General Meyers sit in your living room and concoct this story that would be perjury before this committee?"

"That's where the story was concocted by General Meyers."

Later in questioning Lamarre, Ferguson referred to Meyers' activities as "subornation of perjury."

It was clear that the committee considered that Lamarre in finally acknowledging the "concoction" of the story had cleared himself of the danger of perjury charges.

There was no indication of whether the committee intends to recommend that the bald, cigar-smoking general be cited for perjury.

Charges Mount Against Meyers

Already the committee has heard charges that Meyers, second ranking AAF procurement officer during the war, has been guilty of blackmail, attempted extortion, income tax evasion and violation of Federal statutes governing those who purchase for the Government.

Meyers himself has admitted a four million dollar wartime speculation in Government bonds.

The Treasury Department is investigating his income taxes and the Justice Department has a full-scale investigation of its own in progress.

Meyers, pictured in testimony as a high-living, poker-playing general, and by himself in press conferences as a sporty fellow who engaged in extra-marital affairs, sat furiously scribbling notes as the words perjury and subordination of perjury echoed through the quiet Senate hearing room.

Meyers Hints at "Prejudice"

A little earlier Meyers had released a letter to Senate President Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) requesting him to ascertain if Ferguson is "prejudiced" against him.

Lamarre told the committee that the general had asked him to testify that he had dissipated the funds of the Aviation Electric Co. by wild spending and reckless gambling in order to account for the huge sums that flowed through Lamarre's hands, but never reached his bank accounts.

Meyers asked him to testify that the general never had any connection with the firm except for loaning money to get Lamarre started in business, he said.

Tells of Meyers' Visit

The wavy-haired Lamarre, who has given all of his testimony in a totally expressionless fashion, said that Meyers came out to his Dayton, Ohio, home last July and informed him of the investigation.

"He told me the only way for us to avoid risks is for us to tell

Marshall Off Today for London Talks

Secretary to Seek Accord With Soviet On Germany, Austria

Post Reporter

Secretary Marshall plans to fly to London this afternoon for another attempt to reach agreement with Russia on the outlines of a German settlement.

The Council of Foreign Ministers, starting its session in the British capital next Tuesday, will renew the largely futile efforts that took seven weeks at Moscow last spring.

When the Secretary left Moscow he described the session there as "the first round," thus implying that later efforts might succeed. But there has been no sign since then of Soviet yielding on any of the major issues that were deadlocked at Moscow.

Future Is Vague

Germany is still divided between East and West, its future form of government is still undecided, the procedure of a peace conference is still undetermined. As for Austria, still torn among four occupying armies, the deputies in London have been trying to overcome Soviet insistence that it be put last on the Foreign Ministers' agenda.

In these circumstances there is little hope or expectation here that the London conference will succeed. But unless the session breaks up unexpectedly soon, Secretary Marshall is prepared to stay until Christmas, and even longer if necessary, to get an agreement.

Lovett in Charge

In his absence from Washington Undersecretary Robert A. Lovett will have charge of the State Department and Secretary of Commerce Harriman will have the over-all responsibility of presenting the Administration's European recovery program to Congress.

Secretary Marshall will fly in the President's plane, "The Sacred Cow," with Charles E. Bohlen, counsellor of the Department, and Carlisle H. Humelsine, director of the executive secretariat, who will act as special assistant during the London meeting. Most of the American delegation of 80 officials is aboard the liner America, due to arrive in England this weekend.

The Secretary will reach England in time to get an honorary degree at Oxford on Saturday. It will be

Army Figures On Disloyalty Fail to Jibe

Only 55 Fired, Johnson Reveals; Reds Malign Military, Eddy Says

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Fifty-five Army and Air Force civil employes have been dismissed for disloyalty during the past five years—a much lower figure than previously reported—it was officially disclosed yesterday.

This revelation coincided with a charge by a ranking Army official that "sinister" forces within the United States are trying to discredit the Army and drag its good name "in the mud."

Kenneth D. Johnson, special assistant to Army Secretary Royall, said that 27 employes were fired for Communist connections, 19 were removed as pro-Nazis and 9 for other "disloyal" connections.

9 During Summer

Nine of these have been dismissed since the adjournment of Congress last summer, Johnson said.

These figures do not seem to jibe with a War Department report made public on Capitol Hill last July 15. The Army then said that 190 civil employes had been let out for disloyalty reasons in a single Army area in the nine months between July 1, 1946, and April 1, 1947.

Johnson told The Washington Post that the earlier report had been prepared by a "lower War Department level" and he was not familiar with it. But he was emphatic that there can be no firing of civil employes for disloyalty without personal action being taken by the Secretary and that there has been a total of 55 dismissals since Congress authorized such procedure in 1942.

Charge by Gen. Eddy

The charge that a "campaign" has been launched to "undermine" and "discredit" the Army came from Maj. Gen. Manton S. Eddy, chief of information, in an address before the Association of Military Colleges and Schools at the Mayflower yesterday.

"There is a rising wave of attacks against the military in general and the corps of officers in particular," he declared. "These attacks are so sinister, so persistent that they could eventually poison the minds of our people against one of their most stalwart guardians of freedom—the American military profession."

Eddy did not identify the source

Transfer of Five D. C. Schools To Use of Negroes Is Voted

The Board of Education yesterday voted to transfer five white elementary schools to the use of Negro students and to shut five other schools.

Two members dissented.

These changes will force the transfer shortly of about 1700 white students to other schools; shift 3301 Negro students from part-time instruction to full time, and reassign eight principals and nearly 50 teachers.

Recommended November 5 by School Superintendent Hobart M. Corning, the reorganization was approved by the nine-member board in the face of considerable opposition. Dissenting votes were cast by board members Adelbert W. Lee and Mrs. James W. Williams.

Schools marked for transfer are Blow, 19th st. and Benning rd. ne.; Webb, 15th and Rosedale sts. ne.; Hayes, 5th and K sts. ne., S. J. Bowen, 3rd and K sts. sw., all elementary schools, and Lenox Occupational School, 5th st. between G st. and Virginia ave. se.

Of the five buildings scheduled for abandonment, four are currently used as schools.

To be returned to the District government for other use are Lincoln, 3rd and C sts. se., now occupied by Negro students, and the old Hamilton Elementary School, 1611 Bladensburg rd. ne., currently used as a repair shop.

General Strikes Erupt Over Italy

By Little Assembly

U. N. Group Urges Study Of Veto Curb

Lake Success, N. Y., Nov. 19 (U.P.).—The United Nations Political Committee, angered by Soviet use of the veto, today asked the U. N. "Little Assembly" to make an exhaustive study of how to curb the big power veto privilege.

The vote for the study was 36 to 6, with 11 nations abstaining.

The ballot guaranteed that the plan will receive the necessary two-thirds vote when it goes before the full General Assembly. The veto dispute thus will be the first problem referred to the "Little Assembly," a continuous committee composed of all U. N. members—except the Soviet bloc, which has refused to participate in the group.

Small Powers Enthusiastic

Chile voted against key parts of the plan for the "Little Assembly" debate on grounds that it would be useless to debate the issue in a committee on which the Soviet did not sit. It abstained, however, in the final vote. Other small powers, however, enthusiastically supported the plan. Some wanted the veto abolished, and others wanted merely to slap at the way Russia has used it.

The Soviet has used the veto 22 times. The only other veto was cast by France in the Indonesian case.

The plan approved today called for the "Little Assembly" to recommend by next July 15 what U. N. should do to meet the veto problem. The plan also called for the Big Five powers—the United States, Russia, Britain, France and China—to consult among themselves on how to prevent vetoes that unnecessarily shackle the Security Council.

U. S. Would Limit Veto

Each of the Big Five can, by a single negative vote, block any important decision in the 11-nation Security Council, which has primary U. N. responsibility for keeping the peace.

The United States has offered to give up the power of veto over all decisions dealing with peaceful settlement of disputes. The United States, however, would retain the right to block moves such as the ordering of economic or military action against an offending nation.

Russia has refused to yield any ground on the veto.

Cabinet Confident It Could Crush Outright Revolt

Rome, Nov. 19 (U.P.).—General strikes erupted throughout Italy and Sardinia today, on the fifteenth day of the Communist-inspired campaign of violence against the government.

Cabinet officials declared that they would have no trouble in crushing any attempt at outright revolution.

Fifteen persons, Communists and innocent bystanders as well as anti-Communists, have been killed so far in the violence campaign.

Today's strikes in north, central and south Italy and the Italian island of Sardinia were called to retaliate against government efforts to quell Communist-inspired riots.

Strikers from Siena, in the north central province of Tuscany, fanned out from the city on a "Fascist manhunt" which spread terror through much of the province. The strike was called to protest the arrest of five members of the Communist-controlled Partisan Association.

Peasants on Strike

In "Bloody Puglia" Province, the heel of the Italian boot, an estimated 200,000 peasants walked out in a protest against "agrarian fascists." The labor office which called the strike was bombed, and rightist political headquarters in four towns were wrecked.

At Rovigo, near Venice in northern Italy, an undetermined number of peasants were on strike following a day of widespread violence in nearby towns.

A general strike protesting the "fascist revival" on Sardinia was virtually broken when Christian Democratic workers boycotted it.

Meanwhile, electrical workers throughout Italy struck for two hours, underlining their threat to call a general strike unless wage negotiations are resumed.

Interior Minister Mario Scelba, in Naples, said that "difficult days are coming . . . We have no faith in the intentions of our adversaries."

Government Unafraid

Interior Undersecretary Achille Marazca, answering questions in the National Assembly about rumored Communist plans for a lightning revolution, declared that "the government is not afraid of anyone . . . we have enough power in our hands to meet any situation."

"We know nothing more than what the newspapers have said about a coup d'etat," Marazca told the Assembly.

"As the government is responsible for public order, we can assure you that it has its eyes and ears open for any events which may happen," he added. "But we believe nothing will happen, because, above any ideology, the spirit of the fatherland will prevail.

"If this should not be the case, the government has enough power in its hands to meet any situation which may arise."

The press today reported violent outbreaks in 20 cities yesterday.

Fire Over Heads

A spokesman for the Interior Ministry said that police were still under orders to fire over the heads of attacking mobs despite the gun battle yesterday at Corato, in Puglia Province and attacks on police squads and on one city hall in northern Italy.

Today, rioters broke into the home of the Christian Democratic mayor of Trani in Puglia Province. When he escaped, demonstrators blockaded the railway station to prevent the departure of trains.

Reports from Bari, seaport capital of Puglia, said carabinieri and infantry troops were demolishing road blocks set up by strikers in several towns.

At Taranto, naval base in Puglia, stevedores walked out in sympathy with striking peasants.

The strike in the southern province was called by the Bari Chamber of Labor, acting for labor groups in the 57 towns of the province.

The federation said a totally effective general strike in Puglia would bring out 500,000 peasants. Only about 200,000 were on strike "because police, in league with agrarian Fascists, have killed five demonstrators in the province," the federation declared.

ary advance pending negotiations for the increase.

Troops unloaded perishable food from ships tied up by the longshoremen's strike at Marseille, and troop-guarded trucks distributed the produce. Among ships unloaded was the American ship Empire State, whose crew protested the action. The ship was carrying 3000 tons of flour.

Earlier the crew of the American ship Henry Gilbert Coston, at Marseille had declared its solidarity with the strikers.

Elmer Cope, international representative of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, declared, however, that the crews of United States freighters at Marseille "cannot be considered on strike in any sense."

Cope, who is stationed here as an assistant general secretary of the World Federation of Trade Unions, said he had received telegrams from the crews of both ships asking for instructions, but that he had no authority to give them instructions.

Reynaud Fails in Try

Blum's first task was to line up 310 votes in the 619-member National Assembly, something which Paul Reynaud, last pre-Vichy Premier and a Rightist, had failed to do. The 72 De Gaullist deputies in the Assembly tonight declared their opposition to a Blum or Reynaud government.

Declaring that a central "third force," against communism and De Gaullism was wanted by the French people to "avoid civil war"—which he said would be as bad as in Spain—Mollet asserted that a ministry headed by Blum was the "last chance to maintain France as a country in which could be found liberals, pacifists and democrats to whom the Americans could talk."

He said such a ministry would need moral help from the British and material help from the Americans.

Alluding to Blum's month-long interim premiership late in 1946, between the provisional postwar regime and the Fourth Republic, Mollet said Socialists were "homesick" for the leadership which then brought a "psychological shock changing the atmosphere in France."

In his brief regime at that time Blum temporarily halted the upward spiral of prices and wages by ordering a 5 per cent cut in all prices. He also initiated the British-French alliance.

Mollet said Socialists realized the risks in Blum's taking the premiership because they did not wish to be "Kerensky's or Noskes."

His statement indicated he did not expect a Blum government either to capitulate to Communist forces, as in the case of Alexander Kerensky, who headed the Russian provisional regime before the Bolshevik revolution, or to suppress the Communists ruthlessly as did Gustav Noske, Minister of War in the German republic after the First World War.

Gen. Marshall Leaves Today

his first visit to Britain since he became Secretary of State, and the first, of course, since his sponsorship of the so-called Marshall Plan made his name a household word among the British people.

May Want to Wait

The Marshall Plan in fact is the single big chance since Moscow that may affect the prospects of the London meeting. One possibility is that the Russians and the western powers may wish to wait until next spring or summer, to see how the recovery program develops, before finally coming to grips on the German problem.

Secretary Marshall made it plain in Chicago Tuesday night that the recovery program, rather than any other issue, will determine the future of Soviet-American relations. His thesis was that if the Marshall Plan succeeds fast it will mean the end of the East-West struggle which has blocked diplomatic and economic progress since the end of the war.

At Moscow the United States stood firmly for (1) economic unity in Germany as a prerequisite to reparations; (2) a self-supporting Germany as a prerequisite to any reparations from current German production; (3) a democratic Germany organized in politically powerful states with a comparatively weak central government; (4) a peace conference procedure in which the smaller as well as the larger Allies should have a voice.

Doesn't Want Austria Stripped

The United States also stood firmly for an Austrian settlement that would not leave Austria stripped and impoverished by Soviet economic demands.

It will depend largely on the Russians whether the United States shifts any of these positions, and to what extent.

On one other issue, the Ruhr, the United States ran into French as well as Soviet opposition at Moscow. The French wanted international management of Ruhr mines and factories; Secretary Marshall was willing to see international allocation of Ruhr products, but wanted management left in German hands.

As for the Soviet demand for four-power control of the Ruhr, the American position was that this could be achieved only when there was economic unity and a measure of four-power control over all of Germany. This is still the American position, as far as could be determined yesterday.

Surprises are always possible and expected in negotiations with the Russians, and the London meeting is no exception. One rumored Russian move is a possible demand for the withdrawal of all occupying armies from Germany. The United States long ago proposed a progressive reduction in the size of occupying armies, but the Allied Control Council last summer failed to agree on the figures. Whether or not the Russians propose complete withdrawal, there is not the slightest evidence that the United States would agree.

Apart from the Council sessions themselves, Secretary Marshall's visit to London will give him his first opportunity in seven months to talk informally with Foreign Secretary Bevin and Foreign Minister Molotov. Bevin played a leading part in organizing the Paris meeting of 16 European nations last summer, and undoubtedly will want to discuss issues of European recovery with the Secretary.

January Grain Export Quotas Upped Again to 960,500 Tons

Grain exports to food-deficit countries will be stepped up again in January, an announcement by the Department of Agriculture revealed last night.

Export quotas for January have been set at 960,500 long tons (35,946,000 bushels), as compared with 871,000 tons in December and 788,000 in November.

Overall shipments and allocations for the seven months of the crop year (July 1 to January 31) total 345,700,000 bushels of all grains. This is approximately 50 million bushels a month when supplemental allocations are counted, or at the rate of 600 million bushels for the year.

Goal Later Raised

Original export plans of the Cabinet Food Committee made up of Secretaries Anderson (Agriculture), Harriman (Commerce) and Marshall (State) called for total allocations for the year of 470 million bushels.

The goal was later raised to 570 million bushels by the Harriman Foreign Aid Committee—a goal approved by President Truman as necessary to avoid starvation.

To achieve this higher goal President Truman announced his food conservation program, and appointed the Citizens Food Committee, headed by Charles Luckman, to conduct it.

The present goal calls for exports of 500 million bushels of wheat and 70 million bushels of other grains.

January Allocation

So far, the department's report stated, provisions have been made for the shipment by January 31 of 281 million bushels of wheat and 64.7 million bushels of other grains.

The January allocation, although the largest since October, is still far below shipments earlier in the crop year. Exports in July reached the vast total of 1,960,000 long tons and in August 1,763,000 tons—both about twice as large.

The announcement revealed that enough grain has already been procured to meet the present rate of exports for almost two months beyond January 31. Government purchases since July already total 222 million bushels of wheat, flour amounting to 41,700,000 bushels more, and 32 million bushels of coarse grains.

Nations Listed for Aid

Total exports already made and to be made by January 31 by the Government total 246,100,000 bushels, of which 174,800,000 is wheat: 40,800,000 flour and 30,500,000 coarse grains. The remaining 99,600,000 bushels are commercial allocations, made up of 7,300,000 bushels of wheat, 58,100,000 bushels wheat flour and 34,200,000 bushels of coarse grains.

The January shipments will go to the following countries: American and British occupied zones in Germany, 203,000 tons; French zone in Germany, 29,000 tons; occupied zones in Japan and Ryukyus, 68,000 tons; Italy, 152,000 tons; France, 129,500 tons; Australia, 45,000 tons; Belgium, 31,500 tons: Brazil, 20,000 tons; China, 11,000 tons; Cuba, 16,000 tons; Greece, 45,000 tons; India, 37,500 tons; Mexico, 25,000 tons; Netherlands, 46,000 tons; Netherlands East Indies, 5000 tons; Philipines, 16,000 tons; Portugal, 14,500 tons; Switzerland, 12,000 tons; British Pacific zones, 12,000 tons, and miscellaneous, 42,500 tons.

Gas Kills 5 in Family

New Britain, Conn., Nov. 19 (AP). A mother and her four children were found dead today in the sealed kitchen of their home, and a medical examiner reported the case as one of suicide and murder by gas. The victims were Mrs. Helen Tynik, 32, Walter Tynik, jr., 5, John, 4, and Maryanna and Anne Marie, 2-year-old twins. The father, Walter Tynik, was at work.

of beverage alcohol. This group includes the "Big Four" of the industry, Hiram Walker, Schenley, Seagram and National Distillers, and several smaller Kentucky operators.

Last night it was reported that Luckman already had given a decisive "no" to the petition. However, with his departure scheduled for within a few days, it is probable the final decision will rest with Anderson.

Last night at Luckman's office, it was stated that announcement of his resignation, planned to be issued last night, was held up after his conference with the President pending another meeting.

The shutdown of the distilleries, agreed to as part of the food conservation program of the Citizens Food Committee, began October 25 for 60 days. The petition asks that the shutdown be reduced to only 30 days and that the "holiday" end next Wednesday.

The request asked that instead of a complete shutdown for the remaining 30 days that the plants be allowed to operate at 15 per cent of the capacity at which they were operating when the "holiday" went into effect.

More savings of grain would be accomplished by the reduced operations over an extended period than by a complete shutdown for the entire 60 days, the petitioners declare.

Meat, Grain Saving Termed Healthful

Cross Off Pie If You'd Be Dynamic, Nutrition Expert Tells G. W. Coeds

Save meat, save wheat, not only because they're needed for overseas relief, but also because it will help you stay healthy.

That is the conclusion of Dr. Irene Case Namur, pioneer in the field of nutritional biochemisary, who looks upon the food conservation program as an aid to keeping Americans healthy.

Dr. Namur declared yesterday that most persons past the age of 30 eat too much meat, wheat and starchy dishes, ignoring other foods in adequate supply which offer greater health.

Mrs. Namur, who was a major in the American Women's Hospital Reserve Corps during World War II as director of nutritional education, said that consumption of pie and pastry leads mainly to logginess and "brain fag."

Advises Skipping Pie

Yesterday Mrs. Namur told 200 George Washington University coeds gathered at Lisner Auditorium for a lecture on nutritional biochemistry to skip pie and cake at dinner if they wanted to be dynamic.

Active in her field for a quarter of a century, Dr. Namur said her research has convinced her that rich, starchy desserts often lead to blotchy complexions and a lack of alertness.

Another food on her blacklist is noodles, if consumed in quantity. She described a relative who partook heavily at a dinner and then complained of feeling groggy. This, she said, was an instance of a "noodle hangover."

Instead she recommended consumption of fruit juices and leafy vegetables to aid digestion and provide energy.

As a substitute for meat, she suggested eating dishes made from soy beans, peanuts and mushrooms. The GWU women were given copies of two recipes prepared by Dr. Namur for the preparation of a mock turkey roast and a soy bean loaf using vegetables and other foods in good supply.

The Greater Washington Area Council of the American Veterans Committee yesterday telegraphed President Truman its "wholehearted support" of his program for combatting inflation and aiding foreign relief.

The District Food Conservation Committee reported that distribution of food stickers was lagging since motorists felt it was illegal to paste them on rear windows.

James E. Colloflower, chairman, reminded residents that the District Commissioners permit placing of the "Save Wheat—Save Meat—Save the Peace" stickers on the lower right hand corners of auto rear windows from November 1, 1947, to January 1, 1948.

Scouts to Help

The committee also announced that Boy Scout Troop 98 of St. Anthony's Catholic Church and other scouts in the District are preparing to place food-saving placards in downtown stores and stickers in taxicabs starting Saturday morning.

Miss Anne McLean, secretary of the Washington Girl Scouts, said more than 250 posters were distributed in Anacostia, Chevy Chase and on Rhode Island ave. ne. last Saturday.

Meanwhile butter moved up 1¼ cents, wiping out Tuesday's 1-cent drop.

Geneva Tariff Pacts Raise Threat to Reciprocal Trade Act

By The Associated Press

A bitter fight on renewal of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act shaped up in Congress yesterday as Chairman Knutson (R., Minn.), of the House Ways and Means Committee, assailed the Geneva tariff agreements as threatening American living standards.

Representative Richard M. Simpson (R., Pa.) described the 23-nation trade pact, to become effective in part January 1, as "a calamity" that will put American industry's back to the wall when foreign imports flow in volume into domestic markets.

The Trade Agreements Act will expire in June, unless renewed. Written in 1934, under the sponsorship of former State Secretary Cordel Hull, it permits the executive branch to negotiate mutual tariff reductions with other nations.

Knutson declared in a formal statement:

"Every American farmer and laborer knows he can produce as much, or more, per man than any other nation on earth, but he also knows that his high living standards are definitely threatened when we throw our markets wide open to the products made by workers whose wage scale per day is little more than the amount paid per hour to American workmen.

Sees Public Aroused

"When the full meaning of these tariff cuts becomes apparent to the American public, the reaction is likely to prove interesting, if not disconcerting, to the do-gooders who have traded us off for very dubious and nebulous trade concessions that may never be realized."

Simpson, also a member of the committee that handles tariff law, informed newsmen he will seek an amendment requiring ratification by Congress before any trade treaty becomes effective. Friends of the reciprocal trade program previously have testified this would mean "log-rolling" and defeat for the trade pact negotiation principle.

Knutson, however, told reporters he knows no way by which Congress can keep the sweeping tariff reductions from taking effect. It was Simpson, who forecast a "tremendous fight" over renewing the reciprocal trade act.

The big postwar 23-nation agreement was announced Monday.

"Almost every industry in the United States will be affected," Knutson said. "Agriculture, mining, lumber, and a large number of manufacturing industries will find competitive imports arriving in every increasing volume as foreign nations invade our markets in increasing numbers and volume.

Congress Can't Act

hundreds of rates of duty, the State Department has attempted to tie the hands of Congress on rates of duty which were not cut, by binding them so that we will have to go through the unpleasant procedure of abrogating agreements before we can protect American agriculture and industry from the blighting invation of low wage scale competitive products.

(Editor's note: A "bound" tariff is one guaranteed against increase for the life of the agreement.)

"America, now paying the highest wage scale in the history of the world and, with living standards far above those of most other nations, is suddenly asked to compete on a practically free trade basis with the lower living standards and wages of the rest of the world."

If the reciprocal trade law were allowed to expire next June this would not mean an end to trade pacts then in force. The pacts, once agreed upon, usually run for three years, with either nation priviliged to withdraw upon due notice after that time.

Boy's Prize Steer Goes for $3000 But With Regrets

Timonium, Md., Nov. 19 (AP).—"I feel fine, but I'm going to miss him," said 12-year-old Maxwell Covington, jr., of Davidsonville, Md., as he watched his champion Aberdeen Angus steer start a one-way trip to an abattoir.

The purebred steer won the grand championship of its class at the Eastern National Livestock Show yesterday and was auctioned off today for $2.50 a pound, netting young Covington nearly $3000.

Eugene K. Denton of Flanders, N. J., one of the East's top Angus breeders, promised the boy the next purebred calf from her herd of 200.

The show, which closes Friday, attracted about 1500 stock of all breeds, valued at more than one million dollars.

Hearings Starting Tomorrow To By-Pass Rationing, Prices

not favor restoring price controls and rationing, even on a selective basis, but would be willing to "go all the way" with the President "if the situation gets out of hand."

It was learned that Dr. Charles O. Hardy, staff director of Taft's Joint Economic group, proposed serious consideration be given "deferred rationing" of meat, on a when-and-if necessary basis, in a confidential report to the joint committee last week.

Hardy's recommendations are said to have so closely approximated President Truman's later call for selective rationing of goods in short supply that committeemen have been ribbing him about it ever since. Senator Taft at the time declined to make Hardy's report public, on the ground it had not been approved by the committee.

Senator Ralph E. Flanders (R., Vt.), chairman of the Eastern subcommittee of Taft's group, also has called for a stand-by program to ration meat, if necessary.

Taft, however, in his radio reply to the President Monday night, attacked Mr. Truman's proposals for limited rationing and price ceilings as "totalitarian" and "police state" methods. Taft subsequently told newsmen credit and export controls are the two recommendations by Mr. Truman most likely to win approval by Congress. He said a modified rent control extension law might also be passed.

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson will be the first Administration witness before the committee at 2 p. m. tomorrow.

Taft said the hearings will deal with six points of Mr. Truman's 10-point program. They are proposals to:

1. Restore consumer credit controls and restrain creation of inflationary bank credit.
2. Authorize regulation of speculative trading on the commodity exchanges.
3. Extend and strengthen export controls.
4. Authorize measures to induce marketing of livestock and poultry at weights and grades which encourage most efficient use of grain.
5. Enable the Agriculture Department to expand its program of encouraging conservation practices, and authorize measures aimed at boosting food production abroad.
6. Authorize allocation and inventory control of scarce commodities which have a basic effect on the cost of living or industrial production.

Taft indicated these two additional points in Mr. Truman's program would be handled by standing committees of the Senate:

1. To extend authority to allocate facilities; and
2. To extend and strengthen rent control.

He left it open as to whether his joint committee or standing committees will take up the matter of price-wage controls and rationing after the regular session of Congress opens in January.

Taft said heads of Anderson's various bureaus will appear before the committee Monday.

Witnesses scheduled after them are: Marriner Eccles, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board; possibly Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder; Secretary of Commerce Averell Harriman, and Edwin G. Nourse, chairman of the President's Economic Council.

The Senator said the Economic Committee had considered the possibility of holding joint sessions with the Senate and House Banking Committees, but has decided this would be impractical.

Senate Committee Votes Full Amount of Stopgap Aid

amount asked. But it wrote in a qualification.

"This act, however," it said, "shall not imply any obligation to give assistance to any of the countries mentioned nor shall it imply or guaarntee the availability of any specific commodities."

Vandenberg termed this an "answer to criticism that our own economy is in short supply" of some of the commodities the three countries require.

Representative Christian A. Herter (R., Mass.), head of the special House foreign aid group, recently urged such a clause. Noting that United States wheat supplies may fall short of our own and Italian needs, Herter said it would be "cruel" to promise Europe specific goods we could not deliver.

Another amendment specified that no more than 25 per cent of the funds be used to purchase supplies outside of the United States. This liberalized the 6 per cent limitation in the present law. To safeguard short United States supplies, increasing stress was laid on "off-shore" purchasing throughout the recent hearings.

In line with this altered policy, another amendment by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge (R., Mass.) called for procurement of petroleum and petroleum products from outside this country "to the maximum extent practicable."

Checks to Be Made

A close tab on distribution of supplies, full publicity of aid received, and maximum effort by recipients to help themselves were underlined in other amendments.

To the already long list of things countries on the receiving end will be asked to do, in agreements to be negotiated by the State Department, the committee added these stipulations:

Inform ultimate consumers of the purpose, source, character and amounts of commodities we make available.

Make such goods as are sold available to consumers "at reasonable prices."

Shoot for maximum production locally of supplies.

Ban export of relief commodities or the same goods locally produced.

Permit United States representatives to observe and report on distribution of aid supplies.

Agree to deposit in a special account amounts received in local currency from sale of relief supplies. This account would become a revolving fund within the country for relief, work relief and other agreed purposes, including local currency aid expenses of the United States.

The State Department's own proposals that relief goods carry a United States label and recipient countries make "efficient use" of them were likewise approved.

One amendment exempted Austria from United States supervision of actual distribution if the President finds these supplies "are being distributed under control systems embodied in agreements between the High Commissioner and the other occupying authorities or the Austrian government."

This amendment would permit our commanding general in Austria to make agreements covering distribution in the Russian-occupied zone. Legislators recently returned from Austria say relief supplies are not entering the Russian-occupied zone, since American supervision is not permitted. In turn, Russian authorities are not permitting foodstuffs produced in the Russian-occupied zone to move out of it to other sections of Austria that normally buy it.

The bill empowers the President to terminate relief shipments to any country if:

1. The recipient country does not live up to its agreement, or
2. By reasons of changed conditions, assistance is "no longer necessary or desirable."

In addition, the bill directs the President to "encourage other countries to make available to recipient countries such assistance as they may be able to furnish."

King Gives Future Son-in-Law a Dukedom, Restores Him to Royal Rank, Knights Him

London, Nov. 19 (AP).—King George VI tonight awarded the dukedom of Edinburgh to Lieut. Philip Mountbatten and decreed he shall be known henceforth as "His Royal Highness."

Thus it will be "His Royal Highness, the Duke of Edinburgh," who will be wed tomorrow to Princess Elizabeth, heiress-presumptive to the throne of England.

Restoring Philip to the royal rank he renounced when he surrendered the princedoms of Denmark and Greece to take British citizenship, the King also made Philip the Earl of Merioneth and Baron Greenwich.

Simultaneously the King awarded Philip the Order of the Garter, one of the United Kingdom's highest decorations, and one which the princess received only a short time ago.

He was also invested as a knight. Kneeling before his future father-in-law in the privacy of Buckingham Palace, he was touched on the shoulder by a naked blade held by the sovereign.

None of Philip's titles carries any income or property.

The King's decision to prefix "his royal highness" was a surprise to most well-informed persons at court. They had expected Philip would be given a princedom as well as a dukedom, which would have given him a status closer to that of his bride.

The Dukedom of Edinburgh, one of the kingdom's highest ducal titles, was originally created in 1764 for Prince William Henry, whose elder brother became King George III, monarch at the time of the American Revolution.

Two other men have held the dukedom since then. Prince William Henry's son, William Frederick, succeeded him in 1805. He died without issue in 1834 and the dukedom remained dormant 34 years. In 1865 Queen Victoria, great-great-grandmother of Philip and Elizabeth, granted it to her second son, Prince Alfred. He died in 1900. There was no successor, since Alfred's son had died the previous year.

The choice of Edinburgh was a gesture of the Scottish people, whose loyalty is strengthened by the Scottish blood of Queen Elizabeth.

streets leading to the palace from the Mall, down which Princess Elizabeth will ride tomorrow to the abbey.

Everywhere around the palace and the abbey workmen were still busy putting final touches on decorations.

The crowds were gathering fast around the places where the wedding scenes will take place, so I made my way up to the shopping section to visit a London department store.

It didn't take me long to find out that clothes rationing here is very rigid. You are allowed an average of 40 coupons a year. One topcoat will take 18 of those coupons, 7 for shoes and 7 for some dresses. Three coupons are required for full-fashioned stockings, which leaves you very little for any lingerie or even a handkerchief. Hats and handbags are not on coupons.

There are ample stocks of clothing in the shops, it seemed to me, including everything from fur coats to beautiful evening dresses with silver and gold sandals to match. I passed many men's stores whose window displays included very fashionable styles of coats, hats, shirts, dressing gowns and beautiful leather shoes.

If it were not for the coupons I would take my husband a complete wardrobe, including the very narrow brimmed hats which he likes very much.

Buys Husband a Pipe

I was, however, able to buy him a handsome briar pipe; not very expensive, but what I think he likes exactly. Tomorrow I hope to get him some tobacco to go with it.

After I looked at the beautiful clothes, which I could not buy without coupons, I tore myself away to see a grocery store.

Food rationing, I found is as rigid as the clothes rationing. There is a good variety of fresh vegetables except potatoes which are rationed an average of 3 pounds per adult per week; children 1½ pounds.

The vegetables are just as fresh and in abundance as they are in the States and they are the same types of vegetables, which helps matters a lot. I saw one cabbage which I weighed and priced. It amounted in our money to 50 cents, but the prices vary according to size.

There was also a green bell-pepper that came to $1.76. It's a luxury that not many middle-class people spend their money on.

Meat is the worst problem. The weekly ration is 20 cents worth and you have to take what the store is selling that week, mainly beef or lamb.

Pork and veal are very scarce. The bacon ration is 1 ounce per week, which is equivalent to one strip of bacon at home here.

One Egg Per Week

Eggs are rationed to one per week if they arrive in time for sale and if your egg is bad, it's to bad. There are some local stores that will reimburse you if you care to take your bad egg back to them.

The sweet ration, which consists of sweets in general, averages one pound per month but it will be reduced in January to 12 ounces per month. You get four coupons, each valid for four ounces.

Canned fruits are on the points system. You are allowed 28 points a month but a can of fruit costs 20 points leaving eight for the purchase of dried fruit, biscuits, cereals, dried eggs and canned fish. A large tin of red salmon costs 28 points.

One thing that should impress America is the fact that the coffee is not rationed, provided you like it with very little sugar which is rationed to half a pound a week. Sugar is as precious here as America's freedom is to her and that's mighty precious.

GOING-AWAY ENSEMBLE,

white veil of tulle will be clasped in place with a tiara of pearls and diamonds.

Her wedding shoes are one piece self-lined satin sandals, made of the same materials as her gown, with reverse folds on the instep and across the front. A silver buckle, studded with tiny pearls, fastens them.

Her eight bridesmaids all will be dressed in gowns of ivory silk tulle, with tight bodices shirred down the front and billowing skirts embroidered with clusters of mock-orange flowers in applique satin to follow the effect created on the princess' train.

Elizabeth's going-away dress is a simple style with a cross-over bodice draped to a bow on the left hip and with three large buttons along the left side. The skirt is made full with three insert panels.

Over it she will have a traveling coat of velour, milled of Yorkshire wool, with soft revers and rounded shoulders. Inset bands across the front are held with three buttons, the lowest at the waistline permitting the coat skirt to flare moderately.

Her shoes are step-in syle, made of elasticized suede dyed to the same "love-in-the-mist" shades as the rest of her costume. The outside of the shoes is made with a short counter, leaving them open to the sole for a length more than an inch.

Her matching hat of mist-blue felt is trimmed with a large ostrich pompon and curved quills in two tones of blue.

Queen's Sister-in-Law Robbed While at Party

London, Nov. 19 (U.P.).—Unromantic burglars broke into the home of Mrs. John Bowes-Lyon, sister-in-law of Queen Elizabeth, during the early hours of this morning and took a tiara and a necklace valued at $8000 to $12,000. Both were heirlooms.

Mrs. Bowes-Lyon said that after she and her daughter Diana, who is to be one of Princess Elizabeth's bridesmaids, arrived late last night from a Buckingham Palace party, she put the jewelry in her dressing room adjoining her bedroom in her West End home.

Elizabeth Nears Exhaustion as Rehearsal, Ball, Arrival of Gown Keep Her Moving

London, Nov. 19 (U.P.).—Princess Elizabeth and her bridegroom of tomorrow, Philip Mountbatten, now "His Royal Highness, the Duke of Edinburgh," went through a one-hour rehearsal tonight, behind the locked doors of Westminster Abbey, of the wedding ceremony which takes place at 11:30 a. m. tomorrow.

The princess—nearing exhaustion—the new Duke, the King, the Queen, the Archbishop of Canterbury, the best man, Princess Margaret and the rest of the bridesmaids, the pages, clergy, lay officials and choir went again and again through the roles they will perform tomorrow on an almost split-second schedule.

Elizabeth and the duke drove to the abbey together for the rehearsal, cheered by thousands massed outside shouting "God bless you!" and "Good luck!" Elizabeth wore a fur jacket. The bridegroom wore his navy uniform. Elizabeth paused under the canopy leading from the driveway into the abbey and smiled. The new duke saluted, as he did to cheers along the route from St. James's palace.

The rehearsal was to have taken two hours. It went off so smoothly that it lasted just under one.

The dean of Westminster met the royal party at the west door as he will tomorrow. The King with Elizabeth on his arm walked along the 100-yard way to the high altar on the royal-red carpet, covered until tomorrow by a white cloth. The precentor pointed out to the bridegroom the poets' corner door through which he will enter tomorrow. The princess had the star role and her bridegroom sat with Queen Elizabeth to watch most of the rehearsal. After the royal party left, abbey officials took the parts of the royal principals while the music was played over.

Buckingham Palace was floodlighted when the royal party returned there.

A great roar went up from 15,000 people when the King, the Queen, the bridal couple and Princess Margaret appeared on a balcony before the last dinner Elizabeth will eat as an unmarried woman. She, the Queen and Princess Margaret wore evening dress, the King and the new duke naval dinner dress with black bow ties. The King, the Queen and Margaret went inside first, leaving Elizabeth and the duke, arm in arm, waving to the cheering crowd.

The bridegroom went to Kensington Palace to spend his last bachelor night with his grandmother Princess Andrew of Greece.

Princess Elizabeth, again after only a few hours sleep, was finding it hard to keep up her exhausting pre-marital schedule. After she danced the last dance at a palace ball in the early hours of the morning, she told friends she was very tired, and could not keep any but the most urgent engagements today. But when the small green truck delivering her wedding gown arrived, she got up earlier than she had planned.

London, as the wedding hour approached, succumbed fully to a shouting celebrating frenzy of excitement in anticipation of its biggest show since King George's coronation in 1937.

At dusk Londoners and visitors, braving a chill night and the threat of rain, began lining up armed with blankets, bedding, chairs, flasks and vacuum bottles along the wedding procession route.

...ted Writers Hurt Movies, Johnston Says

New York, Nov. 19 (AP).—Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association of America, said tonight the 10 Hollywood figures who declined to answer questions of the House Un-American Activities Committee did "a tremendous disservice to the industry."

"I believe their actions hurt the cause of democracy immeasurably," he told the Picture Pioneers, an association of men who have been in the film industry 25 years.

"I believe they played into the hands of extremists who are all too willing to confuse the honest progressive with the dishonest Red. And they fed fuel to the fires of hysteria.

"There is no place in Hollywood for anyone who is subversive or disloyal to his country."

Johnston today called a meeting of representatives of motion picture companies for next Monday to consider "alleged subversive and disloyal activities" of persons connected with the industry.

Top executives and production chiefs of the major film production companies will attend the meeting here to reexamine the issue of alleged Communist penetration of Hollywood, the announcement said.

Johnston said the industry's position with respect to the 10 men had been misunderstood by some people.

"We did not defend them," he asserted. "We do not defend them now. On the contrary, we believe that they have done a tremendous disservice to the industry which has given them so much in material rewards and in opportunity to exercise their talents.

"Their refusal to stand up and be counted for whatever they are, could only result in a confusion of the issues before the committee—and it did."

He added that the 10 men, who were cited for contempt, "may have had a right to challenge the committee as they did" on constitutional grounds, but commented that this would have to be tested in the courts.

"There is no subversive propaganda on the American screen and there isn't going to be," he insisted.

"In the final analysis," he said, "Government must adopt a national policy with respect to the employment of Communists in private industry. But labor and management must not shirk their responsibilities by waiting for Government to act . . .

Finland Gets Loan To Buy Raw Cotton

The government's Export-Import Bank yesterday granted a five million-dollar credit to the Bank of Finland for the purchase of American raw cotton.

This makes the third cotton credit extended to Finland by the bank. The first five million dollars was granted December 12, 1945, and $1,300,000 of it already has been repaid, the bank said. The second credit, two million dollars, was extended last April 2.

Subcommittee to Wind Up Red Probe in Hollywood

The House Un-American Activities Committee plans to wind up its investigation of communism in Hollywood by sending a subcommittee to the movie capital, perhaps in January.

Committee officials said a date for the West Coast hearings has not been set.

The subcommittee, they said, expects to question witnesses left over from hearings held here in Washington last month.

Disloyalty Figures Don't Jibe

of the attacks, but officers close to him said he was referring to the Communists.

"You can read them in the Daily Worker every day," one of them said. "The original Communist manifesto called for undermining the Army's prestige in a capitalist nation, and they've never changed."

Lack of Applicants

General Eddy said that many West Point appointments went unfilled this year due to a lack of applicants of the high standards required, and called upon the association to combat the efforts to discredit the military profession.

In releasing the data on disloyalty discharges, Johnson pointed to the fact that the War Department once had over a million civilian employes and now the Army and Air Force have over 400,000. He declared that the small number reflected a high state of loyalty within the service.

Made by Flemming

The report last summer on the subject was made by Civil Service Commisioner Arthur S. Flemming to the House Civil Service Committee and covered other Government agencies. He quoted the War Department as stating it was impossible in the time allowed for compiling the data to get complete figures for the Army as a whole.

In one Army area during nine months 190 employes and 10 applicants had been "found ineligible for loyalty reasons" and let go or rejected, it was said. Fleming quoted the War Department as saying "this estimate" can be multiplied by four to be "reasonably accurate" for the Army as a whole.

Johnson pointed to a distinction between Army methods of handling such cases and those employed by the State Department, which is under another law.

The Army, he said, must take action under Public Law 808 of 1942 for summary dismissal of employes charged with disloyalty. Cases of "talkative drunks" and other undesirables are handled under long-standing Civil Service rules, he said.

Johnson explained the procedure as follows: (1) military intelligence first investigates a charge of disloyalty and if their report is unfavorable the matter is referred to the War Department; (2) the FBI then makes an exhaustive investigation; (3) if it reports "Communist affiliations and a pattern of conduct over a period of years" or other disloyal connections, the case goes to the Secretary of the Army for action.

If the Secretary orders dismissal, the employe is given a statement of the reasons in the letter of removal. Circular No. 17, detailing the procedure, says that this statement "shall be as extensive as security interests will permit and furnish the employe such information of the evidence against him as will provide him a fair chance to defend himself."

Tax Indictment Planned Against Meyers

exactly the same story, regardless of how ridiculous."

Lamarre has already publicly testified to how he "faked" income tax records on orders from Meyers to bear out the fiction that Lamarre was the real head of Aviation Electric Corp.

"He (Meyers) said the only reasonable explanation would be for me to say I'd spent the money recklessly, gambled it away, lost it on the races."

Lamarre, "dummy president" who was credited with an $18,000-a-year salary and actually got less than $3000, said the general "sat in my favorite chair" and dictated phoney letters to bear out his yarn.

Decided to Tell Truth

It was the "kickbacks" to Meyers from the witness' "executive salary" about which he has now testified, that the wartime procurement officer wanted to conceal, the witness said.

Lamarre said he decided to tell the truth after he had consulted with his attorney. Francis D. Flanagan, chief assistant counsel for the committee, had advised him, he said, that his story as told in closed sessions sounded unbelievable to members of the subcommittee.

Readnower told the committee that he had made up his mind to tell the entire truth from the start because the yarn the general had concocted sounded so "ridiculous."

He said he testified from the start that Meyers was the real owner of the Aviation Electric Corp. and collected all but a small fraction of the $15,000 salaries listed for his "dummy" vice president.

Salary "Kickbacks" Related

Readnower said the salary kickbacks continued even after he went into the Army in 1942. His salary, both "the executive salary" which went to Meyers and his own $100-a-month salary, continued even while he was in the Army, he declared.

He told how he indorsed a large number of blank checks at one time so that his "executive salary" could be cashed and transferred to Meyers while he was in the Army.

Once, Readnower told the committee, he had taken an envelope full of money, about $7000 to Meyers' apartment at Hotel 2400, and the general had given him $1000 out of it, as a salary increase. He paid his income taxes on it, Readnower testified.

Transferred to Meyers' Command

Later on, he said, after he was drafted into the Army Air Forces and made a corporal, he was suddenly transferred to Wright Field which was then commanded by Meyers

"Then he was your commanding officer?" queried Ferguson.

"Well, he was the commanding general of the field," replied Readnower, with a wry smile.

"Did you see him while you were stationed there?"

"Well, he met me in the hall and said 'hello,'" Readnower replied.

It was Lamarre who told the committee how the general by a single verbal order transformed Meyers did not disclose that he was contemplating matrimony at the time, Lamarre said. Instead, he told him that he had borrowed $20,000 from Cornutt and wanted to give him a job as a means of repayment.

The general represented Cornutt as a business executive with years of experienc in the railroad field, Lamarre said.

Later on, Cornutt, the witness testified, confessed that he had been driving a bus for the railroad, and could not keep books or function in an executive capacity. He finally wound up as a stockroom checker, still at the $12,000 a year salary, Lamarre declared.

a bus driver into a corporation vice president in charge of production at a salary of $12,000 a year.

Bus Driver Made "Executive"

Late in 1942, Lamarre testified, Meyers directed him to put R. A. Cornutt, whose actress-daughter, Ila Rae Cornutt, was to become the general's third wife a few weeks later, on the Aviation Electric Corp. payroll at $1000 a month.

Eisenhower to Get Checkup at Hospital

The Army announced yesterday that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, chief of staff, would enter Walter Reed Hospital today for a routine physical checkup.

Eisenhower, who is scheduled to doff his uniform next spring to become president of Columbia University, will remain in the hospital two or three days.

'Custom' Banned

Beheading Outlawed In Greece

Athens, Nov. 18 (AP).—Minister of public order Constantine Rentis said today that a few isolated cases of decapitation had been reported in Greek warfare recently and that strict orders had been issued against the "old custom."

Head chopping was first practiced in Greece during the revolt against the Turkish Empire, more than 100 years ago.

A display of heads of enemy chieftains in the days of the Turkish revolt was considered concrete proof of triumph.

Greek guerillas also have been practicing decapitation, particularly against gendarmes and soldiers who have acquired fame as fighters against the rebels.

Guerillas Lose 40 In Salonika Clashes

Athens, Nov. 19 (U.P.).—Press dispatches from Salonika today said that guerillas lost 40 killed, 100 wounded and 16 captured in clashes with government troops near Doliana, northeast of Salonika.

Other army units advancing north of Metsovo were said to have found the bodies of 100 guerillas killed by aerial, rocket-strafing attacks.

New Trial Refused Condemned Slayer

The Court of Appeals yesterday denied Lee Rook, 60, of 517 H st. nw., a new trial in the slaying of Harry Lee, 40, of 4530 Georgia ave. nw.

Originally sentenced to die July 11, Food has been granted two stays. He is scheduled to die January 30.

Lee was stabbed to death at Georgia ave. and Buchanan st. nw., on September 22, 1946.

Hospital Contract Proteste

Richmond, Va., Nov. 19 (AP).—Early action by the State Hospital board on a protest against the manner in which a three-million-dollar contract at a $47,000 fee for building at Eastern State Hospital was awarded was indicated today by State Senator Morton G. Goode of Dinwiddie, chairman of the board.

Suicide Closes Shoplifting Case Against D. C. Man

Death cleared a man of shoplifting charges in Municipal Court yesterday.

When the name of Chester C. Wall, 39, of 3806 Foote pl. ne., was called to answer to charges of taking clothing from the Hecht Co., police explained Wall took his own life Saturday.

Homicide squad members said Wall posted $25 collateral on the charge Saturday afternoon, returned to his home and took poison.

Play at Greenbelt

The Greenbelt (Md.) High School senior class will present "Dear Ruth" in the Greenbelt Community Auditorium at 8 tonight. First performance of the play, which is directed by Mrs. Dorothea Dawson, was given last night.

Supervisor to Speak

Miss Diana Carroll, national drama supervisor, to the Young Women's Christian Association of Great Britain, will lecture at the play production class of George Washington University at 6:10 p. m. today in Studio F of Lisner Auditorium.

Post Writer Won't Disclose 'Source'

Alfred Friendly, a Washington Post reporter, refused yesterday to tell Representative Hoffman (R., Mich.) the source of his report of an Indiana labor conciliation meeting which The Post published November 9.

Acting as chairman of a House Labor subcommittee, Hoffman told Friendly he would not press the question "because it might interfere with your ability to earn a livelihood."

"It certainly would" Friendly laughed.

The Friendly story concerned a Federal Mediation and concivilation Service meeting in Michigan City, Ind., October 28 to discuss a 12-week strike at the Joy Manufacturing Co.

Friendly reported that Hoffman insisted on attending the conciliation meeting, and "took it over."

Hoffman asked Friendly where the record of the Michigan City meeting indicates that Hoffman "took it over."

"In my opinion, your very presence there served to divert the course of the meeting," Friendly replied. "The presence of any outsider would be equivalent to taking over.

"I'll stand on what I wrote there."

"What was the source of your information? You weren't there?"

"I'd like not to be asked to answer that question," Friendly said.

"In other words," Hoffman continued, "you are going to rely on the usual reporter's refusal to disclose his sources when he is called on to back up a story. You prefer not to tell who told you."

"That's right," Friendly said.

Md. Builder Faces Trial for Faulty Veteran Homes

Baltimore, Nov. 19 (AP).—The Federal Housing Expediter's office announced today it had recommended criminal prosecution of a Baltimore builder of homes for veterans who complained of faulty construction.

Morris Verner, chief of the compliance division, reported "at least one case involving a builder of veterans' homes in Baltimore has been referred to the Justice Department with a recommendation that criminal action be taken."

Verner declined to identify the builder. He said he had discussed the possibility of similar action against several other building firms investigated by his office.

Verner said 49 building concerns in Baltimore had been investigated since an estimated 2000 complaints were received from veterans who charged their finished homes did not meet Government specifications.

CAA Sets Aside $17,500 For W. Va. Airport

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 19.—M ayor Paul B. Martin said today he had been informed hte Civil Aeronautics Administration had conditionally set aside $17,500 for allocation toward construction of an administration building at the Martinsburg Municipal Airport.

Martin said Representative Snyder (R., W. Va.) had told city officials th emoney would become available when the CAA approved plans and specifications for the structure, and assurances were given the Federal agency that matching funds were available from the city.

The municipal treasury now has approximately $12,000 in matching funds, Martin reported.

Williamsburg Official To Aid Bar Harbor Plan

Williamsburg, Va., Nov. 18 (AP).—Colonial Williamsburg, the organization which John D. Rockefeller, jr., set up to restore thise historic city to its eighteenth century appearance, has offered its advice in formulating plans for rebuilding the hotels at Bar Harbor, Me., recently destroyed by fire.

In response to a request for such assistance John D. Green, vice president of Williamsburg Restoration, Inc., and general manager of hotels here, will leave for Bar Harbor November 23 for conference with representatives of civic organizations and others interested in rebuilding the city.

D. C., Maryland CIO Open Convention Today

Baltimore, Nov. 19 (AP).— Two hundred delegates are expected to attend a three-day convention of the CIO Maryland and District of Columbia Industrial Union Council opening here tomorrow.

Discussion of policies out-lined at the recent CIO national convention in Boston comprises the main business.

Speakers will include Russell S. Davis, chairman of the Maryland Employment Security Board, Allan S. Haywood, CIO organization director, Mayor D'Alsandro of Baltimore and Governor Lane.

Goucher Girls, Middies Plan Joint Recital

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 19 (AP).—Seventy feminine voices of the Goucher College choir will combine with the deeper tones of 124 midshipmen in a joint recital of Handel's "Messiah" in the Naval Academy chapel, December 13 and 14.

The concert was proposed by Midshipman Charles Dobony of Buffalo, N. Y., first tenor in the academy choir. He formerly attended Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where he sang in a glee club recital of the "Messiah" with the choir of a girl's school.

Non-Farm Employment at New High

Nonfarm employment reached the highest levels in American history last month, Ewan Clague, Commissioner of Labor Statistics, reported yesterday.

The figures showed 43,257,000 persons employed in nonagricultural jobs in October, a gain of 200,000 above the previous month and almost 1,200,000 above October a year ago.

Seasonal trends should make the nonfarm employment figures for November and December even higher, Clague said.

The high spot in the picture, BLS figures indicated, was the "remarkable home-building boom" which was able to continue into last month because of favorable weather.

In that month, construction of 92,000 new homes was begun, despite the approach of winter. The BLS and the Commerce Department, in a joint forecast, estimate that about 860,000 new homes will be started this year, and nearly one million in 1948. This compares with 937,000 starts in the record year of 1925.

"The estimated volume for next year is conservative," Clague said, "in view of the industry's productive capacity and the available supply of raw materials and labor."

Unemployment is at a peacetime low, BLS data indicated. Clague said that there were only about 1,750,000 idle.

He estimated the Nation's total working force at about 60,900,000.

Post Writer Won't Disclose 'Source'

Alfred Friendly, a Washington Post reporter, refused yesterday to tell Representative Hoffman (R., Mich.) the source of his report of an Indiana labor conciliation meeting which The Post published November 9.

Acting as chairman of a House Labor subcommittee, Hoffman told Friendly he would not press the question "because it might interfere with your ability to earn a livelihood."

"It certainly would" Friendly laughed.

The Friendly story concerned a Federal Mediation and concivilation Service meeting in Michigan City, Ind., October 28 to discuss a 12-week strike at the Joy Manufacturing Co.

Friendly reported that Hoffman insisted on attending the conciliation meeting, and "took it over."

Hoffman asked Friendly where the record of the Michigan City meeting indicates that Hoffman "took it over."

"In my opinion, your very presence there served to divert the course of the meeting," Friendly replied. "The presence of any outsider would be equivalent to taking over.

"I'll stand on what I wrote there."

"What was the source of your information? You weren't there?"

"I'd like not to be asked to answer that question," Friendly said.

"In other words," Hoffman continued, "you are going to rely on the usual reporter's refusal to disclose his sources when he is called on to back up a story. You prefer not to tell who told you."

"That's right," Friendly said.

Md. Builder Faces Trial for Faulty Veteran Homes

Baltimore, Nov. 19 (AP).—The Federal Housing Expediter's office announced today it had recommended criminal prosecution of a Baltimore builder of homes for veterans who complained of faulty construction.

Morris Verner, chief of the compliance division, reported "at least one case involving a builder of veterans' homes in Baltimore has been referred to the Justice Department with a recommendation that criminal action be taken."

Verner declined to identify the builder. He said he had discussed the possibility of similar action against several other building firms investigated by his office.

Verner said 49 building concerns in Baltimore had been investigated since an estimated 2000 complaints were received from veterans who charged their finished homes did not meet Government specifications.

CAA Sets Aside $17,500 For W. Va. Airport

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 19.—Mayor Paul B. Martin said today he had been informed hte Civil Aeronautics Administration had conditionally set aside $17,500 for allocation toward construction of an administration building at the Martinsburg Municipal Airport.

Martin said Representative Snyder (R., W. Va.) had told city officials th emoney would become available when the CAA approved plans and specifications for the structure, and assurances were given the Federal agency that matching funds were available from the city.

The municipal treasury now has approximately $12,000 in matching funds, Martin reported.

Williamsburg Official To Aid Bar Harbor Plan

Williamsburg, Va., Nov. 18 (AP).—Colonial Williamsburg, the organization which John D. Rockefeller, jr., set up to restore thise historic city to its eighteenth century appearance, has offered its advice in formulating plans for rebuilding the hotels at Bar Harbor, Me., recently destroyed by fire.

In response to a request for such assistance John D. Green, vice president of Williamsburg Restoration, Inc., and general manager of hotels here, will leave for Bar Harbor November 23 for conference with representatives of civic organizations and others interested in rebuilding the city.

D. C., Maryland CIO Open Convention Today

Baltimore, Nov. 19 (AP).— Two hundred delegates are expected to attend a three-day convention of the CIO Maryland and District of Columbia Industrial Union Council opening here tomorrow.

Discussion of policies out-lined at the recent CIO national convention in Boston comprises the main business.

Speakers will include Russell S. Davis, chairman of the Maryland Employment Security Board, Allan S. Haywood, CIO organization director, Mayor D'Alsandro of Baltimore and Governor Lane.

Goucher Girls, Middies Plan Joint Recital

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 19 (AP).—Seventy feminine voices of the Goucher College choir will combine with the deeper tones of 124 midshipmen in a joint recital of Handel's "Messiah" in the Naval Academy chapel, December 13 and 14.

The concert was proposed by Midshipman Charles Dobony of Buffalo, N. Y., first tenor in the academy choir. He formerly attended Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where he sang in a glee club recital of the "Messiah" with the choir of a girl's school.

Non-Farm Employment at New High

Nonfarm employment reached the highest levels in American history last month, Ewan Clague, Commissioner of Labor Statistics, reported yesterday.

The figures showed 43,257,000 persons employed in nonagricultural jobs in October, a gain of 200,000 above the previous month and almost 1,200,000 above October a year ago.

Seasonal trends should make the nonfarm employment figures for November and December even higher, Clague said.

The high spot in the picture, BLS figures indicated, was the "remarkable home-building boom" which was able to continue into last month because of favorable weather.

In that month, construction of 92,000 new homes was begun, despite the approach of winter. The BLS and the Commerce Department, in a joint forecast, estimate that about 860,000 new homes will be started this year, and nearly one million in 1948. This compares with 937,000 starts in the record year of 1925.

"The estimated volume for next year is conservative," Clague said, "in view of the industry's productive capacity and the available supply of raw materials and labor."

Unemployment is at a peacetime low, BLS data indicated. Clague said that there were only about 1,750,000 idle.

He estimated the Nation's total working force at about 60,900,000.

Britain's Big Day

Most of us are glad today not only for the happiness of Princess Elizabeth but also for that of Britain. For a time at least the hard-pressed British people are forgetting their troubles to take a fling at romance. Flags are flying, Whitehall and the Mall are draped in bunting, Westminster Abbey's red carpets are unrolled. Foreign royalty, including four Kings, five Queens, ten princes and princesses, is assembled in London. It is like the good old days when crowns and nations were secure—or at least thought they were.

The British are indeed fortunate in having this romantic interlude to lift up their spirits. For even more austere days are ahead for them. The plain speaking Sir Stafford Cripps, new Chancellor of the Exchequer, is expected to announce an even stricter regime of living, with more sacrifice and sweat. The new tax program will further flatten pocketbooks through its sales levies, making even the workingman's beer more costly. More parliamentary crises threaten. But—Britishers can think about those things tomorrow. Today the streets of London are crowd-filled and gay, the royal procession moves in all its historic splendor, and wedding bells ring out their eternal promise of bliss.

America's Motives

The speech delivered Tuesday night at Chicago by Secretary of State Marshall will certainly be characterized in Moscow as the worst sort of warmongering. This is because no rational reply to it can be contrived. The speech was, of course, a pacific speech, for all its vigor and directness. It was not a placatory speech; the Secretary is plainly past the point of believing that the Russians can be dealt with by conciliation. Yet it was a pacific speech in the genuine sense that it probed the conflict between Russia and the United States with candor and set forth the policy of our own Government in terms that cannot be misunderstood.

In discussing the American attitude toward Russia, Mr. Marshall pointed out what the Russians might do well to ponder—the tragic dissipation of the immense reservoir of good will they won here during the war. In the summer of 1945, the Secretary observed, "it was a fact that the people of the United States had as high a regard, or I might better put it, appreciation, for the Soviet people and their sacrifices, and for the Soviet army and its leaders, as they held for any other people in the world." The reason for the change of this feeling, he said bluntly, "is that from the termination of hostilities down to the present time the Soviet government has consistently followed a course which was bound to arouse the resentment of our people . . . The people of this country are God-fearing people. They have been very patient in their attitude toward misrepresentation of their actions and motives when their only purpose has been to help the other fellow."

The Secretary began his speech with a masterly analysis of the interdependence of the nations constituting the European community and of the American relation to that community. We are, he declared, a part of the civilization of Europe, and our security is greatly conditioned by "the stabilizing influence which Europe as a concert of independent nations exercised on the remainder of the world." The liberation of Europe from Nazi tyranny was accomplished in the main by three powers none of which can be strictly classed as a continental European state. "The efforts of two of these powers," the Secretary noted, "have been consistently directed since the military victory toward the restoration of the European community to its former status . . . Unfortunately, it has become apparent that the third great power which contributed so much to the common victory evidently does not share that purpose."

Mr. Marshall takes the view that "it is this divergence of purpose concerning the future of Europe which is the cause of many of the present differences between the United States and Soviet Russia. The divergence is not due to any direct clash between the national interests of these powers." There is a circularity of thought here which seems confusing. This divergence is of itself, we should suppose, the expression of a clash of interests. "The near collapse of Europe," said the Secretary, "has left weakness where once there was strength and has created in effect a political and economic vacuum. It is certainly not our purpose to exploit the situation by filling the vacuum with American power . . . The American proposal for assistance to Europe is directed toward production, construction and recovery." If it succeeds, the Secretary believes that the conflict between ourselves and the Russians will lessen. One may fairly say, indeed, that its success is indispensable not only to the reestablishment of an orderly European community but to the reestablishment of an orderly world.

Food Inventory

Hungry and beleaguered Europe is in danger of being drowned in statistics. In contrast to the timely vote yesterday by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Senator Bridges insists that the Appropriations Committee inventory American food-exporting ability as a preliminary step to action on interim aid. That would be like requiring a lifeguard to undergo a physical examination before rescuing a victim going down for the third time. We already know, from the Krug, Harriman and other reports, about as much as we are likely to learn from another investigation concerning our export capacity. We also know that we are virtually the only remaining source of succor for Europe, and that the need is now, not next year or even three months hence.

Wheat is our main food export. The 500 million bushels which the Government is seeking to purchase for export will come out of the record 1947 crop of 1406 million bushels. What our export capacity will be in future years we shall not know until we know (1) the status of the 1948 wheat and other crops and (2) how much we are able to save by conservation. Obviously we cannot wait until next summer before sending aid. We do know—from the ample reports of the Department of Agriculture—that we cannot count on bumper crops to pull us through. With a normal wheat yield of around 890 million bushels (and with other crops normal), the Harriman report estimates our future grain available for export at between 300 and 400 million bushels annually.

Unless we are to turn a completely deaf ear to the needs of the world about us, it is apparent that we shall need extreme conservation measures to make our grain serve the best purpose. For instance, all the testimony is that we shall have an unusually low carryover this year. The prospects for even a normal crop next year are not bright. That is why we have urged that the Government be granted the broad powers requested by President Truman to allocate grain and to insure that it is used in its most efficient form, i. e., directly as human food. In these premises, to take one specific illustration, wheat cakes for breakfast instead of eggs and bacon, contrary to Senator Taft's argument, amounts to conservation.

We cannot cope with the grain emergency by reinvestigating it. Essentially what we must do is to weigh the price of conservation, which at the most will occasion us only some inconvenience, against the cost of inaction. The crisis is upon us. We cannot afford to rely on such formulas as that advanced by Representative August H. Andresen, which includes, among other points, praying for rain. Nor can we take refuge in Senator Bridges' explanation that he does not want the American people to be "stampeded into action" or short-changed. Where the people are likely to be short-changed is in the delusion that we can dally over the extension of aid and still expect it to do the maximum good. The time has come for decisions, not the same facts over and over again. Aid given now would be aid given thrice.

Communist Gamble

There can be no doubt that the strikes and riots in Italy and France are the result of direct orders issued by the Kremlin, and there is very little doubt that they are being directed by professionals especially assigned to the work. There is also some reason to believe that the decision to begin the disturbances was taken over the advice of the nominal Communist leaders in both countries. Anyway, the purpose is also plain: the Communists, having failed to obtain control of the governments by parliamentary means, are seeking to create a situation sufficiently chaotic to make possible a forcible seizure of power.

It is a desperate gamble—a sort of double-or-nothing play—whereby the Russians hope to recover their diminishing prestige, and thereby to conceal, even from themselves, the fact of their own stupidity and diplomatic ineptitude. It was the revolutionary strategists of the Kremlin and no others who made probable the return to power of General de Gaulle. It is they who in Italy as elsewhere have served to strengthen the Right at the expense of the Center, thereby illustrating how completely the Marxist mind can be blinded to realities by its own dialectic.

At this writing it appears that all the Communists have achieved by the disorders in France is to transfer the triumph of General de Gaulle from the realm of probability to that of certainty. The longer the disorders continue, the stronger will be the demand for a vigorous government to cope with them. The Communists, acting on their instructions from Moscow, have in effect challenged the French people to choose between them and M. de Gaulle. In Italy the situation is somewhat analogous; but there, Premier de Gasperi has met the crisis with a greater show of vigor than M. Ramadier, with his precarious parliamentary support, has been capable of.

At the Congress of the Christian Democratic Party in Rome, Signor de Gasperi announced that those who have resorted to violence will discover that they have challenged a resourceful and resolute government. At the same time he reaffirmed his loyalty to democratic and republican principles. Nevertheless, the fact that the Communist demonstrations have been directed particularly against the quasi-fascist party of the common man, shows in which direction they perceive the trend.

The moral is of course that all constitutional government must be predicated upon the assumption of a certain order in the state. To disrupt this order is to deliver the state into the hands of the extremists. This much at least the Communists understand perfectly. And since their strategy is dictated wholly by the Russian interest, that is, in the hope of defeating the Truman Doctrine and the Marshall Plan, it is easy to perceive the logic in it. Thus the first hope of the Kremlin is that its agents will be able to seize power; but failing that, the second hope is that, by destroying the moderate parties, they will force the United States into reliance upon reactionaries.

Historian's Progress

Prof. William A. Langer of Harvard University in a letter recently published on this page expressed the confidence that the Department of State intends to follow an utterly impartial policy in the matter of permitting "qualified scholars" to have access to historical documents relating to the recent war. On this point, Prof. Charles A. Beard, replying to Dr. Langer, observed that "we shall see what we shall see."

Well, on the same day that Professor Beard wrote this Secretary Marshall announced that at least one very important group of these documents is soon to be made public. These are the documents from the Nazi archives which were captured by the American and British armies. The documents, said the Secretary, are being edited by a group of British and American historians, with Prof. Raymond Sontag of the University of California as editor in chief and Prof. Malcolm Carroll of Duke University as assistant editor. The first set of volumes, according to Secretary Marshall, will appear early next year. At the same time, General Marshall denied that any part of these documents, which are now in Berlin, had been made available to German newspapers, as was recently inferred from called accounts of a recent article.

Secretary Marshall's explanation of this matter seems to us perfectly satisfactory and we must assume that the professional reputations and intellectual integrity of the historians engaged on the project are a sufficient guarantee that the documents will be published in their entirety and that nothing will be suppressed and nothing deleted or condensed without a note explaining when the complete text is available to those who may desire to consult it. We also suppose that the same policy is being pursued by the Department of State in relation to all other important documents in its possession. This seems a reasonable inference from Secretary Marshall's assertion that it is "the aim of the department to expedite the publication of all relevant materials on the subject of German war policies." The State Department might take a leaf from General Eisenhower's book in respect of documents accumulated by the Army.

Secretary Marshall's statement, of course, does not clear up the question of the many important documents which are not in the custody of the Department of State. These of course include the papers which were removed from the White House to Hyde Park and the documents abstracted by various personages highly placed or highly influential in the Roosevelt Administration, such, for example, as the papers of Harry Hopkins and the much-advertised but possibly overvalued Morgenthau diaries. Here again we trust to the intellectual integrity of the editors. The editor of the Hopkins papers is Mr. Robert Sherwood, the playwright. The Morgenthau papers are being edited by a group of historians of whom only Mr. Jonathan Grossman of the College of the City of New York has been identified in the press.

Inquisitor Hoffman

Whatever the purpose of Representative Clare Hoffman's "conferences" with members of the press over articles he dislikes, the effect is intimidation. Last month Mr. Hoffman began this practice by requesting two representatives of the Washington Star to answer questions about an editorial with which he took issue. This was an individual conference. This week he broadened his approach by summoning Mr. Alfred Friendly of The Washington Post to explain a story reporting Mr. Hoffman's interference in a labor-management conciliation meeting at Michigan City, Ind. Reporter Friendly was led to believe the meeting was to be an informal discussion with Mr. Hoffman himself. When he arrived at the Capitol Wednesday, he was immediately sworn as a witness before the Hoffman Subcommittee on Labor and was grilled in an attempt to refute his story and make him disclose his sources. This, of course, made official business of Mr. Hoffman's personal pique.

Aside from the point of Mr. Friendly's story—and we believe that Mr. Hoffman's busybody tactics at Michigan City were fatal to the conciliation proceedings—the Congressman's actions Wednesday constituted a grave abuse of power. Congress, of course, has the right to investigate and to summon witnesses. But nowhere does the Constitution state that a newspaper is accountable for its contents either to Congress or to individual Congressmen. Mr. Hoffman or anyone else is, of course, at liberty at any time to register objections to the treatment he receives in the press. But the way to do this is not by clubbing a reporter with the weapon of an official congressional proceeding. If Mr. Hoffman does not recognize his aberration, his colleagues ought to impress it on him.

Communications must be addressed to the editor and must carry the complete name and street address of the writer, though pen names will be permitted at the editor's discretion. Letters of less than 200 words will be given preference, and all letters are subject to condensation. No communication can be returned.

Transit Comparison

Because of the pressure of business I have been unable to answer Rhoda C. Sedlow's letter of November 12 before this. (Editor's Note: This letter contrasted operation of the Capital Transit Co. with those in Toronto, Canada.) Since her letter Mr. Charles J. Murphy has replied very well. May I now add a few more facts not contained in Mr. Murphy's November 16 reply:

About 85 per cent of Toronto's service is one-man operation. Two-man cars are used mostly in the rush hours just as we, too, still use some two-man cars in the rush hours.

As to Miss Sedlow's statement that Toronto's operators "are well paid," we have no doubt that they are. Actually, their operators received 97 cents per hour while ours received $1.20 per hour. And, as you know, an arbitration board recently raised the top wages of our operators to $1.35 per hour. The total difference in the wage rate even before the recent increase to our men was more than $2,500,000 per year. The working conditions of our Washington operators are far superior to those in Toronto. Before the recent arbitration award, which added another one million dollars to our "fringe" costs, the differences in the working conditions added up to over $750,000 annually.

Had Capital Transit all the advantages which have accrued in Toronto since Capital Transit Co. was organized in 1933, we, too, would be very happy to report that a fare increase would be far from our minds. Unfortunately, we do not have the tax, wage, working conditions and other advantages they have in Toronto and consequently in Washington we must be realistic about how far we can stretch the transit dollar.

E. D. MERRILL,
President, Capital Transit Co.

Victims Of Tyranny

We read with a deepening sense of tragedy accounts not only of Russian preparations for war in Eastern Germany but also of the Russian slave camps in that area where people are being so smashed physically and psychically that they become less than human.

It seems to this writer that the past and present program of American aid to Europe, as a deterrent to the horrors of Russian communism, is exactly like providing dubious insulation for a whole community of houses against a raging fire near a neighborhood and at the same time doing absolutely nothing about the fire or making an effort to rescue the victims.

In the beginning, the whole world looked to the United Nations to denounce tyranny and brutality wherever it raised its head. Instead, our champions of liberty have done nothing to prevent the brutal absorption of helpless people by Soviet Russia. And, in the United Nations Councils, our representatives maintain the Pharisaical attitude of Saul of Tarsus, before his conversion, which held that parliamentary or legal blamelessness must ever take precedence over the mere mention of the tragic moral issues.

This writer submits that the blanket of morbidity and listless wretchedness which has settled over the world is the result of two conditions. The first is the wide propagation of a political concept which denies a man's normal faith that by his own efforts he can save himself. The concept holds that he must unconditionally surrender his best judgment to government minorities who, out of their narrow and finite wisdom, will know better how to manage and plan for him. The second condition is the lack of any evidence, since the war, that free peoples are any longer willing to defend peoples victimized by tyranny.

In the aggregate wars of history millions of brave men have voluntarily accepted assignments leading to certain death. They did not consciously do this for posterity. They did it because they, subconsciously, rejected a safe residuum of living in which their instinctual and idealistic satisfactions would be hopelessly out of gear.

Perhaps there will eventually emerge a militant Christian soldier and leader who will know how to speak up for the victims of tyranny so that all the world may hear. In so doing he will electrify all humanity with the kind of courage and new hope which will manifest itself into an eager willingness to work hard in a world worth living in and working for. MABEL G. BLISS.

John Bassett Moore

It seems normal for one who was a collegemate of John Bassett Moore, at the University of Virginia, to commend his career and deplore his death.

An editorial in one of the daily papers says he had become convinced that the new ideology of internationalism was not acceptable, and that the principle of national sovereignty had not been repealed, and he advocated a return to the old system of nationalism as the only base for an approach to law and order. The editorial recites that he was America's foremost authority in the field of international law.

Dr. Moore was familiar with the many efforts which men have made to qualify sovereignty, suppress nationalism and obviate periodic wars—the Anatolian League, the Achaen League, the Amphictyonic Council and our recent League of Nations stood freshly before his vision, causing him to adhere tenaciously to a modernization and invigoration of international law as the best means yet devised by man to preserve peace on the earth.

Dr. Moore partook of the horrors engendered by the use of poison gas in the First World War, and he saw those horrors obviated, through the channels of international law, in the last World War. He naturally wondered why the dread of the atomic bomb, which is unnerving the world, cannot be alleviated in the same way.

Dr. Moore reanimated the teachings of Grotius and Vattel with which he became familiar at the university. G. M. DILLARD.

Defense Of Free Speech

In Mr. Marquis Childs' article of November 18 he says: "It is essential for free men to stand up against those who would circumscribe and even destroy the right of free speech and free thought."

I would like to know what, in your opinion and in Mr. Childs' opinion, the House Un-American Activities Committee has been doing if it has not been doing just that. Can any intellectually honest person defend the right of a person alleged to be a member of an organization, one of whose fundamental tenets is the destruction of the fight of free speech and free thought, to refuse to state whether or not he is a member of such organization?

GEORGE C. WARNER, JR.
Washington.

Soviet Discrimination

An article by your reporter, Ferdinand Kuhn, jr., in your issue of November 2, conveys an erroneous impression which I feel sure you will be glad to correct.

Alleging that the Russians are "posing" as champions of oppressed peoples and that their "pose" is winning votes, Mr. Kuhn comments that "it doesn't seem to matter that the word 'Jew' is still stamped on identity cards of Jewish citizens of the Soviet Union."

I submitted this statement to Theodore Bayer, research specialist for the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship. Mr. Bayer has for years conducted in Soviet Russia Today a question and answer column which has established him as an authority on Russian customs and procedures.

Mr. Bayer writes that the obvious — perhaps accidental — intimation in Mr. Kuhn's statement, namely, that Jewish citizens are singled out in Russia for discriminatory and invidious identification, is entirely misleading. He states that, as in other countries, Soviet identity papers provide for indication of the holder's nationality, but that this practice applies to all nationalities and not to Jews alone, as Mr. Kuhn's statement seems to imply. He adds:

"Since there is complete political, social and every other kind of equality in the Soviet Union, no one there would for one moment think that this item was in any way intended for discriminatory purposes."

I believe you will be glad to print this statement in order to correct any erroneous impression which Mr. Kuhn's article may have conveyed. ELSIE S. PRATT.
Washington.

Editor's note: Our correspondent evidently regards Jewish citizens, in the Soviet Union and elsewhere, as a "nationality." We disagree. The discrimination is obvious in the case of a citizen of Moscow who has his identity card marked "Jew."

"Peace Plate"

The Washington Post of November 17 gives the suggestion of the Citizens Food Committee for a "Peace Plate" consisting of spaghetti with meat sauce. Presumably it is intended as a meatless dish for meatless Tuesday. As a "Peace Plate" it should be a success in promoting peace within the family, at least, for it sounds appetizing and economical. But is this a serious suggestion for a meatless dish? Is leftover meat any less meat than uncooked meat?

If this represents the measure of our sacrifice, let us hope we shall never meet any really hungry people, or that the starving millions may never find out what "meatless" means to us. However, I believe the citizens of Washington are probably doing better than the Food Committee suggests and are using their leftover meats on days other than Tuesday.

ANNE FORSYTHE.
Washington.

Naturalized Citizens

I take vigorous exception to Zora W. Butler's letter of November 17 implying that naturalized citizens are ipso facto bad security risks. That is, of course, sheer nonsense, and dangerous to boot, since it impugns the loyalty of all naturalized citizens.

As a naturalized citizen myself, I yield to no one in my abhorrence of fascism, communism, and all other antidemocratic ideologies. No doubt there are naturalized citizens, as there are native citizens, whose allegiance to the United States is questionable. But your correspondent ought to know better than to make her sweeping generalization. A. F. S.

Elizabeth Faces Ahead

By Malvina Lindsay

Bride's Reverie

MILLIONS of minds today will be sharing in fancy the thoughts of Princess Elizabeth, the universal bride, as she dons her Botticelli-inspired wedding gown in her last girlhood moments in her boudoir in Buckingham Palace.

She may glance out the window at Victoria's statue, feel a sense of history repeating itself, as she sees in her mind's eye her great-great-grandmother and Albert on their rainy wedding night of 107 years ago. . . . She is glad hers is a morning wedding . . . and that Philip, not Albert, will be at the altar. He's much handsomer and not so—well more fun. She smiles at memory of his hearty laugh. It'll be easier for them too—the adjustments about his position. They're not so strong-minded.

Or, she may think of the wedding procession, the coaches, postillions, cavalry guards, the cheering populace. Why is this royal pomp her lot—when other brides are marrying obscurely? An accident of birth? . . . It might have been her sister. Or someone else. She may even ponder momentarily the whole fantastic setup of royalty.

Still—hers not to reason why. Besides it's very nice, in many ways.

THINKING of the assembling crowds, she may also think of England—its drab diet, austere life. Some day all these people will be her subjects. How kind they have been, offering to share their clothing coupons, wanting her to have a big wedding! Well, everything will be better some day—or will it? People talk of England fighting with its back to the wall. Why should her great moment come at such a dark one in England's life? It was different with Victoria, life so smooth, everyone confident, the future golden, expanding.

She may wonder what kind of an England it will be by the time she—and of course Philip—take over. Could the day come when England didn't have a throne? . . . "There'll always be an England." But will it be this England? Will there always be a world—this kind of a world?

Or her mind may be racing ahead to the time when the wedding commotion is over, she and Philip away from the crowd . . . perhaps both of them remembering what Victoria at Windsor House wrote in her diary, "I and Albert, alone." . . . Not long now until she will be a married woman, running her own castles, founding her family. The children came fast to Victoria, nine in 17 years. . . . What is ahead for children now? Some people say it is too terrible a world to bring them into. Yet everyone seems to be having them, taking the chance.

BUT MOST likely she will be thinking the thoughts of the eternal bride. Will she trip on her train? What will people be saying about her dress—and herself? What will he think when he gets his first glimpse of her? She will vision his face, eager, intent. . . . Yes, of course, he is marrying her for love! . . . She will think of the wedding ceremony, the sea of distinguished spectators, the world listening in. Will her throat go dry on the "I do?" How will her voice sound to a curious world?

She may be too preoccupied with the trivia that shrouds big moments to think these thoughts. But she is certain, like all brides, to feel a momentous sense of change enveloping her. These are her last moments as a maiden in her parents' household, in a room that has known her girlhood joys and hopes.

This is the moment before the curtain goes up for another act of her life, an act tied in with the great drama of uncertain ending now on the boards throughout the world . . . She gives one last approving look in the mirror at a radiant countenance . . . What if tomorrow is a fog-enveloped shore? They will be setting out for it together.

Taylor's Mission

It was with a great deal of disappointment that I read of the latest visit to the President by a group of Protestant clergymen in protest against the position held by Myron C. Taylor.

The most disappointing thing about the recent visit is the fact that Mr. Truman not long ago made clear the reasons why he has found it to his advantage to have Mr. Taylor in close contact with Pope Pius and his advisers and observers. It is through the Vatican that the President and the State Department obtain important data concerning conditions in some of the countries behind the iron curtain.

It seems that Dr. Oxnam and his associates have allowed their reason to be carried away by their ill-feeling toward the Catholic Church. We as a Nation are benefiting from the work of Mr. Taylor, a fact which any rational person should understand.

Surely these gentlemen who called on the President have themselves beseeched their congregations from the pulpit to practice the Christ-like virtues of brotherly love toward their neighbors. It appears that these men might attempt to set a good example along these lines. No matter what a man's religious beliefs, he must face facts. The Vatican today is the seat of one of the most far-flung organizations in the world and therefore must be dealt with as such.

My congratulations to President Truman for facing facts in this matter.

KENNETH M. HAGGERTY.
Arlington.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Injection Of Party Politics

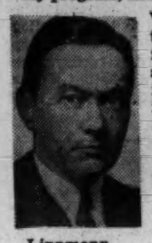
BETWEEN THE first part of the President's message, which dealt with the European recovery program, and the second part, which dealt with the domestic inflation, there is a sharp difference in purpose and in quality of mind. Two different sets of advisers, two different standards, are only too evident. On the European recovery program Mr. Truman wants the President working with Congress, regardless of party, so that "the actions of this Government" may "be a stature to match the dignity and influence of the United States in world affairs." But on inflation, he was, alas, the politician and the candidate trying to put the other party in a hole.



Lippmann

This attempt to mix statesmanship with partisan politics is most unfortunate, and a great deal of good sense will be required to undo the harm that has been done. For by injecting a partisan calculation into the situation, Mr. Truman has made it much more difficult for Congress and for the people to deal wisely and dispassionately both with the European recovery program and with the domestic inflation.

THE PARTISAN monkey wrench was in the last two of Mr. Truman's 10 points: the request for authority to set up consumer rationing, and to impose price and wage ceilings. Mr. Truman knew perfectly well when he made these two requests that this Congress cannot grant them without an abject confession that the whole of the Republican Party, and a considerable part of the Democratic Party, have made a colossal mistake and are responsible for the high cost of living.

A month ago he himself characterized these measures as those of a "police state"—(which incidentally they are not) and is said to have told members of Congress privately that he would decline to fix prices. Yet suddenly, and without consulting Congress, he is asking Congress to do something which he knows Congress will not do and that he himself is on record as saying he would not want it to do. If this is not partisan politics in an election year—a device to make the Republicans refuse him powers which he does not wish to exercise—then what is it?

ON THE merits, it may be said, I think, that consumer rationing, price and wage fixing, could not cure or even check the inflation; they could only divert the pressure from the few controlled commodities to the much greater number of uncontrolled commodities.

If the price ceilings are really effective—if there is no big black market—on the selected goods that are in short supply, the effect will be to divert the inflated purchasing power, and therefore labor and raw materials and transportation facilities, to the uncontrolled sections of the economy. The result is likely to be a decline, or at least no increase, in the production of these very commodities that are in short supply.

THE INFLATION, of which we are now suffering the consequences, is due initially to the fact that in financing the war the Government raised about a quarter of its funds, not out of taxes and not out of savings but by selling its securities to the commercial banking system. This bank money was as purely inflationary as if it had been fiat money turned out by the Government printing press. At the end of 1945 it represented the huge sum of 95 billion dollars, all of it excess purchasing power for which there were no corresponding goods.

Against this initial inflationary force, the Treasury took substantial countermeasures. Since the end of 1945 it has used its surplus to pay off Government debt held by the banks, and at the end of June this year holdings of Government securities had been reduced by about 15 per cent. This in itself would have been a genuine and effective means of arresting and even of reducing the inflation.

But the Treasury's measures are being offset by the creation of new inflationary funds in the banks. The credits extended by the banks have risen at a rapid rate. Because of the high reserves which they already have and the large reserves which they can still acquire from investors who sell their Government bonds, the country is threatened with an increasing inflation.

THE PRESIDENT touched upon this—the central problem of the inflation—in his first point. But he did not give it anything like the emphasis it deserves, as can be seen by the fact that he put the restoration of consumer credit controls ahead of the restraint of inflationary bank credit. Yet the expansion of consumer credit is a small item as compared with the expansion of bank credit.

It is on that problem that our effort ought to be concentrated. Powers need to be given to the Federal Reserve System to check the creation of excess bank credit based upon the acquisition of Government and other securities and of gold by the commercial banks. This could then be supplemented by the power to allocate transportation facilities and scarce commodities which the President asked for in his message. The chief virtue—as regards inflation—of the power to allocate is that it can be used to postpone public works, and unnecessary private construction financed directly or indirectly by the inflationary bank credits.

IF THE President could now be persuaded to lay aside—at least until later in the session—the provocative and impracticable proposals about consumer rationing, price and wage fixing, and to concentrate on measures to check the real inflation, the country could still be saved the ordeal of having to meet the European crisis and our domestic difficulties in a whirling welter of partisan politics.

Risk of War Cited in Study Of U. S. Policy

By The Associated Press

Continuation of the present "nightmare" of big power relations would risk an outbreak of war at any time, the Brookings Institution said yesterday in a new study guide "Major Problems of United States Foreign Policy."

The precarious balance of power among Soviet Russia, the United States, Britain and their allies, the research agency advised, could not continue long without change.

"A situation built on such shaky political foundations might collapse through shear inadvertence or the constant accumulation of unresolved difficulties." The publication said.

"A collapse might be averted for some time, if good fortune prevented any of these 'accidents' from occurring. But in the meantime there would be a constant danger that war might break out, not deliberately provoked by any nation, but with no nation capable of preventing it."

First of Program

The study guide is the first publication in a new educational program by the Brookings Institution, an independent research and educational agency. The 300-page document was prepared under the direction of Leo Pasvolsky, former State Department official, and is designed primarily for use in universities. It is to be published annually and supplemented by monthly publications.

The volume presents an analysis of major American foreign policy problems, as of now, in a form like that used by government policy makers.

The first three parts deal with the main elements of the world situation and about 60 major issues confronting the United States. The fourth section covers the four main foreign policy problems: German peace settlement, American assistance to Europe, China and international control of atomic energy.

Conference Planned

As part of the educational program designed to broaden the public understanding, Brookings said, a national conference on international relations will be held each year.

Outlining postwar difficulties, the publication said Russia is employing such methods of international conduct as promotion of revolutionary activities in friendly countries, establishing control over weaker countries by pressure or intervention, "irresponsible" propaganda against the United States and other nations, attempts to exclude the United States and Britain from influencing Europe and persistent obstruction of efforts to solve major world problems.

"These activities are producing mounting resentment against the Soviet Union in the other countries and are leading to policies and actions that they regard as essential to counteract the trends set in motion by the international behavior of the Soviet Union," the institution advised.

"The possibility can not therefore be excluded that a further deterioration of international relations might eventually lead one side or the other deliberately to decide that its national security, or its world objectives, are impossible of attainment without the use of armed force to eliminate the other."

The study guide advised further that extreme "reform groups" of the right as well as the left are active in most countries and are "challenging the very fundamental of democratic freedoms and institutions."

U. S. Brands Romanian Charge False

The Soviet-dominated government of Romania was again reminded yesterday that the United States had a treaty interest in the maintenance of civil liberties in eastern Europe.

A new American note to Romania protested anti-American allegations in the indictment of former Premier Juliu Maniu, who was sentenced last week to life imprisonment for high treason.

The note condemned "the denial of human rights and fundamental freedoms to large segments of the Romanian population in contravention of international commitments made by the Romanian government."

Further Action Studied

These commitments include the Romanian peace treaty, which contains a guarantee of civil rights as outlined in the Yalta agreement of Russia, Britain and the United States in 1945.

Yesterday's note dealt with only one aspect of the Maniu trial; Counsellor Charles E. Bohler said yesterday that the State Department is still studying what further action to take in the light of his conviction and life sentence.

The note denounced as false and insincere the Romanian government's charges that the United States had plotted, through agents, to overthrow the Communist-led regime in Bucharest by force. It labeled these charges, contained in the indictment of Maniu, as "politically motivated."

Regime Not Condoned

"The United States has never condoned the unrepresentative character of the present Romanian government," the America note said, "nor the methods by which it attained and has perpetuated its authority."

But the charges against the United States were labeled as untrue the note said the United States refused "to dignify" them by "specific refutation."

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Heresy Hunt

TO CARRY OUT the European recovery program will call for the very best brains in this country. That is one fact about which no one can possibly disagree.

CHILDS

It calls for economic as well as political specialists. Practical men with business experience will be called upon. There will be need, too, for those with academic and theoretical training, familiar with the trend of the European economy over a long period.

This is part of the responsibility that has fallen on the United States. It goes along with the greatest accretion of economic, industrial and technological power the world has ever seen. We are only just beginning to realize what that responsibility means.

In the light of that responsibility and the demand it is certain to make on our brains and our skills, we cannot afford the kind of witch-hunting that has created something like a crisis in Government. A way must be found to resolve the suspicion and uncertainty which becloud Government service today.

Good men, men with independent minds, will not come into Government service under such circumstances. The financial sacrifice is, in most cases, too great to expect that the citizen will subject himself to having his conscience and his thoughts combed for possible heresy.

The cases that come immediately to mind are those of the 11 State Department employes dismissed because they were believed to be disloyal or because they were "bad security risks." Even if Congress eventually puts the administration of the European Recovery Program in a new agency, the State Department is certain to need able new recruits.

YET EMPLOYES of the department are subject to dismissal without being given an opportunity to know the cause. Bert Andrews of the New York Herald Tribune performed an important service in presenting one of these cases in detail, protecting, of course, the identity of the individual involved.

The documents in that case showed how tenuous were the grounds for the man's dismissal. He was shadowed for eight months by the FBI. Yet what they found, insofar as it was revealed by the questions asked of the individual, was vague and shadowy. Most of the questions dealt with associates whom he had seen at infrequent intervals.

In June of 1945, five men and one woman were taken in an FBI raid. Two of the men were State Department employes and one a naval officer whose loyalty had never hitherto been questioned. They were stripped and treated like common criminals.

The charges against the three proved baseless. A grand jury subsequently cleared them for lack of evidence. The damage of publicity had, of course, seriously harmed them and there was no way in which they could be compensated for this damage.

But at least they were cleared. The public could know that, after due legal process, they were found to be without guilt.

THE RECENT loyalty dismissals were harsher and more cruel, particularly since potential employers are told that the dismissed men were found to be "bad security risks." The State Department permitted three of them to "resign without prejudice," and now has granted the same permission to seven others because, through a technicality, their cases do not come under the jurisdiction of the recently appointed Loyalty Review Board.

The department states that it is taking steps to insure that, in the future, its employes will have the right to appeal to the Loyalty Review Board. However, review by the 20-man board is bound to be slow and cumbersome. Delays will work hardships on individuals and will impede the whole process of Government.

The heresy hunt has already had that effect. Government agencies seeking new employes for specialized jobs find that getting them cleared is an interminable business.

One agency recently sought to employ a young economist. He had a good combat record in World War II, with several citations for bravery under fire. But the report from the Civil Service Commission cast doubt on him because five years before the war, when he was just out of college, he was "in association" with the "Communist-dominated" American Civil Liberties Union. The American Mission to Greece also has been hampered in assembling a suitable staff by the cumbersome security machinery in the State Department.

The whole thing can be put simply. We will not be able to do the job that is ours in the world today if we do not cure ourselves of the current case of jitters. Those who are exploiting it for political purposes are playing directly into the hands of the Communists who would isolate America. It is long past time to apply plain common sense.

Democratic Leaders Lunch With Truman on Capitol Hill

By The Associated Press

President Truman attended a two-hour private luncheon yesterday at the Capitol with Democratic leaders who said he expressed a desire for continued unity in Congress and the country in facing international problems.

The luncheon was given by Senator Green (D., R. I.) in honor of Senator McGrath (D., R. I.), new chairman of the Democratic national committee.

Senator Barkley of Kentucky, Senate Democratic leader, who also spoke at the luncheon, said Mr. Truman nt only asked continued unity but expressed appreciation for past coperation.

Barkley said Mr. Truman praised the selection f McGrath as party chairman and predicted successful service for the young Rhode Island Senator in the post.

Besides most Senate Democrats, those attending were Representative Rayburn of Texas, House Democratic leader; Representative McCormick of Massachusetts, House Democratic whip; Representatives Forand and Fogarty, Rhode Island Democrats; Clark Clifford, special counsel to the President; Matthew J. Connelly, a presidential secretary; Robert Butler, American Ambassador to Australia, and William P. Mitch, Butler's son-in-law.

Barkley told reporters the loudest applause greeted his announcement that the Senate Foreign Relations Committee had approved unanimously Mr. Truman's recommendation for a 597-million-dollar emergency aid program for France, Austria and Italy.

Barkley said Mr. Truman did not touch on his antiinflation program, which Republicans have bitterly attacked.

Chest Funds Aid D. C. Mental Clinic

Institute Handles 60% of Patients Here Who Receive Psychiatric Help

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

One person out of every ten sooner or later becomes mentally ill.

One person out of every twenty sooner or later requires care by a mental institution.

Are you one in ten?

Are you one in twenty?

It costs an average of $1500 a year to maintain a person who is mentally ill in an institution.

It costs an average of $300 to give that same person psychiatric treatment over a six-month average treatment period at an outpatient clinic such as the Washington Institute of Mental Hygiene, and the chances are good that the cause of his mental illness can be either erased entirely, or at least abated.

Clinic Facilities Inadequate

If you get into a mental institution, the chances are two out of three that you stay for the rest of your life.

All these statements are borne out by accepted statistics.

The Washington Institute of Mental Hygiene handles 60 per cent of the mental patients in Washington who receive psychiatric treatment. The facilities of this clinic are available to all people of this city. Small fees are asked of those who have moderate incomes. If the service asked can be duplicated through private channels, persons of substantial means are urged to seek such private consultation.

But last year, even with these financial considerations, the Washington Institute of Mental Hygiene had to turn away approximately 1100 patients who couldn't afford to pay for psychiatric aid. At the present time, the clinic is so loaded with patients that it will not be able to take any new child cases before January, and it has a waiting list of 45 adults who want help. But even so, the clinic will see anyone requesting help in consultation, and an effort is made to move patients into treatment as soon as possible.

Problems Increased

The fact is that mental hygiene clinics simply have not kept pace with the population. The problem of this out-of-line situation has been increased because the war produced more mental illness, and because there has been lessening of the prejudice of the individual to request psychiatric help.

And there is a shortage—and is likely to continue to be a shortage—of trained psychiatrists.

This, despite the fact that with proper psychiatric treatment an average of more than 60 per cent of the patients are restored to community life at a high level of efficiency.

With these inadequacies clearly in mind, the trained personnel at the Washington Institute of Mental Hygiene do the best job they can with the problems of Washington's mentally ill.

Some of Problems

Here are some of these problems:

An 11-year-old child was brought to the clinic. He had a bad stammer. There was no physical defect which would cause the stammer, yet it was there. It had been there for about six months. The boy had been a problem at school. He had been put in a special class in an effort to correct the speech defect, and that had not been successful. It was difficult for him to adjust socially to other youngsters at the school.

Psychiatrists at the Mental Hygiene Clinic, in the course of their treatment of the boy, found that about six months ago his father had returned from the service. His father came back with his own set of emotional problems. These problems had created a serious emotional tension in the household. The boy developed a fear of his father. He could not adjust to the idea of having this nervous, war-disturbed parent in the home.

Through talks with the boy and his father, the clinic was able to lessen the home tension, to help the father to change his attitude toward his son. Clinic psychiatrists were able to save the boy from becoming a "behavior problem" in adolescence. They were also able to help the father in making an adjustment back to civilian status.

In another case, a young man of 24 who was suffering from hypochondria, and whose social and work adjustment was so bad that he had been forced to give up his Government job, was found to be suffering from the effects of his parents' unhappy life. In addition to marital discord, there had been alcoholism. His mother had "overprotected him" in childhood, and he had grown up without any feeling of self-reliance. He was treated for nine months at the Mental Hygiene Clinic, was able to resume his college education which he had abandoned because of his emotional difficulties, and was able also to take on a part-time job.

He has found a new pattern of living. He is no longer dependent upon the community. Now he can contribute to the community.

The Washington Institute of Mental Hygiene is one of the agencies which you help to support when you make your contribution to the Community Chest Federation campaign.

Mrs. Truman Honors Chest 'Foot Soldiers'

Mrs. Harry Truman, wives of Cabinet officers and other distinguished women yesterday paid tribute to the "foot soldiers" of the Community Chest Federation.

The hundreds of Washington women who go from door to door seeking Chest contributions were lauded at a special luncheon at Hotel Statler, attended by more than 650 persons.

The current drive for $3,900,000 has reached 54.1 per cent of the goal, according to most recent reports.

Mrs. Angus Dun, wife of the Episcopal Bishop of Washington and chairman of the residential unit, announced that 54 per cent of its $537,500 quota had been attained. At the last report meeting Tuesday the unit had hit 47.5 per cent of its goal.

In honoring the 2400 residential unit workers, six outstanding solicitors were especially singled out. Corsages of red roses were presented to them by Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Miss Lindsay Speaks

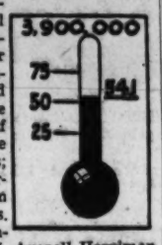
Among those seated at the head table were Miss Malvina Lindsay, columnist for The Washington Post and principal speaker; Fannie Hurst, the novelist; Civil Service Commissioner Frances Perkins, Mrs. Fred M. Vinson, wife of the Chief Justice of the United States; Mrs. James Forrestal, Mrs. Tom Clark, Mrs. Clinton P Anderson, Mrs. W. Averell Harriman, wives of Cabinet members; Mrs. Eugene Meyer, wife of the chairman of the board of The Washington Post, and the wives of associate justices of the Supreme Court.



Mrs. Truman was dressed in a tailored blue suit and wore a corsage of Rothschild lilies, backed with red feathers. She was seated between Mrs. Dun and Edward H. Foley, jr., chairman of the drive.

Miss Lindsay praised the "progress" of the Chest in several directions and noted that "a more democratic way of giving" is developing. The new method, she said, "shows more respect for the dignity of a human being."

Winners of Awards

Workers awarded corsages by Mrs. Eisenhower for their outstanding work were:

Mrs. Joseph C. Monaghan of 6346 32d st. nw., captain of team 1412; Mrs. Duane Wilson of 5510 Nevada ave. nw., captain of team 2323, sponsored by the Florence Crittentan Home; Mrs. William E. Linden of 1501 W st. se., co-chairman of region 5; Mrs. Wesley W. Bouterse of 6339 Utah ave. nw., chairman of district 31; Mrs. George W. Burgess of 1411, which has reached 189 per cent of quota; Mrs. Illene Fisher of 3420 S. Dakota ave. nw., chairman of district 43, only district to go over the top with 137 per cent of quota, and Mrs. Theodore Wedel of 3508 Woodley rd. nw., vice chairman of the unit in charge of training workers.

U. S. Held Due to Turn Into Nation of Morons

By the United Press

Unless Americans breed with greater care, the United States soon after 2000 A. D. will be "a Nation of high-grade morons ruled by the few surviving clever people," according to Dr. Walter B. Pitkin.

The noted Columbia University professor and author of "Life Begins at Forty" made this pronouncement in a postscript to the recently published revised edition of "Human Breeding and Survival" by Burch and Pendell.

Uncontrolled breeding, he wrote, favors the survival and multiplying of the least gifted.

Case Backlog In NLRB Biggest Ever

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

The National Labor Relations Board ended October with the greatest backlog of pending cases in its 11-year existence, and with a new pattern of complaints emerging under the Taft-Hartley Act.

The Board's monthly statistical summary, issued yesterday, showed that 964 new cases were filed with it during October, and that 4635 were pending at the end of the period.

Of a total of 351 charges of unfair labor practice by employers filed during the month, the vast majority, 301, were brought by individuals. This represents a distinct departure from practices in the past, when almost all charges were brought by unions.

The probable explanation is that many unions had not qualified—by filing reports and non-Communist affidavits—as eligible to avail themselves of NLRB services.

No Union Fights

Another noteworthy fact brought to light by the figures was that in 89 cases of charges of unfair labor practice brought agains unions, none were brought by an AFL union against a CIO one, or vice versa.

This was considered remarkable, inasmuch as the present union-organizing situation is highly competitive. Only two independent unions filed charges agains other unions during the month.

The figures showed for the first time the results of the new type of election authorized by the Taft-Hartley Act, a vote on the authorization of union shop argeements. Thirty-one such polls were conducted. Twenty-seven were won by independent unions, mainly the International Association of Machinists, three by AFL affiiliates. The remaining one was lost by the I. A. M. for the Boeing Aircraft Co. plant at Seatle, Wash.

Another new type of election on which data was presented were votes on whether to decertify a union which had previously enjoyed bargaining rights. There were five such polls in October. Four resulted in decertification of the union. In the fifth the union was retained.

Other figures showed that during the month 524 petitions for elections were filed, 340 for collective bargaining votes, 45 to decertify unions and 139 for union show authorizations.

A total of 440 charges of unfair labor practices were received, 351 against employers, 89 against unions.

Spain Hails U. N. Reversal On Franco

Madrid, Nov. 19 (AP).—Morning newspapers greeted with large headlines today the United Nations action in "abandoning" the Spanish case and hailed it as a prelude to inclusion of Spain in the Marshall European recovery program.

The United Nations vote on the Spanish resolution was the lead article in all Madrid newspapers.

(The State Department in Washington said it knows of no plan to include Spain in the Marshall Plan. State Department Counselor Charles E. Bohlen told reporters the matter has not come up as far as he knows.

(The United Nations Assembly declined Monday night to reaffirm a 1946 resolution condemning Franco Spain and requesting all U. N. members to withdraw Ambassadors and Ministers from Madrid. All members, except Argentina, have complied. The United States voted no. A second part of the same resolution, expressing the Assembly's confidence in the ability of the Security Council to deal with the Spanish situation, was approved.)

Two Youths Charged In Scout's Hanging

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 19 (AP).—Two high school boys were charged with voluntary manslaughter here today in connection with the hanging of Ronnie Tritt, 14-year-old Boy Scout, in August, 1946.

The pair, identified in a juvenile court petition as Joseph Bowen, 15, and James Marvin Gray, 16, will be given an examining trial December 16 before Juvenile Judge William Becker. Tritt's almost nude body was found hanging from a rope tied to a tree limb in a vacant lot near his home in suburban Audubon Park.

ave. se., and for storage, Hilton, 6th st. between B and C sts. ne., and Corcoran, 28th st. between M and Olive sts. nw. These are now used by white students.

All changes are effective not later than December 1, except the shutting down of Corcoran, which takes effect February 1.

Students attending the five white schools will be transferred as follows:

Blow and Webb students to an elementary school unit in unused classrooms at Eastern High School, 17th and East Capitol sts., or to Kingsman Elementary School, 14th and E sts. ne.

Hayes students to Blair, I st., between 6th and 7th sts. ne.; Ludlow, 6th and G sts. ne.; Madison, 10th and G sts. ne., or Wheatley, Montello ave. and Neal st. ne.

Bowen students to Amidon, 6th and F sts. sw., unused rooms at Jefferson Junior High School, 8th and H sts. sw., and Greenleaf, 4th st., between M and N sw.

Girl students at Lenox Occupational to Buchanan, E st. between 13th and 14th se., and boys to Bryan, 13th and B sts. se., or Cranch, 12th and G sts. se.

Abandonment of the five others was recommended as an economy and efficiency measure, Corning said. Transfers here will be as follows:

Lincoln students to Lenox; Dent students to Brent, 3rd and D sts. sw.; Hilton students to Peabody, 5th an C sts. ne.; and Corcoran students will go either to Hyde, O st., between 32d and 33rd sts. nw., Jackson, R st. between 30th and 31st. nw., Adams, 19th and California sts. nw., or Fillmore, 35th st. between R and S sts. nw.

As a result of regroupings of schools necessitated by the changes, a number of students enrolled at some unaffected schools will be transferred.

Schools at which part-time students will be placed on a full program as a result of the changes include Browne Junior High School, Randall Junior High School, and Crummell, Payne, Cook, Van Ness and Bell elementary schools.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 19 (AP).—Raymond V. Long, director of the State Planning Board and chairman of the State Citizens Food Conservation Committee, was appointed by Governor Tuck today to receive Virginia contributions through the "silent guest" plan.

Contributions will be forewarded to CARE—the Cooperative for American Remittances to Europe, Inc., a nonprofit, government-approved relief agency—for the purchase of food packages for needy European families.

Contributions may be sent to Long at the State Planning Board, Finance Building, Richmond, or direct to CARE at 50 Broad st., New York, N. Y.

Virginia to Organize Roaming Snow Crew

Richmond, Va., Nov. 19 (AP).—The State Highway Department announced today that emergency snow-fighting crews, subject to special assignment and transfer to any part of the State, will be organized by each of the eight highway construction districts this winter.

The department stated that the units will report out of the eight highway construction district headquarters at Petersburg, Suffolk, Fredericksburg, Culpeper, Staunton, Lynchburg, Salem and Bristol.

FCC Sets Aside WFMD's Right to Boost Power

The Federal Communications Commission yesterday tentatively set aside authority granted Radio Station WFMD, at Frederick, Md., operating on 930 kilocycles, to increase its power from 500 watts to 1 kilowatt, and ordered hearings November 26 on the application.

AMERICAN SECURITY ASKS YOU THESE QUESTIONS
Is your Will "home-made," drawn without an attorney's advice?
Does it name as Executor a friend or relative who has neither time nor training for the task?
Does it make bequests to people now deceased, or fail to provide for children born since it was drawn?
Does it dispose of property you no longer own, or fail to consider assets recently acquired?
Does it reflect careful thought toward effecting every possible tax economy and avoiding unnecessary estate shrinkage?
In brief, does it express your wishes today in sound legal form?
For your family's sake, we urge you to consult your lawyer about your Will...and get the advice of our Trust Officers on sound estate planning...now.

New D. C. Gas Issue Priced at $20 a Share

By S. Oliver Goodman

Subscription price will be $20 a share for Washington Gas Light Co.'s proposed new issue of 85,000 shares of common stock. This was revealed yesterday when the company filed with the Public Utilities Commission an amendment to its application.

Present common stockholders will receive transferable subscription warrants giving them the right to subscribe to one new share for each five shares now held. Subject to the approval of the PUC and the Securities and Exchange Commission, subscription warrants will be mailed about December 3.

The company said the offering is not being underwritten, but will compensate investment bankers for services in obtaining subscriptions. Proceeds of more than $1,600,000 will be used mainly for extension of the distribution system of the firm and its subsidiaries.

Recently Washington Gas Light Co. completed the change from manufactured gas to straight natural gas, thereby providing a more economical gas supply and avoiding capital outlays for new plants. Volume of business has grown steadily, with sales this year expected to be 12 per cent more than in 1946.

Current dividends on common stock are at the rate of $1.50 a year, a yield of 7½ per cent on the subscription price of $20.

ALUMNI MEET: T. O. McLaughlin, director of the Chevrolet Postgraduate School of Modern Merchandising and Management, was chief speaker yesterday at a session here of 39 alumni in this area. The school, established in Detroit in 1938, is known as the "West Point of Industry." It helps train dealers' sons in modern methods of automotive merchandising. Among the alumni at the session in Wardman Park Hotel were Mandell J. Ourisman, Washington; Gilbert Illich, Alexandria, Va.; Richard L. Ashley, Herbert L. Hosford and Leslie Legum, Baltimore; Andrew Krause, jr., Annapolis.

YULE SAVINGS: The Suburban National Bank will mail 4048 Christmas Savings Club checks for $314,585 to its 1947 club members, President Fred L. Lutes reported yesterday. The distribution will start November 25. The bank will open its 1948 Yule club on November 26 at its three banking houses in Bethesda, Silver Spring and Takoma Park.

ODD LOTS: The local chapter of Chartered Life Underwriters is mapping plans for advanced study and extension of professional services in estate planning, tax and business insurance fields, President Charles W. O'Donnell reported . . . The Securities and Exchange Commission reported that net working capital of United States corporations increased about 1.7 billions between April and June of this year . . . Pulp and paper companies in this country plan to spend about 400 million dollars in next 12 months for new mills, survey showed . . . Westinghouse Electric Corp.'s production volume set a new peacetime record in October and "required the equivalent of a 53-mile-long freight train to ship it" . . . Phillips Petroleum Corp. offered to stockholders 1,007,517 shares of common at $49 a share on the basis of one new share for each five now held . . . Halsey, Stuart & Co. and associates offered 30 million dollars of Consolidated Edison Co. first and refunding 3 per cent mortgage bonds at 101.05 and interest.

Reuther Victory Puts Crimp In Can-You-Top-This Rivalry

By J. A. Livingston

IMMEDIATELY AFTER his 4-to-1 election as president of the United Auto Workers a week ago, Walter Reuther issued a warning to editorial writers and columnists. In effect, he said: Don't think just because I'm on top now, just because I have an executive board that supports me, I'm going to sit back and take it easy, that I'm going to become a conservative just because I've put down the opposition. I'm not.

That was typical of Reuther. He'll probably be more militant than ever in pushing General Motors, Ford, Chrysler, and other auto companies for higher wages and better working conditions. Yet, that doesn't mean labor-management turmoil in the auto industry. On the contrary, Reuther's victory reduces the possibility of strikes and labor tension.

Livingston

Heretofore, the UAW has been the whirling top in United States labor. It had to keep spinning to remain upright. Reuther was competing with R. J. Thomas, former president, and George F. Addes for control. Reuther was always trying to outdo the Thomas-Addes crowd and the Thomas-Addes crowd was always trying to outdo Reuther. The stake was rank-and-file votes and, ultimately, the presidency.

Reuther made his bid right after V-J Day. He demanded a 30 per cent wage boost from General Motors, and called a strike to get it. He was on his way up to the top among labor's big shots—among John L. Lewis, Philip Murray, Dan Tobin, David Dubinsky, Bill Hutcheson and the rest.

REUTHER didn't win the strike. The G. M. workers walked the picket line for 111 days, finally settled for what G. M. had offered earlier. But Reuther won votes. Taking men through hell and high water—fusing them together in a common experience—oftentimes earns blind loyalty. Reuther took the presidency away from Thomas by the squeaky margin of 124 votes. But the Addes-Thomas crowd won control of the international executive board, 14 to 8. Reuther was as he put it, "president in name only."

Today, Reuther's undisputed boss. All the major officials are Reutherites. The executive board is Reuther 18 to 4. So, Reuther doesn't have to worry about internal competition. He can negotiate with G. M. or Ford, like a leader who is sure of his position, like a man who can deliver what he promises.

Fewer wildcat strikes are likely. Also fewer phony grievance cases, trumped up by one side to embarrass the other. As an example, a group of workers will assert: "The foreman's speeding us up." If the union representative finds the charge false, he just can't drop it. The opposition would promptly yell, "Reuther's gang is playing footy with the bosses." So the complaint must go through the tortuous grievance process—exasperating the management. There should be less of that from now on.

AND THERE should be less can-you-top-this rivalry among labor leaders generally. So long as Reuther and Thomas were outbidding one another, Lewis, Murray and other union bosses had to keep in step. Thus, Lewis this year had to surpass the Murray-Reuther 15-cent wage pattern. Lewis wrung from Benjamin Fairless, head of U. S. Steel, a 31-cent-an-hour wage boost for his coal miners. Competition among labor bosses won't cease—not so long as Lewis has ambition. But at least it won't be tipped off annually by the vote bidding within the UAW.

Reuther's main problem will be self-restraint. He feels, basically, that labor has a stake in management decisions, since management mistakes can cause unemployment and social problems. After Pearl Harbor, Reuther fathered a plan for making airplanes in auto plants. After the war he was interested in proving that General Motors could increase wages without increasing prices. He wanted to "look at the books." His latest managerial venture has been to counsel the steel industry to expand capacity.

REUTHER'S managerial pretensions did not make him a favorite with Charles E. Wilson and other G. M. executives. There was a tendency to play Thomas against Reuther when possible, for Thomas had a hard enough time running the union without running the auto industry. But now there's no Thomas. Reuther's in. He's the man to be dealt with. At the same time, Reuther knows that he has to get along with G. M. and the other big companies. A union president is judged by the settlements he makes.

Thus, Reuther's undisputed leadership may well make for stability. It makes it incumbent on him and the auto management to try to accommodate themselves to one another. That opens the way to labor-management understanding in the auto industry. And that, in turn, may contribute to greater peace and quiet in labor throughout the Nation.

Crowley Ouster Laid to His Lack Of 'Teamwork'

Philadelphia, Nov. 19 (AP).—Robert J. Levy, a director for Standard Gas & Electric Co., asserted today the resignation of Leo T. Crowley as board chairman and president was forced because Crowley "could not function as a member of the team."

"I favored his resignation 95 per cent because he was not the type of executive I felt we needed . . . He was unfamiliar with the public utility business and it was impossible for him to hold as many jobs as he did and do justice to them all," Levy declared.

The statements came in the second day of the Securities and Exchange Commission's public investigation into facts surrounding selection of the company's proposed slate of directors.

Crowley, whose resignation as board chairman and president of Standard Gas is effective November 29, was in the hearing room as levy testified. Crowley is scheduled to be called as a witness before the investigation ends.

New Theory of Smell: Nose Broadcasts Waves

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

A new concept of the sense of smell, in which the nose "broadcasts" heat waves to articles fair or foul to "tune" itself to odor, was advanced here yesterday.

The theory was reported to scientists attending the fall meeting, Academy of Sciences, by Drs. Walter R. Miles and Lloyd H. Beck, of Yale University. They offered proof in results of their experiments with bees and cockroaches.

Other subjects treated at the meeting's closing session included a report on the predictiveness of infant behavior traits, and the development of an electro-retinagraph to measure the eye's reaction to light and color.

Tell of Test

Challenging the generally accepted theory that odors are detected through chemical stimulation, Drs. Miles and Beck told of their tests in which both bees and cockroaches were attracted to odors hermetically sealed from them.

The ordors—honey for the bees and oil of cloves for the roaches—were placed in containers behind special glass windows which permitted the passage of infra-red radiation but not gas (ordor in its chemically accepted form).

Results of the tests, which showed the insects were heavily atrtacted to those chambers permitting infra-red penetration, suggest, the scientists said, that:

1. Transmitters within the nose send out infra-red waves of definite wavelengths which are "absorbed" within that range of wavelength by certain substances (a lily, a rotten egg, etc.) if the radiation comes their way.

2. Substance absorption of that radiation cools th esending apparatus, with the result, the sensation of smell.

Early Prediction

Dr. Arnold Gesell, director of the clinic of child development, School of Medicine, Yale University, another speaker, told the scientists that child specialists can tell with reasonable accuracy within the first three months of infancy whether a baby will develop as a normal human being.

One or two examinations in infancy suffice for a clinically trained diagnostician to determine whether a child is suitable for adoption, he declared. Continued study during the first year of life enables specialists to determine if a child is mentally deficient or suffering cerebral injury, sensory and motor defects, or has serious personality deviations.

"Scoop" of the season
IT WOULD be a lucky cranberry-picker who found that he'd scooped-up a cool, sparkling bottle of Blatz Beer. But we purposely put the bottle there . . . to point out that Blatz, like delicious, bush-ripened cranberries, has been matured and mellowed to the very peak of flavor. Brewed only in Milwaukee for 96 years, Blatz is Milwaukee's first bottled beer. Try Blatz . . . today! We think you'll agree that it's a flavor "scoop."

One on the Aisle—

Stars Hitch Wagon

Zodiac Couldn't Be Any Righter

ern-age suite at the Fairfax poring over arithmetical tables, his tall frame cased in a smartly tailored, conservative blue . . . You'd think he was an engineer planning a bridge . . . He's not . . . Five hundred years ago he'd have holed up in a palace turret, wrapped in the colorful garb and topped by the pointed hat of the court astrologer . . . He's the modern equivalent, working in sunshine, not shadows, and the only crystal in the room is the hotel's lighting fixture . . . Usually he works in New York and Hollywood, but lately he's discovered Washington—and Washington is discovering Righter—pronounced as it's spelled . . . If you tell him the precise time of your birth, he's able to tell you when to be careful and when to let loose with new plans, though it takes a day to compute . . . His clients are national notables, lots of them off the record . . . He advised Marion Bell, a year ago, to go into that show with the funny name . . . She did, scored one of the year's hits in "Brigadoon" and married its author . . . He told Marlene Dietrich to be careful one August 26; she wasn't and she broke her ankle on a Paramount set . . . He told Erich Maria Remarque not to publish his new book before a certain date; Remarque didn't and he credits Righter with the mint he's made from "Arch of Triumph." . . . He told Turhan Bey to wait a month after getting out of the Army before doing a thing; Bey waited and he's been employed every minute since . . . Bizarre as it sounds, you can't doubt Righter's sincerity . . . You ask him why things go wrong for some of his clients when they obey his injunctions and he points out that the stars of others involved in the adventure may be "unfavorable." . . . A Main Line Philadelphian, he went to Father Sill's great school, Kent, and graduated from Dickenson Law School . . . When 13, he met Evangeline Adams and took up astrology to prove Miss Adams was the bunk; he wound up a believer . . . He carries on thick correspondence with the international set in first-name endearments and likes to look back on his social welfare working days . . . He's an Aquarius and told us what we are, but for the life of us we can't remember . . . But we have a motto for him: "Don't make a move without calling Righter." . . . Marlene doesn't.

MARY FRANCES ACKERMAN one of a crowd slipping out the K st. door of the Statler, but a voice calls her back: "Young lady put on a coat" . . . It was the hotel doctor; he picked her out of the crowd because she'd been a patient with one of those colds everyone seems to have these days . . . But everyone picks Miss Ackerman out of a crowd—brown eyes, slim and chic. . . . She's the best walking ad the Uline-bound "Ice-Capades" could have . . . She'd been in 10 cities in 10 days and knows everybody . . . If Sam Goldwyn could see her he'd try to hire her away frim the ice show . . . But we'll bet he'd never get her.

JEAN KERR and her professor-husband Walter have combined forces again for another play, "Jenny Kissed Me" . . . This will be the fourth in the Catholic University Playwriting Festival, opening Sunday night, the 30th . . . Jean did the writing, Walter is directing . . . This adds a fifth to the foursome handsomely proclaimed in last month's Theater Arts as "available for immediate production by nonprofessional groups: "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay," "Stardust," "The Big Help" and "The Song of Bernadette."

BOB DENTON, Paramount's Washington eyes and ears, pulled a neat switch at yesterday's weekly meeting of the Washington Film Council . . . Usually the group is pretty serious in its discussions, but Bob gave the members a lunchtime laugh by screening the new Crosby-Hope comedy, "Road to Rio."

JAMES RAMSEY ULLMAN, who'll be speaking at next week's book and author luncheon of The Washington Post, may be best known as a writer of adventure—his current "Kingdom of Adventure: Everest" will soon be followed by a novel about the Amazon . . . But a decade ago he was a New York producer whose "Men in White" won the Pulitzer award and whose "Blind Alley" and "The Milky Way" did all right . . . Then he headed for Los Angeles where he was chief of the Federal Theater.

PRINCESS ELIZABETH gets a royal salute from the Trans-Lux

REDWOMAN: Julie Bishop has one of the leading roles in "Last of the Redmen" opening this morning on the Metropolitan screen. Despite the title twist, this Jon Hall film is actually James Fenimore Cooper's story, "The Last of the Mohicans" on her wedding day . . . The newsreel house has a first-run exclusive in what it calls "Heir to the Throne." (Heiress, evidently being awkward) . . . This is a two-reeler showing highlights of the royal life and closing with scenes of her with the lieutenant.

CLARE TREE MAJOR'S players will be doing "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" tomorrow in Alexandria's G. W. High School as the annual offering of the P-TA Council . . . Performances will be at 9:30 a. m. and 2 p. m. for the elementary school children of Alexandria . . . Saturday morning and afternoon the same company will play Mrs. Wiggs at Lisner Auditorium for Washington's Children's Museum.

TOMORROW: Richard L. Coe reviews the Capitol's film, "The Lost Moment," starring Susan Hayward and Robert Cummings.

Stassen Proves to Be a Republican Lion With Democratic Crowds, Mayors in Dixie

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

St. Petersburg, Fla., Nov. 19.—Harold E. Stassen, hedge-hopping through Dixie in a hunt for delegates, has turned out to be a Republican lion with the native Democrats.

Flying from place to place in his chartered plane, the Cheyenne, he always finds an outstretched hand of welcome—usually the hand of a Democratic mayor. The crowds that turn out to hear him are at least 50 per cent Democratic. There have been no boos, no tomatoes.

The most reasonable explanation, it would appear, is this: That the voters of the Southland are so largely ignored by candidates for the Presidency that they are flattered when one appears in their midst, regardless of his politics.

The immediate objective of the share of the 200 delegates that the South will send to the GOP National Convention in Philadelphia next June.

Senator Taft of Ohio is the favorite of the Southern Republicans, just as was his late father, William Howard Taft, President from 1909 to 1913.

Some of the delegations—the one from this State of Florida, for example—may go to Philadelphia widely split on the question of candidates. This is a situation that favors Stassen, and he is out to make the most of it. It would appear that he has a good chance to pick up at least four of Florida's 18 delegates, with others being earmarked for Taft and Dewey or some Mr. X.

Stassen also may have a chance for the eight delegates of Mississippi, but if they come to him it will have to be on his own terms.

On his flight from New Orleans to St. Petersburg today, the candidate fro mthe Northwest stopped off at Gulfport, Miss. For years Mississippi has sent two rival delegations to Republican National Conventions.

One is tabbed "Lily White" because it bars Negroes. The other, headed by Republican National Committeeman Perry Howard, who spends a good deal of his time in Washington, has always emerged victorious and been seated in the conventions.

At Gulfport, George L. Sheldon, head of what is politely called the "Independent Republican Party of Mississippi," greetcd Stassen and sought his support against Howard, long regarded as a Taft man.

Stassen agreed with Sheldon, that the GOP in Mississippi should be "revitalized and reorganized," but added:

"I also emphasize to you that in that reorganization, I would not accept the support of any delegation on the basis of race, color or religion, and the reorganization of the party must be in accordance with the Constitution of the United States."

Tonight Stassen spoke in St. Petersburg's Al Lang Ball Park and 7000 turned out to hear him.

Stassen, after mentioning his talk with Stalin, told the crowd of half natives, half tourists that the Communist-led riots in France and Italy were a "confession of failure"—a sign that the Communists have not been able to win over the people by peaceful means.

Tomorrow Stassen flies to Winter Haven and Orlando, and at 11 p. m. starts a non-stop flight to Chicago.

Dewey Assails 'War of Lies' From Moscow

Manchester, N. H., Nov. 19 (AP).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York tonight denounced Moscow for launching a "word war" of lies designed to block American aid to free nations "so they may fall prey to the cold aggression of totalitarian Russia."

Assailing communism as a "monster feeding on the plight of oppressed peoples," Dewey told a hospital drive here:

"We have seen the battle of guns shift to a battle of words, hunger and fear. A stream of malicious falsehoods and calumny pours from the Kremlin and reaches a climactic flood stage in the assembly of the United Nations.

U. N. Delegates Risk Lives

"As the 'word war' rages, the effort is made to block hungry men, women and children in free nations from aid so they too may fall prey to the cold aggression of totalitarian Russia."

Even within the U. N. itself, Dewey said delegates from many nations were risking their lives to vote "on the side of justice and liberty" and looking toward the United States as their defense.

Calling these delegates "brave men who represent the cause of freedom in their countries," he declared "in many cases the lives of these men are in constant danger. They know that to lose an election may well mean to lose their lives.

"As they vote with the majority on every major test of strength, as they vote on the side of justice and liberty, they write a new chapter in the history of morality and courage.

"And why do they do so?

"I think these statesmen still have the courage to vote as they do because they and their people know that in the cause of justice there is eternal truth.

"They know that America is a powerful friend of the weak, of the oppressed and of free government itself. They have faith in us and in the causes for which we stand. They know that ours is the shining armor that is their own defense."

Dewey—unannounced candidate for the Republican presidential nomination—spoke here in a two-day political pulse-feeling tour to Vermont and New Hampshire.

During the day he met with the Republican Governors of both States and heard that as far as they were concerned the race is still wide open.

Gov. Ernest W. Gibson of Vermont told Dewey there were "a lot of candidates who had a lot of friends" in his State. Gibson said he had not made up his mind whom to support. Vermont, with nine seats at the 1948 national convention, has sent unpledged delegations in past years.

In New Hampshire, Gov. Charles M. Dale told Dewey he was not pledged to anyone. A few months ago, after the national Governors' conference, Dale told reporters Dewey appeared far in the lead for the nomination.

A test of strength between Dewey and Harold E. Stassen shapes up in the New Hampshire primary, March 9—the first in the Nation.

Stassen has announced he would enter a slate for the State's eight delegate seats, and Dewey supporters said they definitely would enter his name.

Granite State political leaders have been silent for the most part on their preference. Whom Stassen and Dewey have chosen to run as their delegates remained a mystery.

Dr. Mitchell to Speak

Dr. Harold H. Mitchell, health director of Montgomery County schools, will speak at the regular meeting of the Clara Barton School Parent-Teacher Association at 8 p. m. Tuesday at Cabin John, Md.

Reds Reprint Times' Quote Of Truman

Moscow, Nov. 19 (AP).—The Literary Gazette published today a photostatic copy of a news item in the New York Times of June 24, 1941, quoting President Truman—then a Senator—as saying of the Nazi invasion of Russia that the United Sttaes should help whichever one of the two countries appeared to be losing.

The weekly, commenting on President Truman's statement last week that he did not remember making the remark, declared the President should consult The New York Times and "not his short memory."

The same issue devoted its whole front page to demands that the recent United Nations resolution against war propaganda be "enforced." It attacked as warmongers former Ambassador William Bullitt; Norman Armour, Assistant Secretary of State; Lewis H. Brown, chairman of the board of the Johns-Manville Co., who recently toured Germany for the American Military Government, and others.

"They will be punished," the weekly declared.

"Criminal penalties must be meted out to those who itch to throw humanity into the catastrophe of a new world war," said the leading article, written by A. Trainin, a Soviet authority on international law.

The Gazette is the same publication which on September 20 began a series of blasts against leading American personalities with an attack on President Truman, describing him as "straining for the laurels" of Hitler.

The accompanying picture was a photostat of a Washington dispatch of The New York Times on reaction to the German invasion of Russia, which quoted Mr. Truman as saying:

"If we see that Germany is winning we ought to help Russia; and if Russia is winning we ought to help Germany, and the way let them kill as many as possible."

(The Washington dispatch also had quoted Mr. Truman as adding: "Although I don't want to see Hitler victorious under any circumstances, neithed of them think anything of their pledged word.")

Smith to Follow Board's Wish

Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.) said last night he was willing to do whatever the Arlington County board "wishes me to do" toward disposition of the county's controversial Nevius tract.

He met in a closed session for more than an hour last night with Arlington County board members, County Manager A. T. Lundberg and Commonwealth's Attorney Lawrence Douglas.

County Manager Lundberg afterward declined to reveal what decision was taken at the conference but said a course of action "had been agreed on."

He said a resolution pertaining to settlement of the controversy over the tract would be presented at a board meeting Saturday.

A 15-million-dollar Veterans Administration hospital was originally planned for the tract, which is located on the Virginia end of Memorial Bridge adjoining Arlington National Cemetery, but the hospital proposal was killed by Congress on Representative Smith's motion.

Smith's willingness last night to comply with the county board's view was seen as a possible change in his opposition to erection of a veterans hospital.

The county board, at a recent meeting, withdrew its long-standing opposition to the hospital

Falls Church Center Plan Is Defended

Plans for a new Falls Church central business district were defended today as "practical and progressive" by the town's planning commission.

In a five-page statement, the commission answered an attack on the proposal made in the November 7 issue of the Falls Church Echo, and from three property owners in the affected area.

The plan provides for development of a shopping center in an area bounded by N. Washington st., E. Broad st., and W. Fairfax st.

In addition to stores, it would include a proposed new municipal building, and a parking lot with a capacity of 580 autos.

The new center would be located only several blocks from the present business district.

According to the planning commission statement, the new commercial area would:

1. Relieve "deplorable" traffic congestion at the corner of Broad and Washington sts., present business hub.

2. Develop an area of sufficient size and facilities to attract "desirable types" of business enterprises to the community.

3. Reduce the likelihood of "a hodge-podge development" of commercial areas which might blight residential districts.

4. Open up for commercial use a large area now without street frontage, and greatly increase the value of land now owned there.

"In these days of rapid growth," the statement concluded, "the town cannot afford to struggle along much longer with the outmoded and inadequate business development which now constitutes the center of Falls Church."

GI Captured By Slavs Back In Arlington

Pfc. Earl G. Hendricks, jr., who joked with his two companions when they were captured and held six days by Yugoslav troops recently, was back at his Arlington home yesterday.

The 19-year-old GI, whose capture September 22, touched off an international incident, arrived at his home, 1129 S. 16th st., Tuesday night for a 26-day furlough.

"We kidded about finally getting a chance to see Tito," Hendricks said. "We didn't know our capture was news all over the world."

Taken by the Yogoslavs to Vipacco, the trio was "pestered by flies during the day" and "eaten by mosquitoes and bed bugs at night."

He holds no grudge against the Yugoslavs, who treated him and his companions well, he said.

"We told them we were allies, and they were just acting like babies."

A graduate of Arlington Washington-Lee High School in 1946, Hendricks hopes to take up premedical studies at George Washington University when he is discharged in March.

But right now his problem is the people he meets and their interests in his Yugoslavian adventure.

All day yesterday they crowded about him to learn the details. Even the barber and neighborhood tailor were interested. Friends at Washington-Lee, who mhe visited, mobbed him.

Charge Filed With ICC on Arnold Line By Arlington

Service Inadequate, Says County PUC In Formal Complaint To Federal Board

A formal complaint charging the Washington, Virginia & Maryland Coach Co. (Arnold Lines) with rendering "inadequate service" was filed here yesterday by the Arlington County Public Utilities Commission.

The complaint filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission, asked early public hearing to insure "safe, efficient and adequate service to the residents of Arlington County."

A similar complaint is being filed with the Virginia Corporation Commission, which overseas operation of the bus line within the State.

Recent fare increases granted the Arnold Lines over protest of Arlington officials and commuting groups were noted in the Arlington commission complaint. Since those increases, said the complaint, the company eliminated some services in Arlington and "greatly reduced" services in other instances.

Charges included:

Elimination of "off-peak" service on the Walker Chapel run; elimination "to all intents and purposes" of the Fairlington-Clarendon operation; inadequate night service for Washington-Virginia commuters, and "dangerous overloading" of buses kept in operation.

Because of the discontinuance of previous services, said the complaint, passengers must travel by transfer "over circuitous routes" to reach destinations.

The bus company is required to file answer by next Wednesday, after which the ICC may schedule public hearings.

Jury Decrees Death Sentence For D. C. Man in Rape of Girl, 8; Defendant Now Serving Time

Verdict Follows Deliberation of 1 Hour, 40 Minutes

A District Court jury recommended the death penalty for John H. Hall, 32, yesterday after finding him guilty of raping an 8-year-old girl.

Hall

The recommendation makes a death sentence by Justice Richmond B. Keech mandatory.

The jury of nine men and three women decided Hall was guilty of carnal knowledge of the 8-year-old girl (the charge when rape involves a minor) after being closeted for 1 hour and 40 minutes.

Assistant United States Attorney Edward Molinoff had asked the jury to return a death recommendation for Hall, who currently is serving a 10 to 30 year term for a similar sex offense in the District.

In the District, the maximum penalty for rape is 30 years unless the jury recommends capital punishment. William Isaac Robinson was the last offender to be given a death sentence for rape in the District. He was put to death in the electric chair here October 9, 1942.

Veteran assistant District attorneys said there have been no more than 10 cases in the last 30 years where death has been recommended in rape cases.

In opening his case as prosecutor yesterday, Molinoff told the jury:

"This is too vicious and dangerour a person we are dealing with here to permit any possibility of his eventually remaining at large. Your duty as citizens is to find this man guilty and recommend the death penalty in order to protect the lives of other children in the District."

The 8-year-old girl was the principal witness against Hall at the trial yesterday.

She related that she had been sent to the grocery store at about noon on October 5, 1946, to buy a loaf of bread. On her way to the store, she said, she was accosted by Hall, who asked her her name and where she lived.

Then, she testified, he grabbed her by the hand and tried to lead her into a vacant lot in the rear of 4030 Minnesota ave. ne. The girl said when she resisted, Hall picked her up and carried her into the tall weeds on the lot.

She said he partially undressed her, choked her, threw her to the ground and then raped her while she fought him.

When she escaped, she ran to her home two blocks away and told her mother what had happened. The mother called police, who took the girl to Gallinger Hospital for an examination.

Dr. J. D. Reife of the Gallinger staff testified that he examined the girl. His testimony indicated that she had been brutally raped.

Girl Inspects Line-ups

At that time, the girl could not describe her attacker to police other than to say that he was cross-eyed.

The girl was called to four police line-ups after police had picked up cross-eyed suspects, but she could not identify the rapist. At a fifth line-up in the District Jail she identified Hall.

According to Detective Sergt. John B. Layton, Hall made an oral confession after he had been identified, adding in an aside to his victim:

"I'm sorry, little girl. I don't know what made me do it."

Hall took the stand yesterday and said he had been drinking on the day of the attack.

"I did have something to do with the girl," he said, "but I don't remember exactly how far I went. I remember being overcome by a powerful desire to have intercourse with this girl. I remember taking her by the hand and leading her into the tall weeds of the lot. Then everything went blank."

Counsel Offers Defense

Defense Attorney Scotti Mayo pleaded that Hall in his state of drunkenness did not know what he was doing.

Justice Keech set no date for the sentencing of Hall, whose address is 1223 Union st. nw.

United States Attoreny George Morris Fay, commenting on the case, said:

"This will serve as a warning to other sex offenders in the District. It will give them food for thought."

Fay said he is now gathering material from other American cities for aid in formulating a new psychological sex law for the District.

Other Sex Offenses Charged

Meanwhile, four men charged with sex offenses made appearances in Municipal Court.

Romanus G. Stitely, 36, of Cottage City, Md., charged with indecent assault on a 36-year-old married woman on a streetcar at 15th and H sts. nw., last August, was found guilty by a jury of simple assault. He will be sentenced Saturday by Judge John P. McMahon.

Ray Connors, Accused Here, Fatally Stricken in N. Y. Jail

By Charles Yarbrough
Post Reporter

Death, which lunged at him and missed when a jury freed him of a double murder charge here 21 months ago, caught up with Raymond F. Connors yesterday.

The often-arrested New Yorker died yesterday morning after he collapsed while trying to make a telephone call out of a Yonkers, N. Y., jail.

Linked with the slayings of Edward F. Barker and Pany Casbarian in Northwest Washington February 23, 1945, Connors was freed by a District Court jury after 13 hours' deliberation.

Had he been convicted, legal maneuvers might conceivably kept him out of the electric chair until "just about this time," Assistant District Attorney Charles Murray said yesterday.

Death Cheats Law

As it was, death cheated the law of trying him on two perjury counts, one involving auto theft charges and another involving robbery charges.

He was arrested late Tuesday night for beating a woman—his thirtieth arrest in the 34 years he claimed as his age. Police contend he was considerably older.

Yonkers police plucked him off a bus in front of the Yonkers Herald-Statesman at 11:26 p. m., after the woman had reported seeing him board the bus.

At 8:30 a. m. yesterday he asked permission to use the jail telephone; collapsed before he could give the number. He was pronounced dead at 9:05 a. m. by Dr. Lawrence Batlin of Yonkers General Hospital. Death was attributed to a cerebral hemorrhage.

Washington police went weeks without a break in the Casbarian-Barker murders.

Two Found Slain

Barker, 65-year-old auto dealer and his friend, Casbarian, 65, Geological Survey pressman, were bound with blanket strips and shot to death in Barker's auto trailer which he used as an office at 14th and N sts. nw.

One of the first breaks came August 2, 1945—six months after the murders—when Yonkers police arrested Connors for violation of the Sullivan Act—unauthorized carrying of a weapon.

Proof was established that Connors knew Barker and had once purchased a car from him. Police also had had an anonymous letter, informing them that Connors "is your man in that car dealer's murder." The tip led Detective Sergt. Edgar E. Scott to New York, where he participated in Connors' arrest.

RAYMOND F. CONNORS
Cerebral hemorrhage fatal

Months later, Joseph (Little Joe) Vinci, 31-year-old New Yorker, was linked with the case and both men were indicted by the grand jury.

Vinci became the prosecution's star witness, signing a confession accusing Connors of the murder. Later he told the jury Connors forced him to truss up the two victims and then shot them despite Vinci's pleas to save their lives.

Claimed Alibi

Connors contended throughout his trial that he was attending prize fights at Madison Square Garden the night of the slayings.

The jury disregarded Vinci's story, freed Connors in 13 hours in a verdict bitterly criticized by Assistant District Attorney Murray as a "travesty."

Connors smiled. "As an honest jury, that is the only verdict they could reach," he said.

He left behind, for later hearing, two charges of perjury which developed as a result of the trial; went back to New York, where his wife, mother of four children, threatened to divorce him.

Vinci, freed of murder charges, but convicted of robbery, is serving a 5 to 15 year term.

Raises Asked For Rents on 101 Apartments

The Rent Control Administration yesterday heard appeals for rent boots ranging from 5 to 19 per cent on 101 units in two Connecticut ave. apartment buildings.

Examiner Dennis K. Lane conducted an all-day hearing on a petition by owners of the building at 3901 Connecticut ave. nw. for rent increases ranging from 5 to 19 per cent.

Currently, he said, rents run from $55 to $130. Sixty-six units are involved.

Lane said the petitioners, represented by Frederick Stohlman and George Cassidy, presented data to show a $12,000 annual increase in operating costs. About a dozen tenants appeared to protest the proposed rent hike, he reported.

Thirty-four of the tenants were represented by Godfrey L. Munter, Lane said.

In another hearing, owners of the Connecticut Courts, 5112 Connecticut ave. nw., sought to boost rentals on 35 units by some 15 per cent, according to Examiner James G. Tyson.

Present rentals range from $45 to $60, Tyson said.

The rent hike bid was based on reported increases in the cost of operation, maintenance and real estate taxes.

Tyson said he had refused to hear the case several months ago because no ceilings had been set on the premises. Subsequently, he said, ceilings were established by Rent Control Administrator Robert F. Cogswell.

Polite Thief Helps Woman With Bundles

A cunning thief who helps women carry grocery packages—then helps himself to their pocketbooks—was being sought by police last night.

Mrs. Grace Meeks, 71, of 1628 Columbia rd. nw., reported she was returning home at 1 p. m. yesterday when a tall, nattily dressed Negro offered to carry her shopping bundles.

Mrs. Meeks, who walks with the aid of a cane as a result of an automobile accident, was grateful for the assistance—but not the sequel.

As she turned away with her returned packages, Mrs. Meews suddenly realized her pocketbook, containing $4, was being yanked away. The "kindly" thief fled with his loot.

Other robbery victims reported yesterday were Lonnie Poston, 39, of 1233 9th st. nw. and Stephen M. Snead, 38, of 800 18th st. nw.

Poston was yoked by two Negroes and robbed of $4 in front of his home about 11:15 p. m. Tuesday.

He described one robber as about 28 years old, 5 feet 6 inches tall, weighing about 155 pounds, sporting a trim mustache, and dressed in dark clothes. The other was about 40 years old, 5 feet 10 inches tall, weighing about 165 pounds, also wearing dark clothes.

Sneed said he was punched in the mouth by a thug who robbed him of $22 shortly before 2 a. m. in the 400 block of 11th st. nw. The assailant was described by Snead as a tall youth with a brown jacket inscribed "Bremen, Germany."

Thomas Griffith, of 1425 Q st. nw reported theft of $40 from his apartment and Wesley B. McCann of 4815 N Capitol st. told police $34.51 was stolen from his office at 400 6th st. nw. by a thief apparently armed with a duplicate key.

Four rugs valued at $285 were whisked away from a truck parked at Jefferson pl. and Connecticut ave. nw., Sarkis Manoukian, of 2409 18th st. nw. reported.

High's Ice Cream store at 5301 East Capitol st. was entered by thieves who made off with two gallons of ice cream, 15 dozen eggs and $2 in change, Carrie Cummings of 105 Division ave. ne. told police.

Clothes valued at $75 were stolen by ventilator-window thieves who rifled the car of Douglas B. Perry of Silver Spring, Md., parked at 14th and S sts. nw.

A $150 record-player made for the use of the blind was stolen from a car parked in front of his home, reported by Charles H. Hamilton of 1300 Clifton st. nw.

Dr. William Moses of 4421 Dittmar rd., Arlington, Va., reported theft of his car from a lot in the 1300 block of H st. nw.

Man Lives by the Side of Road, Afraid He'll Fall Right In

A $15,000 brick home at 6516 Eastern ave. ne., is giving its owner, Henry W. Connell, 49-year-old Government Printing Office compositor, the biggest headache he ever expects to have.

Connell fears, with good reason, his home may slide into the sheer 21-foot-deep roadway the D. C. Highway Department is digging smack up to his front door. Tests, he says, have shown his foundation to be sand.

To avert this, the highway department has informed Connell he must pay for a concrete retaining wall. That would cost him $5200—a sum he says he hasn't got.

Connell is hardest hit of residents of the 6500 and 6600 blocks of Eastern ave. ne., where construction work is now being done on the extension of the avenue from Laurel st. to New Hampshire ave.

In 1940, the D. C. government paid from $500 to $5800 to owners i nthose blocks for 90-foot swaths of land—their front yards—which carried to the Maryland line. The awards followed condemnation proceedings.

Connell, who is married and has two daughters, was awarded $1000. The $5800 went to a man whose home had to be moved.

Now, those same owners are faced with personal expenditures from $300 up to Connell's estimated $6000. Most must build the concrete retaining walls; all must transfer their water and sewage connections from the town of Takoma Park, Md., to the District. Connell has bids ranging from $650 to $716 for this project.

After talks with District officials had brought no promise of relief, Connell last Friday took his story to Senator Arthur Capper (R., Kans.), former chairman and presently a member of the Senate District Committee.

The matter was referred to James R. Kirkland, the committee's counsel. Yesterday Kirkland disclosed he had requested the Commissioners to make a "full report" to the Senate District Committee.

While Engineer Commissioner Young yesterday said he had not received Kirkland's communication, he did admit "complaints from residents of the area have been received and are now under study."

Assistant Engineer Commissioner Cox said a "temporary bulkhead" would be put in by the District to prevent houses from washing down onto the new highway, but that the District "couldn't construct a permanent retaining wall."

"We did everything we possibly could for those people," he said. "They're caught by rising prices."

But GPO Printer Connell, who says he can't afford to put up a wall costing $5200, also says he doesn't see what the District can do about it.

"I'm going to stay in my home until it falls over," he doggedly declares.

Life on Duty Can Be Rough, 4 Police Agree

The gendarmerie of Washington have been getting a few lumps in the performance of their duty recently, Municipal Court cases indicated yesterday.

Pvt. Alton Thomas of the Tenth Precinct showed a properly sympathetic Judge Armond W. Scott a bite wound on his arm. He said Mrs. Mary C. Hughes, 35, of 3022 14th st. ne. bit him when he tried to arrest her on a jaywalking charge Tuesday at Georgia ave. and Irving st. nw.

Mrs. Hughes told Judge Scott she was running from a streetcar to a waiting bus, as were several other persons, when Thomas tried to stop here. She said she bit him when he twisted her arm. The judge placed her under $500 bond and ordered her held for action of the grand jury on a charge of assaulting an officer.

Judge Scott also heard the plaint of Pvt. Gerard F. Smith of the Traffic Division who said he was jabbed in the stomach with an elbow and almost rendered unconscious October 21 at 11th and E sts. nw., while trying to arrest George G. Miller, 25, of 2409 Randolph ave., Alexandria, Va., on a jaywalking charge.

Miller was found guilty of assault and his case was referred to a probation officer before sentencing in two weeks.

Pvt. Harvey Womble of the Ninth Precinct told Judge Scott he almost suffered bodily harm while arresting John T. Sale, 31, at the latter's home, 204 21st st. ne., Tuesday.

Sale, who is charged with assault and making threats against his wife, was granted a jury trial January 5 and bond was set at $800.

In the courtroom of Judge John P. McMahon, Carl C. Newman, special officer at Union Station, declared he was punched in the face by James W. Halley, 32, of 708 Florida ave. nw., while attempting to quell a disturbance in the station September 14.

Halley, charged with assault and drunkeness, told the jury he did not know Newman was an officer. The jury found him guilty on both counts and Judge McMahon sentenced him to $75 or 60 days on the assault charge and $10 or five days on the drunk charge.

Police Order Seeks to End 'Died-After-Arrest Reports

Police yesterday took sweeping action to keep "died after arrest" reports off its records.

Designed for its own protection as well as that of persons arrested after being found unconscious or semiconscious, the department's general order also requires a "thorough" report by policemen on each case.

It requires that such persons be taken to a hospital immediately for examination to determine if he is suffering any serious illness or injury.

At the same time, the policeman will be required to make "an immediate and thorough" investigation at the scene; then make a report "giving all facts in the case to include name of the examining doctor and results of the examination."

Instructions include a provision that the policeman will search unconscious or semiconscious persons for insulin "or any papers which might indicate the person is taking treatment for diabetes."

Police are advised that "a person could reasonably have the odor of intoxicants on his breath and still be suffering from a diabetic coma or other infirmities with like symptoms instead of intoxication."

Two men died last week within two days after they had been held by police. One of them had been struck by a car; the other had been arrested twice in one night for intoxication.

The general order yesterday came within 24 hours after the Alcohol Beverage Board heard testimony that a woman wsa held by police overnight as a drunk, but actually was seriously ill.

Under the new order, persons arrested with fresh injuries will be taken to a hospital immediately for examination and the arresting officer will make out a complete report including a notation of "all cuts, bruises, contusions and other injuries" visible to the officer at the time of the person's arrest.

Also included are orders to take to hospitals any prisoner who complains of being ill while held in a cell block and return to a hospital of any prisoner who still complains of being ill after a previous examination.

The general order is an amplification of the recent agreement reached with Gallinger Hospital, police and District officials over hospital examinations for persons arrested.

At Gallinger Hospital, Dr. Alvin R. Sweeney, superintendent, said the order merely lists the category of cases "which we have been handling since the recent conference."

He added that the "new manner of handling" has worked out satisfactorily despite the fact that there "has been a great increase in the number of cases brought to the hospital."

Hearings Planned On Right to Work During Strikes

The House Labor Committee will begin hearings early next year on whether there should be a law against interference by strikers with "the civil rights of workers who want to stay on the job," Chairman Hartley (R., N. J.) announced yesterday.

He said the first witness January 19 will be Cecil B. DeMille, Hollywood movie producer.

"We are not planning any strike-breaking measure," Hartley said in an interview. "But if more than 50 per cent of the workers in a plant want to keep on working they should have the right to do it," he added.

"What we are interested in doing is to bring about a respect for law and order in American industrial disputes. We want to put a stop to violence and intimidation, cut out the muscle flexing and banish the union 'goon squads' with their clubs."

Hartley said leaders of both labor and industry will be invited to give their viewpoints.

Bids Advertised For Span Approaches

Harpers Ferry, W. Va., Nov. 19. The State Road Commission at Charleston yesterday advertised for bids for construction of 2.2 miles of approaches to the new bridge under construction across the Shenandoah River at Bolivar, west of here.

The project, on Route 40, would include roadbed from Bolivar to the bridge on the west side of the river, and from the bridge end to the Virginia State line. The road would connect with the Virginia highway leading to the recently opened Sandy Hook bridge across the Potomac, connecting Maryland and Virginia. Bids will be opened December 2 at Charleston.

Church Food Sale

Manassas, Va., Nov. 19.—Women at Buckhall United Brethren Church here will sponsor a food sale at the church at 7:30 p. m. next Tuesday.

Police Captain Lone Objector To Liquor License for Cafe

Capt. Robert C. Pearce of the First Precipct yesterday urged the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board to reject an application by Alfred V. Johnson, jr., of 1433 T st. nw., for a Class C license at 18 G st. nw.

Four restaurants, one with Class D and three with Class C licenses, located within 1½ blocks of the applicant's site, adequately serve the neighborhood, said Captain Pearce at a hearing at which he was sole protestor.

Another restaurant selling drinks "would add to the police problem there, no doubt," said the captain.

H. Slifford Alider, attorney for the applicant, pointed out the present restaurants' seating capacity is only about 200 while there are thousands of workers at the nearby Government Printing Office.

The four restaurants are usually crowded at night and there are relatively few residents in the area who might be disturbed, Captain Pearce admitted under questioning.

Formerly a pool room, the proposed site is now being remodeled as a restaurant. The application was taken under advisement by the board.

Kitchen at D. C. Home Called 'Deplorable'

Representative A. L. Miller (R., Nebr.) said yesterday he will confer with the District Commissioners about improving "deplorable" kitchen facilities at Washington's Home for the Aged and Infirm.

Miller, chairman of the House District subcommittee on health, education and recreation, visited the home yesterday. The visit was one of a series the physician-representative has been making to District health and welfare institutions.

Besides the Home for the Aged and Infirm, he visited the Industrial Home School. Both institutions are at Blue Plains, D. C.

He said the Industrial Home School is "doing a fine job," and its program of recreation and instruction is excellent.

As for the Home for the Aged and Infirm, Miller said its kitchen equipment is from 75 to 80 years old, and is in "deplorable" condition.

He said he didn't see how the institution could handle meals for nearly 450 residents and 100 employes.

Miller said his subcommittee may later hold public hearings on school textbooks. He said a review is being made as a result of the protest by the District Veterans of Foreign Wars against school use of the book "Building Citizenship."

Segregation Bill Moved

House District Chairman Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) said yesterday a proposed bill to end racial segregation at the National Airport is to be turned over to the House Judiciary Committee for handling.

The bill was submitted by the Commerce Department, and sent to the District Committee since it called for an amendment to the District-Virginia Boundary Act of 1945.

Dirksen explained that the boundary law had clearly removed the airport from District jurisdiction. He said the proposed bill calls for a change in the Judicial Code, and properly should be left to the Judiciary Committee.

Found Dead at Hotel

Poland Claims Swede Aided Two Fugitives

Warsaw, Nov. 19 (AP).—The Polish government charged today that the Swedish consul in Gdansk (Danzig) was involved in the flight of Stefan Korbonski and his wife to Sweden and demanded that Stockholm order his immediate recall.

The Poles protested sharply to the Swedish government against what they termed "the systematic smuggling of Poles abroad by Swedish officials and citizens" and accused Swedish newspapers of conducting a violent anti-Polish campaign.

Korbonski, a member of Parliament and an aide to the exiled Polish Peasant Party Leader Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, made known his presence in Stockholm a week ago today. He and his pretty dark-haired wife, Sofia, have since gone to England to join Mikolajczyk.

A olish government spokesman said the Korbonskis fled Poland hidden in the air raid shelter of the ferryboat Queen Viktoria, with the knowledge of the ship's captain and other crew members.

The Polish government sought the recall of Consul Torsten Johan Frederik Bergendahl, and said he was "aware and directly involved" in smuggling operations in which considerable amounts of money had changed hands. He was described as "persona non grata."

The Polish government spokesman told reporters "some Swedish officials and Swedish citizens and ships are involved in the smuggling out of people leaving Poland illegally. He said the captain would be "forever barred" from Polish ports.

(In Stockholm, the Swedish Foreign Office said it has decided to recall the consul at Danzig. The communique declared, however, the accusation that the consul had helped the Poles get out of the country was rejected "as completely unfounded.")

Currency Reform Voted in Austria

Vienna, Nov. 19 (AP).—The Austrian parliament passed tonight, 161 to 4, a new currency reform bill which the government said was aimed at black market operators.

Shortly before the measure was passed, however, Karl Altmann, minister of electric power and only Communist in the Austrian cabinet, said he had submitted his resignation to President Karl Renner. He said he opposed the bill. The four Communist members of parliament voted against the measure which calls for a devaluation of 66 per cent of all outstanding schillings.

Soviet Stand Blamed On 'Fear, Ignorance'

Stamford, Conn., Nov. 19 (U.P.).—Francis B. Sayre, an American delegate to the United Nations, said tonight that Soviet vituperation against the United States was due "in part to fear, in part to a deep-rooted inferiority complex, and in part to widespread ignorance."

"America is strong enough and great enough to follow whatever course is right and wise, irrespective of Soviet abuse," Sayre told the Stamford Forum for World Affairs.

U.S. May Allow More Acreage In Va. Tobacco

By The Associated Press

A tentative promise of relief was won yesterday by a group of Virginians protesting proposed acreage cuts for type 21 dark fired tobacco.

J. L. Maxton of the Virginia Extension Division, Blacksburg, said after conferences with Virginia congressional delegation members and agriculture officials that market tests for surpluses will be made in December.

Maxton said agriculture officials agreed that if Government buying is not unduly heavy the proposed cuts of between 35 and 45 per cent may be restored if it can be done legally. There has been no announcement of the actual allotment reduction.

A bill may be introduced at the next regular session to separate type 21 from other types of dark fired, Maxton said.

"We are in a better stock position and because of this and because buyers continue to buy type 21 we feel that separation of types would be beneficial to us," he added. Commodity Credit Corporation buying of type 21 amounted to about 7 per cent last year as compared to about 40 per cent for types 22, 23 and 24.

State Senator Charles T. Moses of Appomatox, who arranged the conferences, said proposed acreage allotment cuts would make the growing of this type unprofitable for many farmers. Numerous growers plant only an acre or two, he said.

Maxton said a series of meetings will be arranged in the 17 Virginia counties growing this tobacco to keep the growers informed.

The initial meetings probably will be held at Lynchburg, Farmville and Bedford.

Meanwhile a 28-per-cent cut in flue-cured tobacco acreage for most individual farmers was called for yesterday by Secretary of Agriculture Anderson in announcing the 1948 production program.

The reduction was ordered because of a decline in foreign markets.

Engineers Society To Give Citation To M. C. Grover

Nathan Clifford Grover, 79, former chief hydraulic engineer, United States Geological Survey, tonight will be awarded the annual citation of the Washington Society of Engineers, at Hotel Mayflower.

The award, for scientific achievement, will cite Grover for his "outstanding professional achievements as distinguished teacher, engineer, administrator and public servant." It is the second presentation of the society's honor.

Gordon Fox, vice president of the Freyn Engineering Co., Chicago, Ill., will be principal speaker. His chosen topic is "Russia and the Communist Challenge."

Burma Deaths Laid To Premier's Guard

The association comprises graduates of the school, which claims distinction as the oldest military church school in America. Dinner arrangements are being made by Larry S. Lynch, business manager of the Army Times and a graduate of Shattuck in 1918.

Memorial Rites Held for Winant In St. Paul's

London, Nov. 19 (U.P.).—A memorial service, attended by 23 Ambassadors and Ministers, was held in St. Paul's Cathedral today for the late John Winant, former United States Ambassador to Britain who committed suicide.

Prime Minister Clement Attlee read a tribute at the simple service at which 12 other Cabinet Ministers and Opposition Leader Winston Churchill were present.

[The service for Winant was believed to have been the first for an American in St. Paul's since the death of President Roosevelt. The fact that St. Paul's was chosen for the Winant service, with the Prime Minister himself reading the lesson, was a sign of the unusual place the late Ambassador had won for himself in England. St. Paul's is "The Parish Church of the Empire," and is used for great national occasions.—Editor's note.]

Court Reverses Decree Granted In Montgomery

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 19 (AP).—The Court of Appeals has reversed a Montgomery County Court decree giving a partial divorce to James E. Vogts from Helen C. Vogts, former War Department stenographer.

The court held Vogts had presented for the allegation of his wife's adultry "no clear and convincing proof of either disposition or opportunity."

The lower court had granted Vogts custody of their two children besides the divorce decree.

The higher tribunal, after reciting incidents of the record, said "because of his (Vogts') unwarranted departure, his wife is entitled to a "partial divorce.. "We find also that she is entitled to the custody of the children."

Md. Court Backs Divorce Decree

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 19 (AP).—The Maryland Court of Appeals upheld today a partial divorce decree for Bessie P. Bradshaw of 8610 Manchester rd., Silver Spring from Marvin P. Bradshaw of 2316 40th st. nw., Washington and ordered him to pay her $210 allimony per month.

Bradshaw had appealed a decision of the Montgomery County Circuit Court which granted the divorce decree and the alimony.

The court remarked that the alimony allowed was about 30 per cent of Bradshaw's income after payment of income tax.

Two Men Found Dead Under Overturned Jeep

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 19 (AP).—Two men were found dead early today—pinned under a jeep which overturned off a Spotsylvania County highway two miles east of Belmont.

They were listed by State Police as Warren P. Clemen, 24, of Nokesville, Va., and William Day, 24, of Mineral, Va.

State Trooper W. J. Townsley said that from marks on the road it appeared to him the jeep had run off the road, rounded a curve on the shoulder of the highway (Route 653), struck a ditch and overturned, pinning down its occupants.

Valley Health Topic

Winchester, Va., Nov. 19.—Health and medical care in the Shenandoah Valley will be considered by the Virginia Council on Health and Medical Care at a public meeting at Handley Library auditorium at 2 p. m. tomorrow. # Md. Livestock Group Backs Free Economy

Timonium, Md., Nov. 19 (AP).—The Maryland livestock feed committee, appointed recently by President H. C. Byrd of the University of Maryland in connection with the Government's drive to save 100 million bushels of grain for shipment to Europe, resloved at its first meeting today that "a free econmy, allowing free play of the law of supply and demand," would aid feed conservation.

The committee said that "the use of well-balanced rations is among the most efficient methods of conserving feed," and added that a "free economy" is the "best assurance of the farmers' ability to get a balanced ration."

Chairman Roger B. Corbett, dean of the University of Maryland College of Agriculture, said the committee was opposed to a "return to a situation in which the farmer cannot get all the feed necessary for efficient production," and believed that "not returning to that situation is the best way of saving feed."

The 15-man body was organized after Secretary of Agriculture Anderson asked the presidents of land grant colleges to appoint committees to outline State conservation programs.

The committee urged Maryland farmers to "fill your lockers now" with frozen poultry and livestock, and asked poultrymen and dairymen to cull low-producing hens and cows.

Plans were outlined to secure the cooperation of all agricultural groups in Maryland in a program of conservation.

Besides Corbett, who will serve as chairman, the following were named to the subgroup:

Dr. G. M. Cairns, head of the dairy department of the University of Maryland; M. A. Jull, head of the poultry department at the university; Dr. J. E. Foster, head of the livestock department; W. B. Kemp, director of the Maryland Experiment Station, and Margafet McPheeters, nutrition specialist at the university.

Miller (D., Calif.).

Hearing on Sunday Sale

Manassas, Va., Nov. 19.—The Prince William County Board of Supervisors will hold public hearings on Sunday sale of beer and wine in the county at 1:30 p. m. December 4. A present ordinance prohibits sale, but requests that the law be changed have recently been made on the grounds that it takes business away from the county.

Mrs. Lent, 84, Former Piano Teacher, Dies

Mrs. Mary S. Lent, 84, former concert pianist and teacher here, died Tuesday at her home, 3100 Connecticut ave. nw., after a long illness.

Mrs. Lent and her husband, the late Ernest Lent, who was a cellist and teacher, were prominent in Washington musical circles for many years. The couple gave a musical program at the White House in 1898 at the invitation of President McKinley in honor of the Supreme Court justices.

Born and educated in the District, Mrs. Lent later studied in Berlin with Moszkowski and in Vienna with Gruenfeld. She appeared with th eBoston Symphony Orchestra and other well-known musical organizations as a piano soloist. Later she was piano teacher at the Fairmont Seminary here, retiring a number of years ago.

Surviving are two sons, Wilmar F. Lent of Milwaukee and Rudolph E. Lent of Passaic, N. J.; two daughters, Mrs. Margaret Lent Mulford of Washington, art teacher, and Mrs. Sylvia Lent Frankenstein of San Francisco, a former concert artist here, and two sisters, Miss Sarah E. Simons, retired head of the English department of District high schools, and Mrs. Daisy C. Mason of Montclair, N. J.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Baruch Offers 15-Point Plan For Medicine

New York, Nov. 19 (INS).—Elder statesman Bernard Baruch blueprinted a 15-point program for the medical profession tonight, including a recommendation that a new cabinet post be created for health, education and social security.

Baruch also urged a form of compulsory health insurance for low income groups, free of politics and financed alike by the Government, the employer and the worker.

He said this can be done without "socialized medicine," or Governmental absorption of the medical field, which he himself would "fiercely oppose."

The noted presidential adviser also called for a stabilized economy, asserting that "inflation will make worthless any health program or anything else." He warned that revolutionary discontent stems from the unsatisfied demands of the masses for better living.

Baruch's program was placed before the medical profession at a dinner sponsored by the Medical Society of the State of New York, the coordinating council of the Five County Medical Societies of Greater New York, and the Greater New York Hospital Association.

In addition to the cabinet post and the compulsory insurance, Baruch's program also called for these developments:

More doctors, nurses, technicians and hospitals; better distribution of these facilities; more general practitioners, fewer specialists; more research, expanded health education and a vigorous preventive medical program.

Faces 10 Years

Md. Carpenter Convicted in Wife's Death

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 19 (AP).—An Anne Arundel County Circuit Court jury convicted Joseph Henry Holland, 43-year-old Odenton carpenter, of manslaughter today in the death of his wife in the well of their home September 11.

The State had asked a first degree murder verdict.

The all-male jury deliberated exactly five hours.

Holland, appearing tired but impassive, stood up when the jurymen filed back into the courtroom.

Emmanuel Suit, Davidsonville farmer and foreman of the jury, read the verdict at 6:06 p. m.

Holland's expression did not change. He made no statement.

Holland was remanded to the county jail pending passage of sentence, which will not take place before tomorrow.

The charge carries a penalty of up to 10 years' imprisonment.

George B. Woelfel, defense attorney, said he would take under consideration the possibility of a move for a new trial.

Three messages came from the small chamber behind their courtroom box after the jurors took over Holland's fate at 1:06 p. m.

Once they asked for a redefinition of the degrees of murder. Presiding Judge William J. McWilliams had advised them they could convict Holland of murder in the first or second degree, or manslaughter—or acquit him.

Other requests were for some of the exhibits introduced by State's Attorney Marvin I. Anderson during the three-day trial and for a ruler to mark out distances.

The court declined each request.

John M. Roper

Funeral services for John M. Roper, 63, 1402 Orren st. ne., will be held at Hysong's funeral home, 1300 N st. nw., tomorrow at 11 a. m. Interment will be in Columbia Gardens Cemetery, Arlington.

Mr. Roper, who died at his home Tuesday, was a retired Metropolitan Police lieutenant and a member of the Petworth Masonic Lodge.

J. G. Bohannon Dies; Ex-Mayor Of Petersburg

Richmond, Va., Nov. 19 (AP).—J. Gordon Bohannan, 66, former mayor of Petersburg and a prominent attorney who held numerous public offices, died at the medical college of Virginia Hospital today after a long illness.

Funeral services will be held at 4 p. m. tomorrow at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Petersburg, with burial in Blandford Cemetery.

Before entering the University of Virginia Law School in 1903, Mr. Bohannan taught school in his native Claremont, Surry County, and at the Smithfield Institute. He was a graduate of the College of William and Mary and a past rector of the college.

A year after his return to Surry in 1905, Mr. Bohannan was named Commonwealth's Attorney for the county and held that position until he moved to Petersburg in 1912.

In Petersburg, Mr. Bohannan served as mayor, member of the city council, city attorney, and president of the chamber of commerce. He was also a former member of the Statae Board of Education and president of the Virginia Bar Association.

His varied business interests included directorates on the boards of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., the Petersburg & Hopewell Gas Co., and the Hummel Ross Fibre Corp.

Mr. Bohannan married the former Elizabeth Lamb of James City County in 1909 and she died in 1934. Thirteen years later he married Mrs. Elizabeth Randolph Macon Tilley of Williamsburg. She died in 1939.

Montgomery Hits Liquor Profit Peak

Fraud Charged

Quick Loses License in Realty Deal

The District Real Estate Commission yesterday revoked a broker's license after finding him guilty of "fraudulent and dishonest dealings" in sale of a house to two veterans.

The broker, Mitchell Quick, 2413 Pennsylvania ave. nw., was exonerated on two other counts of alleged fraud in another deal.

Quick said he had already informed the commission he will appeal the case in District Court. Filing of such an appeal will stay the commission's order pending final decision by the court.

Quick was found guilty of arranging sale of a house at 614 18th st ne. to Clarence Dickason and John Liggett for a price higher than the Veterans' Administration appraisal.

VA had granted a loan to the two veterans in the belief that the sale price was $9500, the amount approved by VA appraisers. Actually, however, Quick received $250 more from the men and privately turned it over to the seller, the late Mrs. Ella M. Schilz, the commission found.

Charges that similar actions by Quick in another deal constituted a fraud against Joseph N. Slaughter, 2028 Gales st. ne., and James L. Moses, 2020 Gales st. ne., were dismissed because the commission felt the veterans knew, or should have known, of the over-appraisal payments.

In another action, the commission suspended Frederic L. Paterson's broker's license for seven days. He was found guilty of "failing to remit funds belonging to another in a reasonable time." The commission found Paterson had shown "bad management" in delaying payment of $743.44 in rental funds due Eugene Carusi and his sister, Mrs. Helen Lombard Brown.

Paterson, who was serving as rental agent, agreed to pay Carusi and Mrs. Brown the funds as part of a settlement arranged December 7, 1946. Paterson paid $600 on account in March, 1947, the balance August 6, 1947. The commission ruled this was longer than a "reasonable" time.

The suspension becomes effective seven days after notice is served on Paterson. The commission said it would serve the notice today.

First Four Months Of Current Year Yield $156,000

The Montgomery County Liquor Control Board yesterday reported an all-time high in profits for the first four months of any fiscal year.

Manager Charles B. Busher said profits for the July-October period this year were approximately 156,000, a new high. Last year, he said, profits were $147,000 during the same period.

A total of $11,000 was turned over to the statae in the form of sales tax receipts during the four month period, Buscher said. In addition, he disclosed, approximately $48,000 was delivered to the Statae for the alcohol tax, making a total of $204,000 in revenue for the quarter.

"These profits continue to hold up above those of last year despite a decline of 35 to 40 per cent in liquor profits for adjoining areas," Buscher declared.

He attributed the fact to recent price reductions by the Liquor Board "which have attracted a large percentage of Montgomery residents to our dispensaries."

Pointing out that all profits are turned over to the Montgomery government, Buscher estimated that without the liquor profits the county tax rates would have to be increased another 22 to 24 cents.

Buscher also disclosed there will be no shortage of liquor during the forthcoming holiday season.

35-Foot Pole Stolen

Des Moines, Nov. 19 (AP).—Kenneth Sonderleiter had a poser for police today. He reported the theft from his parking lot of a 35-foot light pole. The thieves dug it up, hauled it away.

Navy Captain Is Sued by VA Lawyer

A $5000 suit against a Navy captain brought by a Veterans Administration lawyer who charged he was falsely arrested was aired yesterday in Montgomery County circuit court.

During testimony in the case, the lawyer, James T. Crouch, admitted he had called Capt. Thomas J. Kennedy, USNR, a "screw ball" over his refusal to sign a zoning petition being circulated by Crouch.

Police testified that after the incident Captain Kennedy, a medical officer assigned to the Navy Retirement Board, who lives at 1203 Brookeville rd., signed a warrant charging Crouch with disorderly conduct.

The case was heard in Silver Spring Police Court, but dismissed for lack of sufficient evidence, and Crouch countered with the suit for damages.

Asked yesterday in what manner he had been damaged by the incident, Crouch said his "credit and reputation" has been injured. Also asked by attorneys to define the term "screw ball," Crouch said to hi mthe word meant "a comment on the unnatural actions of a man."

Captain Kennedy said Crouch, we lives at 9601 Riley pl., Silver Spring, became angered when he refused to sign the zoning petition.

Gem Bandits' Loot Included Diamond Valued at $100,000

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
MRS. RICHARD N. COFFIN

Dartmouth, Mass., Nov. 19 (AP).—Gem thieves who knew precisely what they wanted were sought tonight in the reported pistol-point robbery of $200,000 in jewelry from Mrs. Richard N. Coffin, former Broadway showgirl and once wife of the late Damon Runyon.

Police Chief Clarence H. Brownell said Mrs. Coffin, wife of a 24-year-old wealthy New Bedford job printed, listed among the loot a 31.31 carat diamond ring, known as the Amati diamond described as the eleventh largest in the world and valued at $100,000.

According to Mrs. Coffin, she and her husband were met in their palatial Mishaum Point home by three armed and masked men when they returned from Boston last night.

5 Burned to Death In Pa. Apartment

Mt. Pleasant, Pa., Nov. 19 (AP).—Five persons burned to death today in flames which destroyed a three-story apartment - business building in this western Pennsylvania town.

Firemen tentatively identified three of the victims as Mr. John Crosby and two of her children. Mrs. Crosby had five children, but it was not immediately ascertained whether the other two victims were her children.

Christmas Tree Sales Authorized on Five City Lots

The Commissioners took a load off Santa's mind yesterday by acting to insure wide sale of Christmas trees this year in the District.

The city heads awarded the contract giving Robert E. Higdon, 2407 22d st. ne., the right to sell Christmas trees and other holiday accessories on five city-owned lots.

Higdon bid $227.50 each for two weeks rent of lots at 18th st. and Rhode Island ave. ne., and Connecticut ave. and Macomb st. nw. His bids of $2 each on three other lots were accepted because there were no competing bids. The latter lots are located at Good Hope rd. and 17th st. se., Benning rd. and Minnesota ave. and Missouri ave. and 9th st. nw.

Higdon's only competitor, William Simpson, Clarkesville, Md., submitted a much lower bid for only the lot at 18th st. and Rhode Island ave. ne., officials said.

2 Held Guilty Of U. S. Fraud In Alexandria

George A. Gormley, 51, Washington businessman, was convicted in Alexandria District Court yesterday of attempting to defraud the government of $73,000 worth of war surplus woolen cloth.

Gormley

Louis V. Dionne, 30-year-old War Assets Administration employe, pleaded guilty to the charge that he falsified an invoice to show Gormley purchased 40,000 yards of cloth for $96,000. The Government contended he paid only $24,000. Both men will be sentenced December 1.

The jury deliberated only half an hour following a 2 1-2 day trial.

Dionne testified as a Government witness that while he was employed at the Army Quartermaster Depot near Alexandria he agreed with Gormley to change the figures on an invoice, for which he received $7000. After Gormley had bought 10,000 yards of woolen cloth for $24,000, Dionne said he changed the invoice to show Gormley had purchased 40,000 yards for $96,000.

Gormley claimed he bought the 10,000 yards at a war surplus sale. At the end of the sale, he said, Dionne told him he could buy an additional 30,000 yards of mildewed cloth for $19,000. Gormley said he paid Dionne cash for the mildewed cloth and received no receipt for it. Eventually, the entire 40,000 yards was sold to Henry Marks, a New York dealer, for $53,000.

Marks testified at the trial that he knew nothing about the cloth being mildewed.

Stefan Asks Recall Of Envoy to Greece

Representative Karl Stefan (R., Nebr.) yesterday asked the State Department to recall Lincoln MacVeagh as Ambassador to Greece and name Dwight Griswold, head of the American relief mission in that country, as his successor.

The State Department and the White House have denied reports that MacVeagh will be recalled, but unofficial sources said it appears likely there will be a shake-up among United States officials in Greece.

Stefan said in a statement that, although MacVeagh is a "capable diplomat, America's job in Greece at Present is largely administrative and should be headed by a man with experience as a chief executive."

Post readers want your dinette set!

Yes, that dinette set you no longer need is another item now in demand among Washington Post readers. Miss Doris Duley, 5714 40th Avenue, Hyattsville, got proof of that the other day when she advertised a dinette set which had cost her $50 new. She sold it almost immediately for $40. And after the sale there were many other calls—many times Miss Duley had to say, "Sorry, the set is already sold."

Those people who called too late are excellent prospects for your dinette set. Advertise it in The Post now, along with other furniture items you've stored away. It's a quick, convenient way to make Christmas spending money. Cost is low. You can phone your ad in and charge it.

We Want the Public to Know the Facts

In 1946 a provision of the Naval Appropriation Bill forbids the civilian employees of the Navy to strike. This was reaffirmed in 1947 by the Taft-Hartley Bill. We have no quarrel with either of these provisions of Acts of Congress, we never wanted to strike anyway, but in all justice it would appear that in depriving the Government employee the right to use the principal weapon with which he might fight, the Congress accepted an obligation to protect him from the causes which usually lead to strikes. We cannot believe that the Congress took away the weapon in order to take advantage of its employees.

On Oct. 31 the Navy Department announced the long awaited wage adjustments for the per diem employees of the Metropolitan Washington Area. The amount of the increase for the basic trades varies from 1 to 7 cents per hour. At about the same time there were other increases announced for other areas which ran from 17 to 19 cents per hour. Workmen as near as Philadelphia get this higher rate.

For years it has been the boast of the Navy that the best in naval ordnance was produced in Washington and vicinity and the experimental and research work done in the laboratories in and near the District has resulted in the development and protection of many new weapons which are considered by those who used them, second to none. The type of workmen employed in these naval establishments compare favorably with any workmen, anywhere. The Navy's mechanics in this area are insulted by the fact that their skill is not recognized, that after producing and developing the sinews of war, which were tested and proved on the scene of battle, their "know how" is so unappreciated as to result in a wage offered that is less than that offered for common labor in the building trades.

Why the discrimination?

Since the beginning of the war the wages in all naval yards and stations have been stabilized. What was considered a just wage in the West was considered a just wage in the East. Statements emanating from the White House have implied that the wage stabilization policy is still in force. In order to justify the meager increase the Navy Department went back to an antiquated law which was passed in 1862. This law has failed to keep pace with modern trends in labor relations, it entirely fails to recognize the principle of the employee having any say in the decisions affecting the adjustment of his wages. All of the personnel who acted in any capacity in taking the survey or in calculating the results were people whom the Navy states are part of management. The employees organizations were told that "it is the responsibility of management to collect the necessary wage data for any survey."

In any other industry such discrimination would probably have resulted in a strike. We can only protest, let the facts be known, and depend on public opinion to help us. Business men in Washington surely realize that their business opportunities depend to a great degree upon a standard buying power among their present and potential customers. Working people must realize that the existence of a group receiving sub standard wages in their crafts is to promote a form of competition that will threaten their own livelihood. We all must realize that the cost of living, of rearing or maintaining a family according to the American standard, is just as high, or higher here than elsewhere.

We appeal to the residents of Metropolitan Washington, to the suburbanites in Maryland and Virginia, to the visitors in the District at this time, and to the members of the Senate and House of Representatives who are assembled here for the special session to lift their voices with us in protest against this evident discrimination.

Caps' Rally Beats Out Warriors, 74-67

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

INEVITABLY, THEY'VE hauled out the old clamor for a civilian football coach at the Naval Academy in the wake of another poor season for Navy. In this case, an Annapolis, Md., editorialist raises the cry "the-time-has-come, etc." to replace Capt. Tom Hamilton with a career man in the coaching profession.

POVICH

The tone of the squawk is that a civilian coach would be a cure-all for Navy's football ills, and it's pointed out that the Middies have won only two games since 1945. Never was there such a blanket compliment to civilian coaches, dozens of whom are fired by civilian colleges each year at the end of losing seasons.

The complaint isn't aimed at Hamilton, it says. "In these days football is a big business, coaching is a profession, and it is not fair to expect a man to be an efficient naval officer and at the same time be an efficient football coach. Each is a career in itself . . . under the present system, Navy, although fighting splendidly, is beaten and mauled weekend after weekend . . . it's simply tossing the players to the lions for the amusement of crowded stadiums."

BUT AS RECENTLY as last November nobody was finding fault with the system of service coaches at Annapolis. In fact, Hamilton was being hailed as something of a miracle man when his underdog Navy team matched unbeaten Army touchdown for touchdown in Philadelphia and was within three yards of the biggest upset of the decade at the final gun.

At this point, what is a bit unseemly is the silence of Navy brass following the complaint against the Annapolis coaching system. Neither Captain Taylor, the athletic director nor Admiral Holloway, the Academy superintendent, has seen fit to comment and it has left Hamilton in the embarrassment of being undefended. They indorse his backbreaking football schedules, Lowever.

Navy's trouble is not a coaching trouble. They're trying to play big-time opponents with small-time material. Six times this year, Hamilton was sending his team against undefeated opposition—California, Notre Dame, Penn, Penn State, Georgia Tech and Duke. In contrast to Army, which ran out on Notre Dame after losing Blanchard and Davis, Navy didn't cancel.

NAVY HAS WON only one of its seven games thus far, but actually nobody has pushed the Midshipmen around. They gave Notre Dame a tougher game than did Army, and they came close to licking both Georgia Tech and California. Navy has been losing, but it hasn't been mauled, exactly. Army is no sure shot to beat 'em, either.

It's doubtful whether Frank Leahy or Fritz Crisler of Michigan could have had winning seasons at Annapolis the last two years. The flow of material into the Naval Academy would be pretty shocking, by their estimates. Rockne used to say to his Notre Dame squad, "I don't have any trick plays for you. Everybody just block, and we'll win." He didn't attribute his victories to coaching magic.

Leahy has a quarterback in Johnny Lujack, who has been playing five years. Navy is limited to players who were not over the age of 20 on entrance to the Academy. It's rough for Annapolis to compete with the civilian colleges in luring football material in peace time. Doc Blanchard couldn't have passed the physical requirements for Navy. Army's standards of vision are more lenient.

AT THE NAVAL ACADEMY they're restricted to lads who can show credits in both math and physics. Unlike civilian schools, they're not permitted to major in physical education. There are no elective subjects to make the course of the athlete easier. At the Naval Academy the only item the Midshipman is permitted to select for himself is his roommate.

Navy has a couple of choices it can make. Either it can lower its entrance and physical standards or drop into an easier league, like the Ivy League, as Army did after losing Blanchard and Davis. Hamilton, however, likes the idea of playing the best. Far from ducking the tough ones, he has scheduled Michigan for next year, though his material promises to be no better.

Hamilton thinks it's more to Navy's credit to get licked by a good team than to romp over weak opposition. So do his football players. Fumbles got Navy licked at least three times this season. The coach never lived, service or civilian, who could hold onto that ball from the sidelines.

'Skin Defense Is Worst In League

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Going into their Sunday tiff at Griffith Stadium, the Redskins and the Chicago Cardinals have scored almost exactlly the the sam number of points in eight games each this season, National Football League statistics show.

The Cardinals hold a mere 179-176 edge inl point making, but the reason for Waschington's lowly fourth place in the East and Chicago's leading position in the West is shown elsewhere.

Only 109 points have been scored against the Cards, while the Redskins have given up 271 points, the best and worst records in the league.

Besides their stinginess with points, the Cardinals have yielded the least total yardage (2165) and the least passing yardage (1010)). Their only lapse has been in rushing defense, where they've given up 1153 yards for seventh place, with only Washington, Boston and Detroit more free handed. The Philadelphia Eagles led with only 768 yards allowed.

Washington's main claim to any sort of fame again hinges around Slingin' Sammy Baugh, who held the passing lead over the Bears' Sid Luckman by completing 20 of 31 tosses against the Detroit Lions. Sammy now has a 58.1 percentage of completions with 126 good ones in 217 tries. Luckman has clicked on 124 of 220.

Baugh also retained his eastern punting lead despite his second blocked kick of the season last week. He's averaged 43.6 yards a boot while Jack Jacobs of Green Bay holds the western edge with a 44.1 average.

In other individual departments the leaders remained the same. It was Philadelphia Steve Van Buren in the ground gaining lead with a 5.1 average, Detroit's Bill Dudley in the scoring lead with 60 points. Washington's Bob Nussbaumer and the Bears' Keane topping their sections in pass catching, and Washington's Eddie Saenz and Dudley in front of other kickoff returners in the two divisions.

Offensively, the Bears are the best team with 2165 yards while the surprising runner-up is Washington, 152 yards behind. Behind Baugh, however, the Redskins are second to none in passing offense with 2157 yards compared the the Bears' 1955.

Defeat Gallaudet Catholic Harriers

Catholic University won a cross-country run from Gallaudet here yesterday, 15 to 44, over Gallaudet's 4-mile course. Catholic's Dan Doyle finished first in 21 minutes 33 seconds. Clarence Broecker, who finished sixth, was the first Gallaudet runner to cross the line.

Both schools will compete in the Mason-Dixon Conference meet next Monday at 3:45 over Gallaudet's course. Thirteen schools are entered.

Yesterday's summaries—First, Dan Doyle; second, H. Donohue; third, J. Rudd; fourth, T. Cronin; fifth, J. Arnold; sixth, C. Broecker (Gallaudet); seventh, S. Levy.

Alumni of Six Schools Meet Here

Local alumni of six colleges will form radio-side rooting sections in Washingto.. hotels this Saturday.

Vanderbilt-Maryland partisans will gather at the Lafayette Hotel at 1 p. m., Stanford-California fans will receive a play-by-play account at the Hotel Washington, and Ohio State-Michigan alumni will listen in at the Burlington Hotel.

Davidson Rejects Bowl

Davidson, N. C., Nov. 19 (AP).—Davidson College today rejected a "feeler" to play in the second annual Elks Club Tangerine Bowl game New Year's Day at Orlando, Fla.

Take It From Tech's 'Bugs' Thompson—His Team's Going to Romp in Title Game

Highs' Title Game Tickets

Ticket information about the Central-McKinley game at Griffith Stadium the night of November 28, for the Interhigh football championship:

Tickets are on sale at Griffith Stadium, the Fairway Sports Shop, 1328 G st. nw., and the lobby of The Washington Post (The Post's ticket counter will be open from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m. daily).

Prices for reserved seats are $1.80 and $2.40, including tax. General admission (unreserved) seats, $1.20, including tax, will be sold at the ball park only the day of the game.

Parents of students may purchase tickets at the high schools.

Students who hold athletic cards will be admitted for 25 cents if they purchase tickets at their respective schools by November 26, last day of school before the Thanksgiving holidays. Thereafter students must pay regular prices.

Students at private, parochial and county schools also may purchase 25-cent tickets, if they hold athletic cards. These 25-cent tickets will be available at the various schools.

Proceeds of the game will go to the athletic funds of the eight Interhighs, and to the Community Chest. The game is under the sponsorship of the Board of Education and The Washington Post.

Kinney Named Terp Captain

Center Gene Kinney, 21-year-old junior from Louisville, Ky., will captain Maryland against Vanderbilt in Nashville Saturday, the Terp coaches announced lastnight.

This is the second time the red-headed defensive star has had the honor. He led the Old Liners in their 19-7 loss against Duke.

Coach Jim Tatum sent his squad through a scrimmage session in preparation for the Vandy game announced that Halfback Hubey Werner would be ready to paly.

Werner, a regular, has been out of action since the Richmond game October 10 with an ankle injury.

Maryland's squad of about four teams and coaches will leave Washington by chartered plane Friday morning for Nashville.

Jackie Hopes for 'Lot More Money'

Los Angeles, Nov. 19 (AP).—Jackie Robinson, Negro first baseman for the Brooklyn Dodgers, said today he hadn't heard from the baseball club since the season ended but hoped for "a lot more money" next year.

"I have to get it while the getting's good, because I'm 28," he said. "I think I have a pretty good basis for a real raise."

Spartans Tackle Best

East Lansing, Mich., Nov. 1 (AP). Three of the current football campaign's major unbeaten and untied elevens—Michigan, Notre Dame and Penn State—will appear on Michigan State College's 1948 grid slate, Athletic Director Ralph H. Young announced today.

Browns' Trade Hit by Mack

Philadelphia, Nov. 19 (AP).—Connie Mack, Philadelphia Athletics manager, said today he couldn't understand the recent St. Louis Browns' trades with the Boston Red Sox since it broke up the Browns and "is not going to help our league any."

"They will give the Red Sox a powerful team," Mack said, "and certainly make St. Louis a drab spot on our trips. I don't understand it at all.

"I thought they had a fine club last season and should have been up in the race but that something went wrong. Now they apparently have wrecked the club and it is not going to help our league any."

The Athletics' leader declared that "Stephens is a mighty fine player and should do very well with the Red Sox. The trade Joe McCarthy has made already have put them in a top spot in the 1948 race. They wil make it merry for the Yankees."

Tars Stress Defense For Army Game

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 19 (AP).—Navy's defense against Army plays was tested today in a workout on Farragut Field.

Capt. Tom Hamilton drilled his regulars extensively on protection against the Army attack—which pushed over touchdowns against both Notre Dame and Penn. The same teams blanked the Middies.

Everyone on the squad was pronounced in good physical shape today, although doubt still revolved around Roy Russell's appearance in the Army game. He was hurt against Notre Dame.

Pupils Challenge Vikings to Ticket Selling Contest

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Robert (Bugs) Thompson whose clever ball-toting has paced the McKinley Tech Trainers into the interhigh football championship game against Central's Vikings, yesterday carried the ball verbally for teammates and predicted flatly that "Tech will win."

Bugs was answering the victory prediction made the day before by Central Coach Jankowski concerning the November 28 game to be played at night at Griffith Stadium under the auspices of the Board of Education and The Washington Post.

The 17-year-old senior said he didn't want to sound disrespectful to the Central coach, but "I'm glad he brought up that 0-0 Central-Tech game of last year, which Tech was supposed to win easily.

'Central Was Lucky'

"We remember that game very well too," said Thompson. "Central was lucky to hold us that time, but it won't be so lucky this year. The championship is at stake, and we're out to win it."

Thompson, who reeled off touchdown gallops of 12, 68 and 66 yards against the 1946 champion Coolidge team last week before his coach yanked him, had no sooner finished than Coach Ed Solomon cautioned his boys about predicting an easy victory.

'Win It on Field'

He reminded his boys again that underdog Central had held Tech last year and that weak Roosevelt had whipped the heavily favored Trainers, 12-7, last year. "We'll win that game out on the field," he told them.

Then, turning aside to reporters, the heavy-set coach remarked, "we're not enjoying the position of favorites that everyone is putting us in. Sure, we think we'll win; else we wouldn't even play. But, it'll be tough.

"Everybody who has seen us play keeps talking about the running of Thompson and Cecil Gray, but they forget about the blocking those boys have to get. "Central has a great line," he continued. "And if we beat 'em, it'll be through the guards."

Praises His Blockers

As he spoke, he pointed to Ed Cleary and Vernon Moorer, both 180-pounders who had paved the openings for the two backfield aces. "And don't forget Flea Fletcher and Mel Kogod, our two swell blocking backs.

Cleary, who, by the way, is a top student and president of the Tech student council, challenged Central to a ticket-selling contest.

He said, "tickets went on sale here today and already almost half the student body has purchased tickets. We've always had the best school spirit in the city, and are out to prove it especially against Central. Beat 'em on the field and in the stands is our motto.

"We'll do both," he concluded.

Paterson Regains Flyweight Title

London, Nov. 19 (AP).—Stewards of the British boxing Board of Control, who recently deprived Jackie Paterson of his world flyweight title, announced tonight that they had rescinded their decision and would recognize the Glascow fighter as the champion.

The board also restored Paterson British and Empire crowns. He was stripped of all three titles July 30 for failure to defend his world championship against Dado Marino of Honolulu July 16.

Paterson did not weight in for the bout with Marino, which already had been postponed once before when the champion reported he was ill.

Familiar District Faces Dot Hoyas and Colonials' Line-ups

Tomorrow night's clash in Griffith Stadium between Georgetown and George Washington will feature many faces familiar to local scholastic football fans.

The Hoyas will probably start four former District high school standouts and the Colonials list two locals as starters and three more as potential starters.

The Georgetown quartet includes Jim O'Keefe, Gonzaga, and Phil Funk, Wilson, both tackles; Jim Nalls, Bullis, who may replace All-District Guard Bus Werder, who is now sidelined with a leg infection; and Tony Beyer, Georgetown Prep, at fullback.

The four have been used as subs most of this season, but campus rumor has it that Hoya Head Coach Jack Hagerty plans a revamped lineup for some new variations on his famous spread formation.

The Hoyas spent several hours yesterday diagnosing Colonial plays run off by the Frosh squad and were reported putting in overtime spread chalk talks.

Guard Dixifie Howell, Eastern grad, and Left Halfback Al Dugoff, who played for Roosevelt, will head the Colonials' local boy delegation. Either Johnny Grinnell or Don Druckenmiller, both Washington and Lee High graduates, probably will start at center.

Guard Clarence Drayer will represent Tech and former Anacostian Duke Mathieson may start at tackle.

Colonial rooters, who have been prophesying cruel awakenings for the Hoyas, gave Georgetown some of the "cruelty" without the awakenings the other night when they whitewashed the Hilltop campus G-towners slept.

Late last night, alerted Colonials were patroling the 22nd st. area in expectation of Hoya reprisals.

Bob Feerick Chased for Fisticuffs

BULLETIN

The Washington Capitols defeated the Philadelphia Warriors, 74-67, at Uline Arena last night. It was the first loss in four Basketball Association of America games for the Warriors and the second victory agains two defeats for the Caps.

Joe Fulks of Philadelphia, led the scorers with 25 points.

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

After trailing for the first two periods, the Washington Capitols came from behind to lead the Philadelphia Warriors, 58-51, at the end of the third quarter last night at Uline Arena.

Bob Feerick, Washington's All-League guard, was expelled from the game during the hectic third quarter for fighting with Joe Fulks, Philadelphia's great scorer.

The Philadelphia Warriors held a 34-33 halftime lead over the Capitols basketball Association of America game

Joe Fulks, the dead-eye Warrior point-maker, who shattered all scoring records last year, had racked up 12 points by intermission with five goals from the floor and two charity shots.

It was Fulks who set the early pace for the Warriors. Bothered by an injured right leg, the big Kentuckian rammed in three straight one-handers from sidecourt in the first period as the Philadelphians went out in front.

Warriors Lead at Quarterly

He was given able support by Forward Jerry Fleishman who potted four goals during the first 11 minutes.

The Warriors led 16-14, at the end of the first 12 minute period, but really got goint shortly after the second quarter began. With Fulks and Fleishman hitting from close range, the Warriors rolled up a 32-22 lead early in the quarter.

But then Bob Feerick got hot for the Capitols and got 8 of his 10 points in a three-minute stretch to whittle the advantage down.

The Saps led only once in the first half, at 8-7, at the three-minute mark.

Catholic Five Meets Navy, 17 League Foes

An 18-game schedule, on which Navy is the only non-conference opponent, was announced yesterday for Catholic University's basketball team.

Gene Augusterfer, who led C. U.'s football forces to a .500 record, will coach the courtmen, succeeding Ben Zola, who resigned at the end of last season. The squad will report for its initial drill Thursday, which will give it two weeks to get ready for the curtain-raiser with Gallaudet, December 6.

Augusterfer, who was eminently successful in basketball at St. John's before returning to his alma mater, will have a nucleus of 10 veterans around which to build the squad. The list includes Gene Szklarz, George Nelson, Steve Limanek, Fred Connors, Scotty Cranston, Joe McCrane, George Lauerbacher, Jack Walsh, Bill Walsh, and Chuck Dudley.

Catholic won only five games last season, barly squezing into the Mason-Dixon Conference play-off, but hopes are high at Brookland for a better record this winter.

December 6—Gallaudet; 13, at Loyola; 15, Towson Teachers; 17, at Navy.
January 9—At Gallaudet; 10, Washington College; 12, American U. (at Armory); 14, Loyola; 15, at Towson; 17, at Bridgewater; 19, Mount St. Mary's; 20, at Western Maryland; 24, at Randolph-Macon.
February 7—Washington College at Chestertown; 11, at Johns Hopkins; 18, American U.; 20, at Mount St. Mary's; 24, Western Maryland.
March 4, 5, 6—Mason-Dixon Conference tournament at Baltimore.

Hopkins Will Treat Golf as a Major Sport

Baltimore, Nov. 19 (AP).—Col. D. E. Thebaud, professor of military science and head of the Reserve Officers Training Corps at Johns Hopkins University, has been appointed golf coach, the department of athletics announced today.

Merchant, Housewife Win Contest

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

With time drawing short, there were two—not one—winners in last week's Washington Post football contest.

H. J. Davis

After the field of 36,400 entries was scrutinized carefully, it was discovered that Harry J. Davis, 3630 Georgia ave. nw., and Mrs. Dorothy Carroll, 235 F st. sw., finished in a dead heat.

Each missed only one game and correctly predicted the Penn-Army game to end in a 7-7 tie.

It was the first time in six weekly contests that a tie developed. And Mrs. Carroll is the first feminine picker to win top honors.

Of course, duplicate prizes will be awarded to both selectors. That means each will receive four tickets to the Redskins-Chicago Cards game here Sunday and an all-expense-paid trip for two to the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia.

Mrs. Carroll, 36-year-old housewife, is the mother of three. Until recently, she was a clerk in the Navy Department. She's an avid football and baseball fan and reached the "expert" class through careful study of newspaper and radio sports reports.

Mrs. Carroll

The other winner, Harry J. Davis, 54, is proprietor of Kaspers Men's Shop, 3630 Georgia ave. nw. A native of England, Davis said he's followed American sports closely since coming here in 1910.

He's a regular patron of the Redskins and Senators and an excellent golfer. A member of Indian Springs Country Club, Davis shoots in the 70s.

Incidentally, the only game Davis missed was Tennessee's surprising 38-13 conquest of Boston College. Mrs. Carroll's lone wrong guess was Wake Forest. North Carolina State upset the Deacons, 20-0.

Oh, yes, that man was in again. William M. Kaiser, winner of the second contest and loser by a point two weeks ago, again missed by a single point.

Kaiser, fantastically accurate selector, missed only the Tennessee-Boston College game and picked Penn, 7; Army, 6. Kaiser, 3607 Georgia ave. nw., is a 30-year-old War Department employe.

This week's grid contest is the last of the season. You still have time to make that big Army-Navy game as a guest of The Washington Post. Fill out the entry blank on this page, or make a reasonable facsimile, and get it in the hands of the Football Contest Editor by 4 p. m. Friday.

Hoyas May Play Crusaders and Ole Miss in '48

Georgetown University eleven may add Mississippi and Holy Cross to its 1948 football schedule, according to the Hoyas Athletic Association office.

Both games, it was emphasized, are still in the talking stage and, if arranged, will be played away.

Five return engagements with 1947 opponents are definitely listed. These include Tulsa, Boston College, New York University, Fordham and George Washington. All except the NYU game will be played in Griffith Stadium.

Navy Spoils Lions' Record

New York, Nov. 19 (AP).—Penn State's rock-ribbed football defenses successfully survived their Navy shelling last Saturday, but not without acquiring some well-nigh irreparable dents in their aspiration to set a new total defense record.

Navy gained 112 ground yards, almost half as much as the Nittany Lions' seven previous opponents had been able to get, and 105 aerial yards, or more than half as many as the combined seven-foe total.

This, the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau disclosed today, jumped the Penn State total defense figure from 61.6 yards yielded per game to 81, or substantially above the all-time low of 69.9 set by Santa Clara in 1937.

LaMotta's Former Second Quizzed by District Attorney

New York, Nov. 19 (AP).—The District Attorney's office started its investigation of the Jake LaMotta-Billy Fox fight today by questioning Bobby Gleason, former ring second for the Bronx bull.

Gleason, manager of former NBA featherweight champion, Phil Terranova, is a well known second and owns a gymnasium in The Bronx where LaMotta usually trains.

He was not in the Middleweight boxer's corner Friday night in Madison Square Garden when LaMotta was stopped for the first time in his pro career. Referee Frank Fullam halted the bout after 2:26 of the fourth round of the ten rounder while LaMotta was being pummelled. In losing LaMotta maintained his record of never having been floored.

Gleason was interrogated twice today behind closed doors by assistant district attorneys, Alfred J. Scotti and Andrew Seibler. Scotti, in charge of the D. A.'s rackets bureau, handled the Rocky Graziano case.

The District Attorney's office kept mum on what happened today, merely announcing that Gleason was questioned.

On leaving the office Gleason was asked by newsmen why he was not in LaMotta's corner Friday.

"I never was supposed to be there," Gleason replied. "I wasn't asked. I run a gymnasium in the Bronx and I've been asked to be in his corner several times but not last Friday night.

Meanwhile the State Athletic Commission was conducting its own inquiry of the fight the strange gyrations of the odds, and the "fix" rumors that swept through boxing circles the day of the match.

The bout was listed about even money on Thursday. By 4 p. m. (EST) the day of the fight the odds leaped to 12 to 5 and 3 to 1 in Fox's favor and many bookmakers were reported to have declined to take bets as an avalanche of Fox money appeared.

O'Neill Has 3 Players to Offer Veeck

Cleveland, Nov. 19 (AP).—President Bill Veeck of the Cleveland Indians and Manager Steve O'Neill of the Detroit Tigers conferred here late today and admitted they were trying to work out a trade which would help both clubs balk the efforts of the Boston Red Sox to "buy the 1948 pennant."

Within the last 48 hours the Red Sox have obtained three top-ranking players, Shortstop Vernon Stephens, and Pitchers Jack Kramer and Ellis Kinder, from the St. Louis Browns.

"Some of us had better toughen up," said O'Neill as he walked into Veeck's office. "The Red Sox were rugged enough before they made their deals with the Browns."

Neither Veeck nor O'Neill would identify the players under discussion, but O'Neill said before the discussion that there is na chance of the Tigers parting with Hoot Evers, their regular center fielder.

"But I am prepared to make Bill a proposition which I don't see how he can turn down," the Tiger manager added. "He can get a good outfielder, a catching prospect and a first-string pitcher if he is willing to talk business."

What's In a Name? Ask the Brownies

Philadelphia, Nov. 19 (AP).—General Manager Herb Pennock opined today that the St. Louis Browns went a cropper in the major league draft because his Phillies happen to own two shortstops named W. G. Hamner.

The Hamner boys are brothers from Richmond, Va., and both had brief trials with the Phile.

The lad that Pennock considers a top-flight major league prospect is named Wilbur Granville Hamner and he pranced in the infield of th etiUca Blue Sox, champions of the Eastern League last year.

The other is the older of the two and he's named Wesley Garvin Hamner. Wesley Garvin played for Memphis in the Southern Association last season, batted .245 and Manager Doc Prothro apparently wasn't counting on him for the 1948 season.

Then came the draft meeting.

Pennock said that Owner Dick Muckerman of the Browns, had his eyes on Wilbur Granville and thought he was getting him when he drafted W. G. Hamner of Toronto, paying the Phils $10,000.

What Muckerman didn't find out immediately was that he had bought Wesley Garvin. It seems the Phils had elevated Wesley Garvin to the Toronto Club of the International League.

Lafayette, Lehigh Renew Longest Unbroken Series

Bethlehem, Pa., Nov. 19 (AP).—Lafayette College and Lehigh University meet on the gridiron for the eighty-third time Saturday in the Nation's longest unbroken football rivalry.

There was a time when this was one of the country's top-notch contests. There will be no title for the winner this year but none of the color of bygone days will be lost.

The elevens first met in 1884 when Richard Harding Davis, the novelist and reporter was a star for the Lehigh Engineers. They have played each other every year since then with Lafayette holding the edge, 52 victories to 27. Three games ended in ties.

Handley Sold By Athletics

Philadelphia, Nov. 19 (AP).—The Philadelphia Athletics today announced the sale Gene Handley, utility infielder, to the Hollywood club of the Pacific Coast League for the $10,000 waiver price.

As a minor leaguer, Handley hit over .300 but never could in the majors.

Alabama Offered $50,000 Guarantee by Dixie Bowl

Tide Would Have Choice Of Opponent

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 19 (AP).—Promoters of the new Dixie Bowl football game offered the University of Alabama a $50,000 guarantee today to play here next January 1, and university officials said the bid was taken under advisement.

Sports sources predicted no answere would be made until after the Crimson Tide's game with Louisiana State at Tuscaloosa Saturday. They said that if Alabama defeated LSU, the team probably would be in line for a bid to the Sugar or Orange Bowl games.

Athletic Director Frank Thomas said the invitation was turned over to the faculty athletic advisory committee. No comment was available from its members.

The offer was made at Tuscaloosa by Holt Rast, chairman of the Dixie Bowl committee and a former star end at Alabama, and Leo Burson, executive secretary of the bowl committee.

The money was placed in a bank here and the invitation additionally would permit Alabama to have a voice selection of an opponent.

Texas, North Carolina and Virginia were reported among teams also under consideration for the game.

Burson said advance sale for the New Year's Day game already totals $35,000. It is sponsored by Burson, the American Legion and the City Park Broard. Burson is underwriting all expenses and guarantees.

The contest will be played in Birmingham's Legion Field now being expanded. Burson estimated that approximately 40,000 seats will be available by January 1 and 50,000 for succeeding games.

Alabama lost two close, early-season games to Tulane and Vanderbilt, then won five straight, including last Saturday's win over previously unbeaten Georgia Tech. It is ranked eighth in the Associated Press' national football poll of sports writers.

Moore Decisions Harold McIlvain In Amateur Bout

Heavyweight Thurman Moore, 12th st. YMCA, won a decision over Teammate Harold McIlwain in a Golden Gloves elimination bout last night at Police Boys Club No. 2, 12th and U sts. nw.

Tonight and tomorrow night scene of the novice class bouts shifts to the 12th st. YWCA.

Last night summaries:

160-Lb. Class—Ted Johnson, YMCA, won a decision over Calvin Felton, YMCA.

James Lee, 147, CTC; Tom Green, 135, YMCA, and Dave Primrose, Police Boys Club, won on forfeits.

Truman to Stay In Army's Stands

President Truman and his family will dispense with the usual custom of changing sides at halftime when the Army and Navy football teams meet in Philadelphia's Municipal Stadium November 29.

Instead, the President and his party will remain with Army, the host team throughout the game. The President's decision was made known yesterday at a meeting of officials to go over preparations for the game.

The President, it was said, wishes to avoid confusion which accompanies changing of sides during the intermission.

Texas Schoolboy's Part-Time Play Averages 30 Pts. a Game

El Campo, Tex., Nov. 19 (AP).—There are times when he has to be carried from the field because of leg cramps but Glenn Lippman has managed to stay in eight football games long enough to roll up 240 points.

They wouldn't be surprised here if Glenn's total isn't tops in the Nation. Whom do you know who has averaged 30 points per game?

Lippman is the big gun of the undefeated, untied El Campo High School team and the way he's going bids fair to break the all-time scoring record in Texas schoolboy football—a matter of 318 points made by Dick Todd of Crowell in 1934. Todd later starred at Texas A. and M. and now is with the Washington Redskins.

Lippman has one game to go on the regular schedule—a contest with Bay City Friday night—then will come the interscholastic league regional playoff of possibly two games.

The lowest total Lippman has been held to was last week against Wharton when he got 14 points on a muddy field with another touchdown being called back on a penalty.

But he turned in what college scouts termed a "smartly called" game, averaged 43 yards on seven punts and played a terrific defensive game.

It's unusual. The 165-pound back, who has short but powerful legs, had to be carried from the field on two occasions last week, but his coach, Grady Reynolds, thinks Glenn will "outgrow" this leg condition, technically known as "muscular fatigue."

Expert trainers say it is a matter of Lippman's legs being so well developed and yet still growing that severe strain or a change in footing conditions cause the calves to become painfully tight.

Lippman's greater performance was the night he scored 42 points against Cypriss-Fairbanks. His touchdown scampers have ranged up to 95 yards.

Bill Bennings Says

Dear Folks At Bowie.

The feature race on the Thursday program is the Martha Raye, a wide open event. The probable favorite is Tom Mott's Pebalong. Jockey Carson Kirk, who had been rough riding early on the Tuesday's card, was fined $100 for rough riding aboard Corinth in the seventh race. Just why he wasn't suspended instead of being fined we'll never know. Good boy but he's been careless of other riders recently.

Apprentice E. J. Knapp's success on C'est in the second race today was his 100th winner of the year. Jockey Joe Wagner has quit for the remainder of the year and will next see saddle action in Florida. Jimmy Stewart says that his Dr. Almac, stake winning 2-year-old, has gone amiss in training and has been retired for the year. Remember Cushlamacree, the popular Maryland mare? She has a foal by Flushing II, according to Owner John Foster. Trainer Tommy Rodrock, pleased with the sprint victory of Belair Stud's Vashti, will send the Gallent Fox filly after the endurance here. Steve Stone attention—Willie Zimmerman is taking five horses to Charles Town and needs stalls. See you on the rail—BILL.

Selections at Bowie.

1—Army Belle, Rough Cloud, Wesley A.

Bedwell Horse Dies of Fever

Bowie, Md., Nov. 19.—Owner-trained H. Guy Bedwell received word today that his Prognosis, stake winning 4-year-old, died this morning at Echo Ranch in New Hampshire where the horse was interned after developing swamp fever during the epidemic at the Rockingham Park track last summer.

Bedwell had refused to destroy Prognosis and accept $15,000 because he held a $40,000 insurance policy on the horse. The Maryland horseman bought Prognosis for $5000 from Calumet Farms and the horse ran up $72,000 in winnings before coming down with fever.

Two other Bedwell-owned horses are in critical condition. His Bain Egret is expected to die within a week while Sollure, on which he carries $20,000 insurance is in bad shape. Seven other horses are reported to be seriously ill.

Michigan Is Wow Financially Too

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 19 (AP).—Speaking either financially or athletically, it's difficult to find fault with the 1947 season of the unbeaten Michigan Wolverines.

The finale against Ohio State Saturday is a sellout, giving Michigan a season attendance of 453,993, compared with the record 514,598 of last year.

Due to an increase in ticket to $3.60, 60 cents more than was charged last year, actual income from ticket sales will be the highest in Wolverine history.

Fritz Maisel and Air Patrol Win Easily in Featured Races at Bowie

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Bowie, Md., Nov. 19.—Alan T. Clarke's ritz Maisel was an easy winner of the $10,000 added Bowie Breeders' stake and Art Rooney's Air Patrol was a handy winner of the $10,000 added W. P. Burch Memorial handicap, the cofeatures of a Wednesday program watched by 9000 fans.

Fritz Maisel, bred by Clarke on his Clarksville, Md., farm, was eased across the finish line by Jockey Johnny Breen 4 lengths in front of Christiana Stables' Mark Up with Mrs. Van Lear Black's Golden Reigh third in the field of seven contesting for the season's last 2-year-old stake.

Air Patrol, in the colors of the Shamrock Stable, carried top weight of 124 pounds home a length in advance of a photo for second in which the camera gave the nod to D. K. Kerr, jr.'s Flying Weather over Mrs. R. Berini's Vanslam.

Both winners were favorites, Fritz Maisel, a double winner in previous races, returned $5 to his legion of backers while Air Patrol, making it two in a row here, paid $3.

Fritz Maisel was clocked in 1:48 1/5 for the mile and a sixteenth while Air Patrol stepped his 6 furlongs in 1:12 2/5.

Fritz maisel, named for the former Yankees third-sacker who now is chief of the Baltimore Fire County Department, collected earnings of $7998. Clark as breeder of the colt received additional as well as silver plate presented by Maj. Goss L. Stryker, president of the Maryland Horse Breeders' Association.

Breen rode a heady race on Fritiz Maisel. The colt was caught between Mark Up and Happy Pappy going to the backstretch and Breen wisely took back and steered to the outside while keeping within striking distance of the two leaders.

Mark Up finally shook off Happy Pappy as Fritz Maisel moved around on the outside to get to the front. The colt opened a commanding lead and then was coasted into the wire.

Superb Donna moved up menacingly in midstretch only to tire. Mark Up held on to the place ahead of Golden Reigh which improved his position along the inside rail before hanging in the closing drive.

Jockey Paul Keiper kept Air Patrol out of trouble and on the outside while rating the son of Sun Teddy. Contesting for the pace were El Mono and Scholarship. The latter faltered approaching the stretch as Keiper gave Air Patrol his head.

The Shamrock hope moved to the front gradually, shook off El Mono and easily held the drives of Flying Weather and Vanslam safe approaching the finish.

The victory was the sixth of the year in 21 tries for Air Patrol. The gelding earned $7325 today to bring his year's earnings to $52,200.

3d Center Named Lineman of Week

New York, Nov. 19 (AP).—For the third time this season, a center has been selected in the Associated Press poll as football's lineman of the week.

The honor goes this time to Joe Watson of Rice Institute at Houston, Tex., who is being called by many the best center seen in the Southwest Conference since Ki Aldrich played for Texas Christian a decade ago.

Watson, who weighs 223 pounds, turned in a sparkling performance against Texas A. and M. last Saturday when his blocking and linebacking caused scouts to tab him as the best center they had seen this year.

Salvage Paid U. S. Sailors For Exploit

By The Associated Press

Navy men who salvaged a sinking German freighter off Brazil six years ago, one month before the Jap attack on Pearl Harbor, yesterday began receiving checks for their exploits.

Each of the 66 officers and men from the Cruiser Omaha, who boarded the freighter Odenwald and took her in to San Juan, have been awarded $3000 by the United States District Court in Puerto Rico.

In all, 51 officers and 829 men of the Omaha and the destroyer Somers who took part in the capture will split $322,211.66 salvage award for saving the ship and her cargo of rubber.

Men not in the boarding party get two months pay and allowances splitting a total of $124,211.66

The ship, masquerading as an American freighter, was stopped November 6, 1941, by the Omaha and Somers on neutrality patrol. Her crew deserted her after setting off time bombs and the Navy men climbed aboard and stopped the leaks successfully.

The Navy itself is not paying out the money. The Puerto Rican court is making the actual payments.

Names of members of the boarding party include:

Richard Walton Brown, 415 Massanutten st., Strausburg, Va.

Kenneth Edmonds, Martinsburg, W. Va.

James Monroe Hale, Logan, W. Va.

Frank E. King, Portsmouth, Va.

George Conrad Lein, Trump Mill rd., Raspeburg 6, Md.

Louis E. Rorrer, Norfolk, aV.

Cerepio P. Soldano, USS Glennon (destroyer), Norfolk, Va.

Elmer H. Wilson, 125-B Eiler st., Benmorrell, Norfolk, Va.

New Police Station Set For Fairfax

Appropriation of $100,000 for a new police station just off Rt. 1 near Penn Daw was made yesterday by the Fairfax County board of supervisors.

The contract was ordered let to the lowest bidder, P. F. Dulaney, Washington builder, who presented a figure of $94,809, exclusive of water and sewer connections and the architect's fee.

The new building is essential in providing effective police protection to the fast growing southeastern part of the county, said Police Chief Carl McIntosh. Groveton is 15 mines from county headquarters in Fairfax while Mount Vernon is 25.

When the two-story brick building is completed, McIntosh said, the Groveton-Franconia-Fort Belvoir area will be designated No. 1 Precinct. A force of 40 officers will be divided equally between Fairfax and the new station house, he said.

The board also indorsed a proposal to set up a regional planning commission for Alexandria, Arlington, Fairfax and Prince William Counties. Keith Price, T. J. Stockton, John Brookfield and James Corbliss were named to a committee which will meet December 10 to organize the commission.

J. H. Phillips, resident engineer of the State Department of Highways, told the board that his secondary road budget for the year ending June 30, 1948, will allow the retreatment of 48 miles of road surfaces, the surfacing of 16 miles of new roads, construction of 5 bridges and the paving of 13 miles of roads with crushed stone.

In addition, Phillips said he planned to use $144,000 in Federal aid to rebuild 5½ miles of Franconia rd. running between Franconia and Alexandria.

Crash Killing 50 Blamed on Low Flying

Probable cause of Capital Airlines crash near Hillsboro, Va., June 13, was the pilot's decision to fly below minimum bad-weather altitude, the Civil Aeronautics Board said yesterday.

Fifty persons died when the Washington-bound DC-4 smashed into the fog-shrouded foothill between Charles Town, W. Va., and Hillsboro.

The CAB listed as "a contributing cause" the "faulty clearance" given by the CAA's airways traffic control in Washington. Its report said the clearance was "tacitly approved" by the dispatcher for the airline and accepted by the pilot, Capt. Horace Stark, 46, of Arlington, Va.

In its findings, CAB said the existing minimum altitude was 3000 feet between Martinsburg, W. Va., and Herndon, Va., which are on the section of the Pittsburgh-Washington route where the ship crashed. The minimum was supposed to be observed whether the pilot could see the ground or was flying on instruments.

The board said the pilot, five minutes out of Martinsburg, reported descending below 3000 feet

Plane Is Damaged In Takeoff Failure

Richmond, Va., Nov. 19 (AP).—A DC-3 cargo plane, the property of the Willis Air Service, Teterboro, N. J., failed in a take-off attempt and "pancacked" at Byrd Airport here today, causing considerable damage to the ship but no injury to its three occupants.

FOR BEST SERVICE PLACE YOUR ADS EARLY

The steadily growing volume of classified ads in The Post, combined with the practice of many advertisers who phone late in the day, is making it difficult to devote the time and assistance to these late callers which is needed to prepare the most effective possible copy.

To assure receiving this help from your ad-taker, please try to call during the morning or early afternoon.

Whaler Rescues 41 Ship Survivors

Norwegian Vessel Takes Crew Off Storm-Swept Isle

Halifax, Nova Scotia, Nov. 19 (AP).—The Norwegian whaler Olaf Olsen has rescued all 41 survivors of the 43-man crew of the British freighter Langleecrag from Sacred Island, the Canadia government reported late today.

Two crewmen died when the Langleecrag struck a shore reef and broke in two Saturday, the Olaf Olsen radioed.

The whaler was one of four ships which beat their way through stormy seas to the scene of the shipwreck, a small bleak island off the northern tip of Newfoundland. The others were the British freighter Empire MacCalum, the U. S. Coast Guard cutter Evergreen and a Canadian police vessel.

The Empire MacCallum arrived off Sacred Island early today and started rescue operations at dawn, but as it lowered a lifeboat the small craft was smashed by heavy seas and the mercy task was left to the tiny Olsen.

(The Olaf Olsen apparently succeeded in running a line to the rocky beach, the Coast Guard reported in New York, and bringing the men off despite the raging seas and high winds. A Coast Guard plane reported that a short time before it had dropped survival gear, blankets, food and medical kits to the marooned men.)

Immediately after picking the ship's survivors, the whaling craft headed for the Grenfell Mission at St. Anthony.

2 'Clean Up' At Roulette By System

Reno, Nev., Nov. 19 (U.P.).—Two students using a system they developed ran their $300 savings into $12,000 at the Reno roulette tables in two 40-hour stretches of steady gambling.

Roy Walford, 20, San Diego, and Albert Hibbs, 23, Chillicothe, Ohio, in the first stretch last week won between $5000 and $6000.

Their system involved betting on No. 9. They spelled each other in eight-hour shifts and quit only when the club management ordered the roulette wheel changed.

They went to another casino today, where their luck held good.

Hitchhiked to Reno

Hibbs was a mathematics student at the University of Chicago and Walford was studying medicine there. A month ago, they said, they hit upon a "system" to beat the roulette wheel—a belief that has made thousands penniless. They hitchhiked to Reno.

The pair first attracted interest when they placed themselves on opposite sides of a roulette wheel and began jotting down the winning numbers in a notebook. Detectives took them to the police station for questioning but released them because there's no law that says you can't log a roulette wheel.

After a week of observation, Hibbs and Walford began playing. They bet from 2 to 13 chips on number nine, depending on the amount of play on other numbers.

Hibbs described their method only as "a progressive parlay system."

Veteran gamblers admit they are stumped. "It dosn't make sense," said one, "and yet they keep right on winning."

$6000 More Today

Today a girl—at the order of Owner Harold Smith—jotted down each winning number, as did the student players.

The girl's tally sheet showed that between 9 and 11 a. m. today number nine had won four times, and each time the students had a sizable stack of chips aboard. A croupier said that by late morning the pair had won at least another $6000, making about $12,000 in all.

The same club was the scene last fall of a single toss of the dice for a total bet of $250,000. The house lost the bet.

Smith said he would not order the wheel or the ball changed.

"We'll keep the wheel spinning as long as they want to play—even if we lost a million dollars," he said.

Training Recruits By Television

Navy spokesmen said yesterday that mass training of recruits by television was under consideration.

This disclosure was made by Comdr. Noel Gaylor of the Special Devices Center, Sands Point, Long Island., before more than 600 representatives of the Navy Industrial Association here.

Commander Gaylor explained "the concept is to take the best possible instructor available in a given subject, equip him with the best training available, have him give his instructions in the subject and then syndicate this material to where the trainee is. We are going to take typical Navy training situations and attempt to handle them by television means."

Ruhr Mine Control Given To Germans

Essen, Germany, Nov. 19 (AP).—Executive control of the Ruhr coal mines was returned to German hands today.

British and American officials announced a German coal mines administration was set up here to take responsibility for production and distribution of hard and brown coal in the British-American zones.

The board is headed by Heinrich Kost, former general director of the Rhein-Preussen Co.

It will be supervised by a combined British-American control group replacing the North German Coal Control Organization, a British organization. The Russians have demanded four-power control of the Ruhr.

The officials told a news conference that the co-chairman of the control group would be R. R. Still, former general superintendent of the Fricke Coke Co. of Pittsburgh, Pa., who arrived here recently, and Harry E. Collins of Britain.

20 Swedish Army Airmen Die in Crash

Naples, Italy, Nov. 19 (U.P.).—Twenty Swedish army airmen were killed and 10 others, including 6 crewmen, were injured last night when a Swedish charter airliner crashed in the rugged hills overlooking the World War II battlefield.

Arne Magistron, a survivor, said the plane—a privately-owned two-engined Bristol transport chartered by the Swedish government—flew into 2000-foot Monte del Carlo as its pilot attempted an emergency landing in heavy overcast.

Magistron said the plane was carrying 24 ferry pilots to Stockholm, Sweden, from Addis Ababa, where they had delivered 24 planes sold to Ethopia by the Swedish government. Ive of the survivors were seriously hurt.

Magistron said the plane developed engine trouble, and the pilot attempted an emergency landing on a tiny plateau near Cetara, between Ravello and Salerno.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

British Map Revival of Civil Defense

London, Nov. 19 (U.P.).—Prime Minister Clement Attlee announced today that the government soon will establish a new civil defense organization based on experience from World War II and the latest research into atomic bombs.

Attlee told Commons that Home Secretary J. Chuter Ede and Secretary of State for Scotland Arthur Woodburn hoped shortly to open discussions with "representative associations of local authorities" concerning the new organization.

He said it would consist partly of civilian static and mobile services and partly of military mobile columns trained in civil defense duties.

He implied that the organization would revive such World War II civilian defense bodies as the home guard, auxiliary police, antigas squads, rescue squads, auxiliary firemen, air raid wardens, ambulance services and aircraft observers.

TODAY'S RADIO HIGHLIGHTS

THE ROYAL marriage today between Princess Elizabeth and Lieut. Philip Mountbatten is getting excellent radio coverage here despite the fact the proceedings will begin before the crack of dawn, Eastern Standard Time.

Both WRC-NBC and WTOP-CBS will be taking the 2-hour program at 6 a.m. from American correspondents posted in strategic places between Buckingham Palace and Westminster Abbey. Ed Murrow, who went from CBS vice president to his current commentating position, will be one of the two American representatives in the Abbey.

Mutual crowned a Philadelphia housewife "Queen for a Day" and dispatched her to London to cover the events for the afternoon audience participation show which is heard over WOL.

WBCC, which is always being confused with BBC anyway, will pick up the wedding coverage directly from the British Broadcasting Co., and will probably have more British flavor in its broadcasts than anybody else. WBCC will carry the program from 6:45 a.m. to 8 and rebroadcast parts of it from 1:15 to 2:15 p.m.

Rebroadcasts will also be available on other stations, with WMAL doing a solid half-hour at 7:30 p.m., and WOL another 30 minutes at 9:30 p.m. WTOP will give a 15-minute period to wedding highlights at 2:30 p.m.

On the more serious side, WTOP-CBS will present a half-hour documentary drama, "How Hungry Can You Get?" with an intermission talk by Charles Luckman of the Citizens Food Committee. The program, describing a generation of "wolf children" growing up in Europe, will be broadcast at 10:30 p.m.

Other highlights:

Clark Griffith, owner of the Nats baseball team, is honored on his seventy-eighth birthday, WINX and WINX-FM—6:15, WOL—6:45 and WWDC and WWDC-FM—7:15 p.m.

Ethel Barrymore stars in "Light in the Window. "WTOP—10 p.m.

Eddie Cantor appears on "Family Hour" presentation of "Son of Mine." WOL—10 p.m.

WASHINGTON: THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1947

Designed for Gracious Living

WITH two years of peace behind them, Americans are once again beginning to think in terms of gracious living. During the war many of us had to be content with merely dreaming of lovely, comfortable homes; of shimmering damask and silver glistening against the patina of polished mahogany.

Now these things are becoming a reality once more. Good fabrics are returning to the market and it is possible for us to make some of our dreams come true.

New trends in home decoration, fabrics and wood are depicted in the accompanying pictures which were taken at the W. & J. Sloane's "Town House." Consisting of five rooms, it may be used equally as a pattern for a large apartment or small city dwelling.

Color scheme throughout is brown, green and tangerine. Varied shades of these three colors are used in every room, keeping the general tone uniform in the entire residence. Furniture used is modernized eighteenth century, many of the copies designed on a smaller scale than the originals in order to comply with the demands of modern living.

BROWN and green are the dominant color notes in this 18 by 24 feet living room. Walls are a deep cocoa tone and rug is a spring green. Drapes at the long window are eggshell with brown trim. A specious sofa is done in green damask and the two occasional chairs are covered with a printed English linen of green and tangerine. Although most of the furniture is mahogany, there are two small tables of knotted pine, waxed to a high finish. These pieces offer versatility and originality to the room. Chandelier, imported from England, is made of the famous Waterford glass of Ireland

Senora de Vallarino Feted; Lady Inverchapel Entertains

SENORA DE VALLARINO, wife of the Ambassador of Panama, who will be a presidential candidate next spring, was the guest in whose honor Mrs. Clark Woodward, wife of Admiral Woodward, entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Chevy Chase Club.

The Ambassador and Senora de Vallarino, and their daughter, Senorita Hilda Vallarino, expect to leave Washington about the first of the new year. They recently returned from a visit to several European countries following the Monetary Conference at London.

Other guests at the luncheon yesterday were Senorita Hilda Vallarino, Senora de Alfaro, wife of Ricardo Alfaro, Minister of Foreign Affairs of Panama; Mrs. David F. Sellers, wife of Admiral Sellers; Mrs. C. W. Bunker, wife of Admiral Bunker; Mrs. Randolph H. Miner, Miss Louise Boyd of San Francisco, Mme. Chautemps, Senora de Boyd, wife of the First Secretary of the Panama Embassy; Senora de Fernandez-Davila, wife of the Charge d'Affaires of Peru; Senora de Castro, wife of the Second Secretary of the Peruvian Embassy; Senora de Munilla, Mrs. Virginia Jencks, Mrs. Frank Morrow, Mrs. James O'Donnell Moran, Mme. Rybar, Mrs. Edward Conger, Mrs. Peter Ansberry, Mrs. James J. Lanihan, Mrs. Roy St. Lewis, Mrs. Lisle Smith, Mrs. William H. Watson, jr., Mrs. Ivy Pelzman, Mrs. Robert Guggenheim, Miss Katherine Judge, Mrs. Emil Hurja and Mrs. Tomas Cajigas.

The retiring Ambassador and Senora de Vallarino will be guests of honor at a cocktail party to be given by the Second Secretary of the Spanish Embassy and Senora de Sanz-Briz on November 25. Senora de Vallarino will sponsor the ship USS Ulua of the United Fruit

See PARTIES, Page 3, Col. 7.

Mme. Thors
Luncheon Hostess

MME. THORS, wife of the Minister of Iceland, entertained at luncheon yesterday for a few friends. The party was given at her home at 1 o'clock.

Club Women Study Public Relations

"America is the best salesman in the world for washing machines and automobiles, but it's still in the house-and-buggy stage in selling ideas," some 200 representatives of more than 50 local organizations were told yesterday in an all-day workshop on public relations.

The statement was made in a luncheon speech by Miss Janette T. Harrington, national president of Theta Sigma Phi honorary journalistic sorority, which conducted the workshop in Statler Hotel under the sponsorship of the D. C. League of Women Voters. Miss Harrington stressed that sincerity is the first rule in public relations work.

Redskins' Sidelines Star Brings Theater to Field For Gridiron Spectacles

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

TODAY, in this corner we have "The Orchid of the Screen," an authoress who left school at 13, a star who deserted Hollywood to follow a bouncing pigskin. Born in Texas, raised in New Orleans, when not on a 50-yard line she gyrates between Washington, Taos, Beverly Hills and New York. A beauty contest won her bit parts but brains, plus common sense, boosted her to stardom and far beyond. Leading lady of silent screen and stage, she persuaded husband George Marshall to tepee his Redskins in Washington when Capital fans packing in standees demanded an extra matinee. A "mother" before being a bride, she married the Redskins chief four months after adopting two girls.

Noted for toughness, he had parlayed a laundry acquired by his journalist father as a political debt into 52 successful branches, bought the team when pro football popularity foundered bottom, yet the Redskin brave hadn't nerve to propose. A female friend, acting as Miles Standish, turned the trick.

They get along fine; Mrs. Marshall creates, he tends detail. Football is theater, she contends. In 11 years she has warwhooped Redskin games into bigtime shows. Between halves she has staged topnotch acts, six a year; designed costumes, written lyrics for a Redskin war chant, helped train a 150 member brass band, all volunteers, who perform with Roxyette precision.

Extra curricular-wise she is a smart real estate operator, runs a block of Beverly Hills offices. Humorous, news conscious, she dresses conservatively, drinks nothing but Sanka and is mad about amethysts! She took two years to polish her copy, considers writing a surprising, exciting experience. So far a one-book authoress, she has another on the griddle—it is of food, cooking, tied up with fun and famous people. The whistle is blowing—we give you Corinne Griffith, author of "My Life With the Redskins."

By Corinne Griffith

I CLAIM PRO FOOTBALL is theater—comedy drama and motion pictures all in one. With audiences of 40—50—or 60 thousand at a single performance. The field is the stage, a stage where heart-interest stories are created anew at each performance. A stage for hero and villain, alike; a stage where stars are born and a stage where stars descend.

"MY LIFE WITH THE REDSKINS" began in the latter part of 1936 when I married George Marshall. The Redskins were the Boston Redskins then.

I saw the Redskins play, for the first time, toward the end of the 1936 season. Pittsburgh was leading the Eastern Division and needed only to win the game I was to see with the third place Redskins to win the Eastern Division Championship . . . then on to the World Championship.

Memorable Gray Day

WE ARRIVED in Boston, at the South Station, on a cold, snowy, gray day. The same cold, snowy, gray day followed us out to Fenway Park. It followed us into the stadium and spread itself over the field like a thick, gray soup. Occasional snowflakes, large, gray and wet, emerged from the thick fog, slithered toward the ground and across our faces, making it difficult to see across the field to the bleachers, where about 25 people huddled together to keep warm.

It was cold and gray in Boston's Fenway Park, but Boston's Redskin football team was hot as firecrackers. They won 30 to 0.

The Redskins traveled to New York and beat the Giants 14 to 0 to win the Eastern Division Championship. And that was the end of Boston as far as the Redskins were concerned. The homeless Redskins came to Washington in 1937 and the warm welcome the Washingtonians gave the Redskins is now football history.

The Capital Debut

THE REDSKINS opened their 1937 season with a night game in Griffith Stadium. To me there will never be anything more dramatic. As we ascended the long ramp at Griffith Stadium to the upper tier of seats, I felt as though six people were shaking hands in the middle of my stomach. The glare of floodlights gave off an unnatural, fuzzy, blue haze. Then I caught a glimpse of the crowd. It was like a dream come true. Into the white circle of light were 23,000 men, women and children to welcome the newly christened Washington Redskins in their opening game against the Giants. That was the night we "took the wrappin's off" "Slingin' Sammy" Baugh from T. C. U.

The first point scored on the new Redskin gridiron was scored by one Riley Smith of Alabama. Yea Man! Yea Team! He kicked a field goal. In the fourth quarter, with the score tied, the Giants took the ball all the way to the Redskins 1-yard line. And right there, on the 1-yard line that solid wall of Redskins climbed into the hearts of 23,000 fans. And that is how the Washington Redskins were born. The final score was Washington 13, New York 3.

A Word for the Pro

PRO FOOTBALL is a purifying process. No player can last unless he has a head, a heart and loyalty. Real stars work hard, save their

See THAYER, Page 4, Column 6.

BOOK FANS will have a chance to hear Corinne Griffith speak at The Washington Post Book and Author Luncheon, next Tuesday at 1 p. m., in the Statler Hotel. Other authors on the program will be James Ramsey Ullman—"The White Tower" and "Kingdom of Adventure: Everest"; Edward Steichen—"The Blue Ghost"; Edith Sulkin—"Continent in Limbo," and Hamilton Fish Armstrong, editor of Foreign Affairs and author of the forthcoming book, "The Calculated Risk." Luncheon tickets, $3, are on sale at bookstores.

Rings on Their Fingers

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shreve of Clarksburg, W. Va., announce the engagement of their daughter, Margaret Josephine, to Charles D. Ellison, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Ellison of La Follette, Tenn. The wedding will take place in mid-December.

MISS MARGARET SHREVE

Miss Shreve is a graduate of Wheaton College, Norton, Mass., and is with the division of British Commonwealth affairs, Department of State. Mr. Ellison attended the University of Tennessee and George Washington University and served more than four years as a lieutenant in the Naval Air Transport Service. He is now with the War Assets Administration.

Lady Inverchapel Entertains for Press

IN THE SPACIOUS ballroom of the British Embassy yesterday afternoon, Lady Inverchapel received members of the Women's National Press Club and the American Newspaper Women's Club. Tea was served in the dining room, where yellow and white chrysanthemums centered a buffet of sandwiches and cakes.

Lady Inverchapel wore a simple afternoon frock of black silk. Big bowls of yellow flowers decorated the ballroom where the hostess received her guests.

Rolfsons Entertain At Country Club

LIEUT. COMDR. and Mrs. Jalmer Rolfson entertained a small company at dinner at the Army-Navy Country Club on Tuesday in honor of Mrs. Rolfson's sister, Mrs. Joseph J. Kennebeck and Miss Margaret Redmond of Kansas City, Mo.

The visitors had tea with Mrs. Truman at the White House with Mrs. Rolfson and another sister, Mrs. William E. Day of Arlington, Va., also guests.

Yesterday Mrs. Kennebeck and Miss Redmond attended a luncheon at the Officers Club of the Naval Air Station. They will leave tomorrow for their home in Kansas City, where their mother, Mrs. James Redmond also resides.

United Nations Club To Have Dinner Dance

SO POPULAR have become the monthly Friday evening dinner dances at the United Nations Club that reservations are pouring in for tomorrow night's gala party.

Austin Beall, chairman, will entertain a group of friends, and others who have made reservations include Miss Suzanne Rosenberg, vice president of the club; Princess Toussoun, Mr. and Mrs. Denys Smith, Mr. and Mrs. I. S. Chopra, Maj. Humphreys Sykes, George W. Baker, Harry de Pauer, Anwar Niaze Parr Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. T. Beyens and Mme. Gertrude Wissa.

It's a black tie party with Ralph Hawkins' Orchestra playing from 9 to 12 following the dinner.

Australian Minister Is Luncheon Host

THE Australian Minister, Alfred Stirling, and his sister, Miss Dorothy Stirling, entertained a group of friends at luncheon in the Louis Seize Room of the Shoreham Tuesday.

Mrs. Vandegrift Gives Tea

Mrs. Alexander Archer Vandegrift, wife of the commandant of the United States Marine Corps, was hostess at a large tea yesterday afternoon. The party was given in the commandant's house, Marine barracks, for volunteer workers of the Sailors, Soldiers and Marines club.

A popular project among the service group, the club is active in peacetime as well as in war. Members of the board who poured yesterday included Mrs. W. H. Arnold, president of the club; Mrs. Dwight Eisenhower and Mrs. Carl Andrew Spaatz.

Others assisting were Mrs. Clifford Anders Swanson, Mrs. John Nicholas Brown, Mrs. W. John Kenney, Mrs. David Barry, Mrs. W. P. T. Hill, Mrs. Paul Drake, Mrs. Clifton Cates, Mrs. Franklin Hart of Parris Island, S. C.; Mrs. Lemuel Shepherd, Mrs. Field Harris, Mrs. Ray Robinson, Mrs. Harold Rosecrans and Mrs. Kilmartin.

Yellow and white chrysanthemums decorated the rooms, and music was played by a few pieces of the Marine Band Orchestra.

Young Artist Uses Scarfs To Paint Original Designs

By Peggy Preston

IN A SEASON that has made scarfs a fashion fad, the hand-painted originals by Charles Latshaw, Washington artist, are interesting innovations.

Young Mr. Latshaw, a former GI, gave up a Government job a year ago to go in business for himself and opened a studio in Alexandria, where he produces his novel scarfs. Using yard-squares of pure silk, he paints original designs on each, employing a wide variety of colors and brush strokes.

Important fact about Mr. Latshaw's painted handiwork is that his scarfs may be washed or dry-cleaned with no chance of the paint cracking or drying. His formula of mixing paints with these qualities was developed over a long period of testing and is the artist's closely guarded secret.

Mr. Latshaw designs only for individuals or in limited editions. Rarely does he paint two scarfs with the same design and for this reason they are desirable with women who like to be different.

For inspiration the artist goes frequently to the National Gallery and other art centers in Washington, returning to his studio with new colors and themes to put down on his silk squares. The theater and concert hall are other sources of inspiration. After witnessing a ballet performance at Constitution Hall he designed one of his most dramatic scarfs, depicting whirling dancers in costume.

An art student since the age of 10, Mr. Latshaw received his adult art training at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts and the Philadelphia Industrial Art College. Leaving his studies to enter the Army, he forgot art for several years and after his discharge settled in Washington.

The day he finished testing his paint formula he opened his studio. In addition to scarfs Mr. Latshaw designs table cloths, luncheon sets, cocktail napkins and decorators fabrics.

His scarfs are available at Woodward & Lothrop, Jo van der Loo's.

Service to Mark Princess' Bridals

To celebrate the wedding of Princess Elizabeth and Lieutenant Mountbatten, an evensong service for British subjects will be held at National Cathedral this afternoon. The wedding will take place at 11 o'clock London time, and the Cathedral service will be 11 hours later, at 5 o'clock Washington time.

The British Ambassador and Lady Inverchapel plan to attend along with many embassy staff members and their wives. Choir boys will sing, and the Church of England prayers will be offered.

Tuberculosis Foreseen As Conquered Disease

By Genevieve Reynolds

Oscar R. Ewing, Federal Security Administrator, yesterday predicted the eradication of tuberculosis as a public health problem in this country.

Speaking at the Washington Ladies Auxiliary, Jewish Consumptives' Relief Society's sixteenth annual donor luncheon held in the Mayflower Hotel, he told the some 1000 women present "we can look forward not merely to the effective control of tuberculosis but its actual eradication as a public health problem in this country. There is every reason to believe that tuberculosis will become as rare as "smallpox."

He cautioned, however, that the knockout blow against the disease calls for great vision, strength and courage. The four major objectives in the further fight against tuberculosis in an early stage, (2) the problem, according to Ewing tuberculosis in an early stage (2) are (1) case findings to discover all adequate treatment and isolation facilities for all patients, (3) aftercare and rehabilitation, (4) protection of the patient's family against economic distress.

The speaker said that the Federal Security Agency has been authorized to participate actively in all phases of the four-point program.

Ewing credited the mass X-ray program for the brighter side of the tuberculosis picture. Introduced a relatively short time ago, he said that it had reached 25 million persons, thus permitting the discovery of most cases in an early stage.

Pointing out that Washington is one of the first cities to bring a total X-ray service to its people, the Federal Security Administrator called upon his listeners to cooperate in the mass X-ray program which will begin here January 12. "Aim of the program is to X-ray every person 15 years of age or older," he explained. "The proposed program is the joint job of the Tuberculosis Association, the District of Columbia plus its residents.

"Every mass survey yet conducted has uncovered unsuspected cases—early cases with odds on recovery," insisted Ewing.

Guests of honor at the donor luncheon included Dr. Lewis I. Miller, national secretary and medical staff head of JCRS, and Mrs. Mary Harris, national president of the council of Ladies Auxiliaries of the Institution.

Proceeds of the luncheon will go toward the maintenance of the nonsectarian tuberculosis sanitarium at Denver, which is sponsored by the Washington Ladies Auxiliary and societies in several cities throughout the country.

Mother of West Point Cadet Is Much Dismayed By His Fiancee's Explosive Temperament; She Asks How to Teach Girl Considerate Behavior

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My son John, 24, is a cadet at West Point. He will be married to Betty, 21, next June. My husband and I visit him regularly and quite often we take Betty with us.

At dinner Betty will order a full course meal, but she has a habit of drinking a glass of milk before the main course, after which she barely touches the food, and her plate goes back to the kitchen almost untouched.

We don't object to the milk drinking, but my husband and I are shocked at the sinful waste of food, as he pays the bills; and my son has tried very tactfully to get her to eat the main course first and enjoy her milk with dessert.

Last Sunday he jokingly said, "No milk, dear, until you finish yo r main course." Instantly she pushed her plate away and flamed, "I told you, if you ever again dared to criticize the way I eat, I wouldn't touch another bite. And now I just won't."

Mother's Heart Bleeds for Son

THIS seemed like a childish tantrum to me. My son was stunned. Several cadets and their girls were seated nearby. They overheard and I wondered what their thoughts were. I felt badly for my son. Being a gentleman, all he did was smile—weakly.

Betty has other explosions, too. Once she needed a pin. None of us had one, but later my son found a pin and offered it to her. She said, "I don't want it now." He replied, "Well, dear, better hold on to it; you might need it later." At this she raised her voice and said, "When I say I don't want it, I DON'T WANT IT."

Again John seemed stunned. He is so kind and patient and it hurts me to stand by and see him take it. Later Betty will act as if nothing had happened. Don't you think there is a possibility that John will do some exploding himself?

How can we make Betty see that she isn't doing the correct thing? She has lovable traits; but as it is, I think she is only hurting herself. E. T.

Girl Is Fighting A Masked Opponent

DEAR E. T.: The possessive term, "my son, my son," gets quite a work-out here. You are a jealous mom, and in all probability you have no daughters.

About the milk drinking: If you were a mother of daughters and sagely aware of girlish foibles, you would instantly deduce that Betty is figure conscious, wants to be svelte and uses this means of fortifying herself against the temptations of a main course.

Also, if you were genuinely gracious, you would profess to ignore the untouched plate; and if tolerably hospitable, would tip off your husband, behind the scenes, to suggest steak and green salad—low calorie fare—for Betty next time.

As you see Betty, she is a spoiled disobliging girl with a willful petulant disposition. But I daresay others find her a rose without thorns for the most part—as witness John's stunned reaction when she displays temper under your nose.

Mother's Guilty Of Dirty Work

HERE is what I sense: Betty is sensitive and has great spirit, but no finesse in dealing with enemies or hypocrites, as yet. There is a great deal of malicious unconscious hostility in your attitude towards her. She feels that.

When she is your guest during visits with John, you adroitly take advantage of your control position to put her on the griddle. Wearing a saintly or acid smile, you subtly register annoyance with this or that—even about her request for a pin, I daresay—wanting to put her in a bad light, make her uncomfortable, etc.

Having great spirit, she strikes back involuntarily; but because she hardly knows what's wrong, she also strikes wild, hurting herself and John, which is grist to the mill of your unconscious purpose; namely, to persuade him that Mom is, after all, the only ideal woman.

John has been your witless stooge in the matter of "tactfully" hectoring Betty about her feeding habits. He fancies it constructive to try to humor your disapprobation. Betty's intuition is wiser. She knows that in contest with you, she must win hands down or be broken completely. For advice: Read "Their Mothers' Sons," by Dr. Edward A. Strecker, behave yourself and give young love a decent break. M. H.

Parents Should Reach Accord On Correcting Junior's Faults

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

It may be taken for granted that no two persons, parents though they may be, will think exactly alike on any subject. Does this mean that one must bow to the dictates of the other? Not at all. They still have the right, as individuals, to make up their own minds. But, where the children are concerned, they should try to compromise their differences in private, so the child will recognize their unity—and their consistency.

Mrs. E. L. writes: "My son will be 2 years old at the end of this month. My husband is very easy-going and I am very firm. I think he is wrong because the baby thinks he can do anything he pleases when his daddy is around. Then daddy gets angry at him because he gives him no peace.

"I tell him he should be firm and he wouldn't bother him. But if I say no to the baby my husband says, 'Oh, let him do it.' Please tell me what is wrong?"

Probably both of you. You haven't decided upon a policy of action that has any consistency. If what you forbid the child is so unimportant that it could be done, then it was foolish to forbid it in the first place. If it is important to be carried out, then your husband should not try to overrule you.

Probably you both pride yourselves on your behavior. You take pride in being firm, he in being easy-going. You have this privilege, as individuals, to be yourselves. But your child shouldn't be torn this and that way because you want to be strict and the father wants to be indulgent.

Talk this over like two sensible persons. Make up your mind that you'll uphold each other in whatever discipline or method of handling each initiates. If you don't, you'll soon find yourself playing for the child's favor against each other. And that is a most unwholesome family relationship and one which does not become grown-up people.

Your Questions on Homemaking

I have a purse with a spring closure and would like to know where I can have the broken spring repaired. R. B. C.

Several local leather goods stores have repair departments that can mend the spring on your handbag. Look under "Trunks and Luggage" in the yellow section of the telephone book for their names.

The movers scratched several pieces of my blond mahogany bedroom set. What can I use to cover these blemishes? H. C.

Wax is about the only thing you can use to conceal minor scratches on blond furniture. "Scratch removing crayons" and similar preparations are usually made in colors too dark for use on blond wood.

I am planning to send a Christmas box to a family in England. They are well-to-do and I want to be sure to include only hard-to-get items. Will you list some such foodstuffs that would survive the trip? Also, are cosmetics short there? R. M.

Any sort of tinned meat will be welcome—anything from corned beef to turkey. Fats also are in short supply in England, I understand, so butter concentrate or olive oil is greatly appreciated. A Christmas fruit cake or pudding would be a pleasing gift. Chocolates, sugar and rice would be welcome, as well as such concentrated foods as bouillon cubes, orange "base" (for making orange juice), and canned banana flakes. I understand that the flour emergency is about over in England, so you needn't worry about including wheat products in boxes to that country. Cosmetics are still scarce, I hear from people who have recently come from England. As you may know, CARE will send a gift box to England for you—one particularly designed to meet the need there. There are also several local grocery stores that will mail gift boxes of Christmas food overseas for you. Although November 15 was the deadline for mailing such boxes with the guarantee that they'd arrive by Christmas, there's still a chance that one will be delivered in time for the big day.

What can I use to remove marks on my dining table made by heat going through my table pad? K. S. C.

White marks made by heat usually can be taken off with either camphorated oil, oil of peppermint, or turpentine. If the spot proves stubborn, try rubbing it with an abrasive such as powdered pumice (cigar ashes will do in a pinch) and linseed oil or sewing machine oil.

We have steel casement windows in our home and they sweat so badly during cold weather that water runs over the window ledge onto the floor of the rooms. The wallpaper alongside the windows has pulled away from the wall due to this condition. Our neighbors have storm windows but are also troubled to the same extent by this condensation. M. D.

In recent years, the general adoption of wall and roof insulation, metal weather-strips, storm sashes, and tighter construction methods which prevent the leakage of air into and out of the house have made condensation a problem with many homemakers. You'll notice that it seldom bothers those who live in old houses, where loose windows and open joints permit a free circulation of air. Moisture from baths, cooking, and laundry work, is more likely to stay in new houses in the winter time and condense on windows or walls when the weather turns cold. The general adoption of humidifying devices contributes to the stiuation.

As to what can be done about it: Thoroughly airing the house on dry autumn days is a good idea, as the plaster and other inside parts of the house absorb moisture during the summer, particularly in this climate. Where there is a fireplace, leaving the throat damper open often will create enough ventilation to keep a room dry. Damp air in a kitchen and laundry can be drawn out with an electric ventilating fan installed in the upper part of a kitchen window or in an opening cut through a wall. Such a fan must be large enough to move the air of the room; a very small fan will not suffice to ventilate a large room.

If you have a gas heater that isn't connected to a flue, this may be contributing to the dampness in your home. Natural gas especially produces a large amount of water vapor. In burning gas for heating purposes, condensation can be avoided by connecting all burners to flues.

We have a bowl of green gourds of all shapes but can't find out how to preserve or dry them to retain their natural shape. Can you help us? G. B.

Unless the gourds were hard and fully ripe when you picked them, you won't be able to dry them out satisfactorily. However, if they are mature, you should be able to keep them for a few months anyway. Wipe the outsides with a weak solution of bichloride of mercury or similar disinfectant to kill any fungi on the surface that might make them decay. Then place them in a warm, dry place until they're well dried out. Wax the outsides, if you like, to make them shiny and protect them a bit.

I have a walnut dining table and two walnut living room tables—one solid, one veneer—which have become dull in finish and have some scratches. Can you tell me how to remove scratches and marks, chiefly water marks, I believe. G. T.

First, wash the furniture with a cloth wrung out in mild soap and water. Or, if the surface is caked with polish, wax, or dust, use a furniture wash made by adding 3 tablespoons linseed oil and 1 tablespoon turpentine to 1 quart hot water. Mix thoroughly and let cool before using. After washing the pieces, rinse them off with a cloth wrung out in clear water and let dry thoroughly. White marks made by spilled liquids or by heat can then be removed by rubbing with camphorated oil, oil of peppermint, or turpentine. The more stubborn spots can be rubbed with powdered pumice and linseed oil (or cigar ashes and machine oil). Scratches can be touched up with iodine or with one of the scratch concealing preparations sold in paint stores. The furniture can then be polished or waxed. Be sure to wipe off all excess oil before waxing or the surface may take on a white or misty cast later.

I had a lovely baby blanket in pink that a friend made for me on a hand loom. It was all wool and was woven in small squares and had a crocheted border. It was washed in the washing machine and shrunk to half its former size. Is there anything I can do to stretch it? J. D.

Wash the blanket again—by hand, with mild soap and lukewarm water—and stretch it either on a frame or pinned to some flat padded surface to dry. A frame can be made of wood and the blanket tacked to it. Or many thicknesses of paper can be spread over a heavy rug, towels spread over that, and the blanket stretched out to the desired size and pinned to this surface. However, if the wool in the blanket has become badly matted or been injured by hot water or strong soap, it will be very hard to restore it to its former dimensions.

PETUNIA!

At restaurant turkeys
I marvel and gaze. . . .
How do they manage
That succulent glaze?

Nope, it's not done with mirrors, Petunia! Yours can have a beautiful glaze too, if you'll just baste your turkey with pan drippings several times during the last 20 minutes of cooking.

Creamed codfish in potato ring
Green beans seasoned with lemon juice
Sliced pickled beets Molasses cookies
Apple sauce

CREAMED SALT CODFISH IN POTATO RING

3 tablespoons fat
3 tablespoons flour
Dash of pepper
2 cups milk
2¼ cups shredded salt cod (10) ounces)
2 shelled hard-cooked eggs
3 cups hot mashed potatoes

Melt fat in saucepan, stir in flour and pepper. (No salt is needed because of the salt fish used.) Add milk gradually, while stirring, and cook until smooth and thickened, stirring constantly.

Shred codfish by pulling it apart with two forks or cutting it with scissors. Freshen it following manufacturer's directions. Drain, cover with cold water, and simmer 15-20 minutes or until tender. Drain. Add to white sauce with sliced eggs. Arrange hot mashed potatoes in a ring on a platter with creamed fish in center. Sprinkle mashed potatoes with paprika or finely chopped parsley if desired. Serves 4.

In Bridal Procession

Harris & Ewing
MRS. JOHN S. SMITH
. . . to live in Berlin

Miss Jean Margaret Schmitt and John Samuel Smith were married November 8 in National Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Edward L. R. Elson officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin H. Schmitt of Arlington and her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Smith of Coopersburg, Pa.

Escorted by her father, the bride was gowned in ivory satin and her finger-tip veil fell from a pearl coronet. She carried white roses and orchids.

Maid of honor for her sister, Miss Betty Ann Schmitt wore coral satin and carried yellow roses. W. Wenner Smith 2d served his brother as best man and ushers were Irvin H. Schmitt, jr., and Eugene Herrin. A reception followed at the Admiral Club.

After several days in Boston, Mr. and Mrs. Smith sailed on the Queen Mary for England. They will make their home in Berlin, where both are employed by the War Department.

The bride attended Coe College and Iowa State College, and Mr. Smith studied at Amherst College and Harvard.

Kritini—Fielder

The wedding of Miss Clara Fielder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Fielder of Howe, Tex., and Alec Kritini, son of Mrs. Galine Kritini of Washington, took place November 15 in the chapel of Foundry Methodist Church. The Rev. Ralph C. John officiated.

The bride wore a winter white wool dress with matching hat, and carried a white Bible overlaid with a corsage of white rosebuds and stephanotis. Miss Frances Fielder, sister of the bride, and Thornten Gunther attended the couple.

Mrs. Kritini was graduated from North Texas State College and has been engaged in publicity work with the American Library Association, Washingon. The bridegroom, who served 44 months with the Army Air Forces, is associate editor of a Navy Department magazine. He attended the University of Pittsburgh and American University.

Snow Removal Problems Still Stump City Fathers

"Well," I sighed as I settled myself in the cab, "it looks like we might get some snow pretty soon."

"I certainly hope you're wrong," replied the driver.

"Why—what's the matter? Don't you like snow?"

"Personally, I don't mind it. But from a business standpoint, it's awful."

"You mean fewer people ride cabs when it snows?"

"Oh, no—it's not that. It's just that the guys who run this town are completely mystified as to what to do about snow on the streets. Traffic gets so bad that it's dangerous to drive; and besides, a hacker can't make any money when he can't make time."

"So . . . ?"

"So when the snow hits, I just give up and stay home for a while. And I haven't got enough saved yet, to be ready for it. So I sure hope you're wrong in your weather prediction, mister. I sure hope you're wrong."

THE SMITHS GO CALLING

The wife of one of our more prominent citizens is still laughing over this incident which dates back to Trick or Treat Day, when she answered her doorbell and was greeted by two neighborhood children.

The girl was about 3 or 4 years old, and her little brother was barely old enough to walk—but both children were dressed in adult clothes which trailed behind and drooped beyond at every conceivable point.

"I am Mrs. Smith," announced the girl with great formality, "and this is my husband, Mr. Smith. We've come to have tea with you."

"How nice," exclaimed the hostess. (After all, who can resist a couple of kids who are literally swimming in grown-up clothing?) "Come right in and make yourselves comfortable, and I'll go fix some milk and cookies."

"Mr. and Mrs. Smith" settled themselves with great dignity, and their hostess disappeared into the kitchen. But when she returned a few minutes later, she found her callers at the front door, about to leave.

"Oh," she exclaimed in genuine disappointment, "Must you go so soon?"

"Yes," sighed the little girl, "we must. I'm afraid that Mr. Smith has wet his pants."

"CONVICT LABOR"

Some time ago we ran a letter from Irwin Abell which suggested that motorists who cause serious accidents should be sentenced to serve as orderlies in accident wards of our hospitals.

Betty Moloney of 1412 Newton st. nw. thinks that the idea is fine—as far as it goes. But Betty would also do something about reckless pedestrians.

This is the breed which ambles across the street against red lights, steps unconcernedly from loading platforms, emerges in the middle of the block from between parked cars, etc., ad infinitum.

Betty thinks pedestrians, as well as motorists, would benefit from a visit to our hospitals.

However, Lieut. (j. g.) George Morrice, jr., of the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., holds up a warning finger.

The idea of getting some useful service out of the miscreant while at the same time pounding some sense into his skull is all to the good.

But he warns that the patient is entitled to expert care—and that no "convict labor" should be employed in such a way as to bring patient and culprit into direct contact.

RETURN OF THE OPA

Any day now, the White House should be getting a note which reads:

"Ya, ya—I told you so."
"Chester."

G. B. Shaw, at the age of 91, 's receiving the fattest royalty checks of his long career from the Maurice Evans production of his "Man and Superman." Shaw says that at the London premiere of this play, 42 years ago, he almost was mobbed. It was presented at a special matinee by the Stage Society. When, at the curtain, the audience shouted, "author, author," J. E. Vedrenne, the manager, appeared and said: "I'm not Mr. Shaw, who is probably on the platform of the underground next door." The audience didn't wait for him to finish, but rushed to the subway where all they could catch, through a window of the departing train, was a glimpse of Shaw's red beard.

Henry and Victor Lambert were asked by a wealthy man, who said that he had everything a man could want, to design an item of jewelry which would make him think of his home and family every time he looked at it. He bought the item they designed—a gold key into which is set a 17-jewel watch . . . Now that George Jessel is in New York, only his California friends get calls from him. Rose Stradner, wife of movie producer Joe Mankiewicz, starred in Viennese plays and films. When one of her films opened in Berlin, and the entire cast went there for the premiere, she was introduced to Goebbels, who offered her a 15-year contract to appear in German films. Miss Stradner, who went to America after the Anschluss, told Goebbels that she preferred to work for Viennese movies instead of German ones . . . Goebbels replied: "In that case you'll be working for us eventually. It's only a question of time."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

McCarthy 'Gets Religion'

Big, burly Senator Joe McCarthy of Wisconsin has suddenly got religion. He has revised his ideas on housing.

While most congressional committees were diagnosing Europe's needs, one group, dominated by McCarthy, stayed home to delve into America's No. 1 problem — the housing shortage. Their findings will jolt some of the arch-conservatives who were in a hurry to turn wartime economy back to private enterprise.

J. R. McCarthy

Without mincing words the Joint Committee on Housing will report to Congress that the housing problem has proved too big for private enterprise alone. Even such hitherto outspoken champions of the real estate interests as Joe McCarthy and New York's Congressman Ralph Gamble, who wrested control of the committee away from liberal Senator Charles Tobey of New Hampshire, will join in urging an emergency Federal housing program. Their eyes were opened by the cross-country hearings.

Although the committee's findings have not been digested into a written report the members have reached a tacit understanding on the most important points. This column can reveal some of its highlights.

Basic causes for the housing shortage are:

1. The population jumped 13 million during the war, and while the population increased, war priorities kept home building almost at a standstill.

2. The real estate trade is not building for the rental market—where the most critical need exists—but in order to sell. Yet the average renter has more money to spend, and is bidding for more space.

3. Construction costs are high, caused by shortages of materials and skilled labor. The chief bottlenecks are cast-iron soil pipe, nails and lumber.

Solution for Housing

The committee's answer will be legislation which it hopes to introduce after January 1. It will urge:

(1) A Federal housing program for low-income groups; (2) increased authority for the Federal Housing Administration to guarantee loans; (3) expansion of the Labor Department's apprenticeship training division; (4) curtailment of exports of lumber and wire (used for nails).

The committee already has received commitments from the producers of cast-iron soil pipe to jack up their output. Nail manufacturers also have pledged to increase production next year by two million kegs. The committee will request FHA to relax certain lumber specifications, since an ample supply of poorer-grade lumber is on hand.

Though the Housing Committee has until March, 1948, to make its report, it has no intention of holding off that long. The first recommendation—a preliminary proposal to boost FHA's authority to guarantee loans—will even be wedged into the special session.

Waking Up McCarthy

At the height of his housing investigation in Detroit, Senator McCarthy was roused out of bed at 3 a. m. by an urgent telephone call.

"Why are you wasting the taxpayers' money with this hearing?" demanded a woman's voice, indignantly. "There is no need for you to travel around the country. I can give you the answer to the housing problem in a minute:

"Have Congress pass the right laws!"

Southwest's Friendship Move

Down in the Southwest two weeks ago quite a few Texans, Kansans and Oklahomans became indignant when they learned that the main route of the Friendship Train was skirting them to the north of the main line of the Southern Pacific-Union Pacific-North Western Railroad to Chicago.

So, being energetic gentlemen and wanting to participate in the gesture of friendship toward the peoples of western Europe, they have now organized a special Southwest Wheat Section of the Friendship Train, to leave Wichita tomorrow. Moving eastward on the Sante Fe, the Southwest Wheat Special will travel through West Virginia on the Chesapeake & Ohio to Washington, thence on the Baltimore & Ohio to Philadelphia, where, on November 30, it will unload.

Dewey Scores Scoop

Members of the Congressional Herter Committee are plenty burned up about the way New York's Governor Tom Dewey scooped them on their European aid report after the committee had made an intensive six weeks' study of conditions in Europe.

Two days before the Herter report was published, Dewey issued a statement of his own, almost identical in many respects with the congressional findings. Dewey even recommended the same administrative setup to handle European relief as proposed—two days later—by the committee.

Big mystery is: What inside source leaked the committee findings to the Dewey camp?

Suspect No. 1 is Allen Dulles, a New York attorney who accompanied the committee on its European tour and aided in the preparation of the report. Dulles is a brother of John Foster Dulles, Governor Dewey's right-hand adviser for foreign affairs. "Nuff said," added the congressmen who were scooped.

Easy to Hate

It is so easy to be mean . . .
And find a way to strike . . . At those who bother us and whom
. . . We thoroughly dislike . . .
It is not difficult to hate . . .
To scorn or ridicule . . . Or otherwise declare our thought
. . . That some one is a fool
. . . But it takes courage to be kind . . . And walk the proper path . . . Where there is never any room . . . For prejudice or wrath . . . To listen to the voice of God . . .
That echoes from above . . .
And lavish friend and foe alike
With sympathy and love . . .
It is so easy to condemn . . .
Or name another's debt . . .
But it requires courage to . . .
Forgive and to forget.
